

WALL STREET ADVANCE IN STOCK LIST CONTINUES; NEW HIGHS

Progress Is Interrupted Now and Then by Profit-taking and Occasional Short Selling.

CALL MONEY RATE IS 4 PER CENT

Heavy Buying of the Utilities Features the Late Trade, Several Large Blocks Changing Hands.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Stock markets extended their recovery in the last trading session, with advance in short futures and a lowing of the call money rate probing the chief buying impetus.
The market from time to time
was well absorbed, and final quotations generally were not far from yesterday's high 11 (12.15 a. m.; low, 10 (8 a. m.).

Heavy buying of the public utility stocks and the late trading, the market of 20 leading issues setting
a high record for the year.
Some blocks of 2000 to 10,000
shares changed hands, with Radio, American Water Works, Standard and Electric, American Power and Light, North American, Western Union and American Telephone the foremost of the advance.

Comment by Trade Reviews.
Weekly mercantile reviews continued to emphasize the "spotty" nature of current business. Bradstreet, which characterizes the situation as fair, states that "unusually warm weather and fluctuations in the prices of farming products had varied
the market on a spotted trade situation."

Some of the late buying, particularly in such stocks as Radio, American Copper and United Aircraft, appeared like a drive against an extended short interest in these issues. Wall street has found itself in a position where it is likely to be a slow and irregular movement, the obstacles which appear now in varied form to be regarded as inevitable manifestations of a period of transition.

Wheat Ranges Up.
Wheat futures advanced about 1/2¢ a bushel. Corn advanced 1/4¢ a bushel. Cotton futures closed slightly lower as a result of the heavy realizing which followed the early advance.

Renewed weakness of Spanish pesetas, which declined to another low around 12.15 on rumor of a Spanish financial demonstration, featured the general lower foreign exchange market. Sterling cables again declined to $4.86 and nominal recessions placed in most of the other European currencies.

Stock prices, with other tables and market news, will be found on Pages 19C, 20C and 21C.

U. S. RECOGNITION OF SOVIET RUSSIA OPPOSED IN HOUSE

New York Congressman Assails 'Persecution' of Church and Clergy by Government.

'NO EQUAL SINCE 30-YEAR WAR'

British Army and Navy Forbidden to Join Move for World-Wide Prayer for Moscow.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—Accusing communists in Russia of carrying out a systematic campaign to despoil churches and to exterminate religion, Congressman Hamilton Fish Jr. (Rep., N. Y.), today asked for support in the House of his resolution opposing the recognition of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics.

Fish is a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee. He recently introduced a resolution which condemned "the persecution and outrages inflicted on the Christian and Jewish subjects of Soviet Russia." The resolution would "express the sense of the Congress" that recognition of the Soviet Government was incompatible with the traditions and institutions of this country until religious persecution in that country had ceased.

Fish added the attack of the Soviet Government against the church and clergy was not only against them and the people who desired religious worship, but against God and all who profess religious belief.

Purpose of Resolution. Fish said, was to arouse public opinion in the United States and to unite all nations in an effort to persuade the Soviet Government to revoke decrees "against the freedom of worship and the practice of religious belief."

Asserting that the "Communist party in 1929 had begun a relentless campaign to persecute and destroy not only the Orthodox Russian Church, but every semblance of religious belief among Jews, Catholics and Protestants," Fish said the persecution against men, women and children for "maintaining their faith in God has had no equal since the 30-year war."

He asserted he did not dispute the right of the Soviet to establish any form of government desired without any interference from other nations, but said "when it comes to a question of the destruction of all churches and religious institutions and the execution, imprisonment and exile of priests the whole world stands aghast and rightly protests against such barbarities, and that government should be proclaimed throughout every civilized country."

British Army Forbidden to Hold Prayer Services for Russia.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Feb. 23.—While intercessions for Russian religionists will be offered in churches in Great Britain, March 16 and 19, in response to the appeal of religious bodies, the War Office is instructed that it is undesirable that this be done at army religious services.

The following letter has been sent to the general officers of the British Army at home and abroad: "I am commanded by the Army Council to inform you that his Majesty's Government, in view of the political character of the controversy has assumed, deem it undesirable that intercessory prayer for Russian subjects should be read at a religious service in the army."

The letter was signed by A. J. Creedy, Undersecretary of War. A message also has been sent to all ships and establishments of the British Navy saying that the order for services for Russian Christians made by the Archbishop of Canterbury does not apply to the navy. It was pointed out that service aboard ship are semi-compulsory, and that it was considered unsuitable for holding services of this kind.

Polish Senate Urges Protest Be Sent to Soviet.

By the Associated Press. WARSAW, Poland, Feb. 23.—Senators of all parties have signed an interpellation addressed to the Government asking that Poland join other nations in protesting against persecutions of religion in Russia.

By the Associated Press. BERLIN, Feb. 23.—The General Synod has associated itself with the recent action of the Supreme Council of Evangelical Churches in Prussia, which directed that Passion Sunday, March 9, be observed as a day of intercession for the Christians of Soviet Russia. The General Synod disclaimed any political interference in a foreign country. It adopted a resolution as the representative of 19,000,000 evangelists, to assist their brethren in Russia wherever possible against onslaughts of godlessness, declaring that the "gates of hell shall not prevail against the church."

PLANS TO SEEK TREASURE SHIP IN LONG ISLAND SOUND

Simon Lake Thinks Vessel With $4,000,000 for British Soldiers Sank There.

MILFORD, Conn., Feb. 23.—Simon Lake, inventor of numerous submarine devices, plans to spend a considerable part of this summer searching the floor of Long Island Sound in the vicinity of Hell Gate for $4,000,000 in gold thought to have sunk with a pay ship sent to America by the British during the Revolutionary War.

"If it's there, I'll find it," Lake said. He pointed out that in recent years he has found more than 30 vessels in an area of five square miles at the bottom of the sound. His plans for this particular quarry are contingent on the success of transactions now being negotiated with the Government for Lake by Representative Tilson of Connecticut, majority leader of the House. Lake is seeking a government contract for the job and a measure of government co-operation. Not that either is necessary to the undertaking, he pointed out. But in the event of finding the treasure the fact that he did so under government sanction will avoid possible future complications.

Lake's interest in the pay ship goes back to his boyhood, when he heard the story of the lost gold from the late Capt. George Thomas of Orange, N. J. Capt. Thomas, who had looked up records of the lost ship in England, got a government contract to salvage it, and spent his own fortune and the fortunes of several friends in vain efforts to do so.

REPORTS CHINESE BANDITS KILLED BISHOP AND 4 OTHERS

Message Says Three Women Were Among Members of Party Killed in Mountains.

By the Associated Press. LONDON, Feb. 23.—An Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Hongkong reports that the Salesian Bishop, Monsignor Versiglia, Father Caravario and three Chinese sisters were murdered several days ago by bandits near Sulpin. The bandits apparently saw the party entering the boat ahead of them and attacked it at Sulpin. They were refused they tried to seize the sisters and the Bishop. They met opposition, but eventually succeeded in carrying off the party to the mountains, where they murdered them.

Two priests went three days later to the bandits' stronghold to negotiate for their release, but were too late.

$700,000 HEIR ENJOINS SECOND AUTOPSY ON WIFE

Her Brother, Who Says She Was Poisoned, Insane, Maj. Sevier Asserts in Petition.

By the Associated Press.

HONOLULU, Feb. 23.—A sworn statement by Col. Granville Sevier, U. S. A., that his deceased wife's brother, Ralph Sevier, is insane, has enlisted the legal controversy here over the newest investigation of the death in August, 1928, of Mrs. Marion Sevier, Irvington, N. Y., heiress. Sevier had instigated the investigation.

Col. Sevier filed a petition for an injunction forbidding an autopsy on his wife's body, alleging that the only reason for holding it was based upon the suspected "mouthing" of Sevier, "who asserts his deceased wife was done to death by poison," and who "is insane." The autopsy was delayed pending a decision on this petition.

Mrs. Sevier left her husband a $700,000 estate, settlement of which is delayed by this investigation. An autopsy performed last spring confirmed the statement of her personal physician, Maj. W. C. Whitmore, that death had been natural, due to acute cardiac dilatation. The Hawaiian department of the army received affidavits re-affirming his belief that Mrs. Sevier's death was from natural causes.

The affidavits stated that Maj. Whitmore's recent letter to Sheriff Gleason, which induced that officer to reopen the inquiry had suggested a second investigation. The death had been natural, due to acute cardiac dilatation. The Hawaiian department of the army received affidavits re-affirming his belief that Mrs. Sevier's death was from natural causes.

EIGHT TEXANS INDICTED FOR FRAUD IN ELECTION

"Millionaire Sheriff" of Hidalgo County One of Eight Accused.

HOUSTON, Tex., Feb. 23.—Eight Hidalgo County Democrats, headed by A. Y. Baker, Democratic leader in the lower Rio Grande Valley, have been indicted by a Federal grand jury for violation of the national election laws.

The indictments, returned after four days' investigation into the Hidalgo County general election of 1932, charged "conspiracy to injure persons in the exercise of civil rights." The grand jury heard charges brought by "independent Republicans" who claimed that the election officers, without grounds, threw out the returns of the Westlake election box and that this action saved the Baker regime from defeat.

Besides Baker, who is known as the "millionaire Sheriff" of Hidalgo County, those indicted are: County Judge A. W. Cameron, William D. Chaddick and Sam M. Hagrove, county commissioners; Marvin Evans, former county commissioner; C. E. Hill, county clerk; Tom J. Buckwalter, election judge, and Edwin B. Williams, election clerk.

FIVE HELD IN DETROIT FOR LIQUOR SMUGGLING BY AIR

Charged With Violating Tariff Act in Landing Contraband From Canada in United States.

By the Associated Press. DETROIT, Mich., Feb. 23.—Five men were arrested here today by Federal officers, as members of a gang that has been smuggling liquor from Canada to the United States by airplane. The men are held on warrants charging violation of the tariff act. John R. Watkins, District Attorney, said he was drawing up a conspiracy warrant against the group. One of the planes operated by the gang has been seized, according to Dwight E. Ayre, in charge of the special prohibition agents here. Ayre said the smugglers operated planes from points between Amherstburg and Windsor, Ont., to various small airports and landing fields in Wayne County (Detroit).

Two undercover agents who worked here for several months as members of the airplane smuggling gang, arrested Peter Kelly, S. A. Stedman, J. B. St. Louis, James Elchman and Paul A. Hosler, all of Detroit.

COLDS

How can you get rid of a cold and its ill effects if you do not take a remedy containing laxatives? Careful attention to the voiding of body wastes is very important. To throw off a cold and prevent the serious complications which might follow, you must keep the body resistance at a high point of efficiency. It is the tonic and laxative effect that has made Grove's Laxative BROMO QUININE Tablets so successful in the treatment of colds.

Inside Story of Tariff Trading Scheme

how he went to Phipps and Waterman, Republican Senators from the "best sugar state" of Colorado, and offered "oil Senators" votes for an increased sugar tariff in return for the votes of Phipps and Waterman for an oil tariff. He said the offer was accepted. Again it was recalled that Phipps and Waterman voted last night for the lumber duty.

The committees did not reach the point of questioning Franklin about the trade as between oil and lumber, except that it disclosed an interesting account of an interview with Senator Phipps (Rep.) of Maine, as well as Senator Dale (Rep.) of Vermont. The letter was written by Charles Flint, Oklahoma oil man, to another Oklahoma oil man.

"I had a nice long talk with Senator Dale," Flint related. "He said Senator Phipps told him that, unless Dale helped with the oil tariff, he, Phipps, wouldn't help Dale. Senator Dale said that was the way to do it. He said he couldn't trade with Senator Phipps (Rep.) of Maine, as well as Senator Dale (Rep.) of Vermont. The letter was written by Charles Flint, Oklahoma oil man, to another Oklahoma oil man."

Senator Dale, in a statement today, denied the testimony that he had discussed "trading" in legislation with Flint.

Letter From Congressman.

Even more interesting was a letter from Congressman W. H. Sproul (Rep.), Kansas, written on official stationery, and directed to Franklin. It said: "I thought you might be interested in knowing that W. S. Fitzpatrick of the Prairie Oil and Gas Co. has been for some time in Washington, and while here has been stopping with National Republican Chairman Huston, and while stopping there has dined with the President."

"You understand, perhaps, that my predecessor, Mr. Philip Campbell, is one of the lobbyists for the oil company, and I think likewise Mr. Frank Mondell of Wyoming. You will remember that when I succeeded Mr. Campbell, he was chairman of the Rules Committee of the House, which at that time had a very tremendous power over legislation. The committee still has a great power, but not so much."

"Mr. Mondell, as you may know, is the ex-Republican floor leader of the House, and has the reputation of being one of the high-powered lobbyists for big business. "You probably know that Mr. Walter Newton, former Representative from Minnesota, is the President's legislative contact man. It has occurred to me that a little advertising might possibly aid the oil tariff cause."

Enclosed in the letter was a clipped newspaper account of Mr. and Mrs. Fitzpatrick being entertained at the White House. Fitzpatrick succeeded James E. O'Neill as head of the Prairie company when O'Neill fled to Europe as a result of the Teapot Dome and Continental Trading Co. scandals.

"You probably know that Mr. Walter Newton, former Representative from Minnesota, is the President's legislative contact man. It has occurred to me that a little advertising might possibly aid the oil tariff cause."

There was a telegram from one of Franklin's "boys" at the Mayflower to a colleague in Texas stating that Senator Connally of that State was not lining up for the oil tariff as well as was desired, and urging the recipient to "get half a dozen good men to get on the telephone and give him the devil."

Another letter from Joe Danziger to Brother Jack at Fort Worth outlined various plans for bringing pressure on Senators from their home states. "The home fires are the ones that we must keep burning," he concluded. One of his personally selected him. He was defeated in 1932 when he ran for the Senate from Wyoming. Campbell also was defeated, and like Mondell, opened a law office in Washington.

Franklin strenuously denied that he had employed anyone to lobby for the oil tariff, although he said some of his associates had urged him to do so, and he had actually been "solicited." In this connection he related that Cornelius C. Hamilton, president of the Sun-Ray Oil Co., visited Mrs. Willibrand, formerly in charge of prohibition prosecutions, and discussed retaining her in the interest of an oil tariff. He reported to Franklin that he believed she could be hired for $5000 to $10,000, and strongly urged that it be done. Franklin said he declined to pursue the matter.

Subsequently there was a letter from Joe Danziger, a member of the oil delegation, to his brother, Jack Danziger, in Texas, lamenting that Franklin had not retained Mrs. Willibrand, because, he said, "she has great influence in Washington, and is very friendly to the President." He reported that "she claims nobody came back to see her after the first interview."

Franklin told the committee that, soon after his arrival in Washington he "heard that, if oil, sugar and lumber could be made to trade, we would have a good chance of getting our duty of $1 a barrel on oil."

"Did you think that was all right?" asked Chairman Caraway. "I've heard all my life that that is the way tariff bills are made," was the reply. "I think there may be something in it," smiled Caraway.

Delegation Sent President.

Franklin said he led a delegation of 12 oil men to see President Hoover at the White House, and that the President intended to the statement of the delegates for more than an hour. Later, he said, it was arranged, through Secretary of War Hurley, who is an Oklahoma man and a friend of Franklin, for the latter to have lunch with the President and discuss the matter further.

Senator Walsh expressed some amazement at the active part taken by Justice John T. Adams of the Colorado Supreme Court in suggesting possible combinations and deals to the oil lobby. Franklin explained that Justice Adams is an old friend, and that they dined together last summer. Examination of the oil lobby's correspondence had disclosed telegrams from Judge Adams to Franklin. "Judging from these telegrams you are still fishing together," dryly observed Walsh.

In the correspondence found at the Mayflower was a letter from Congressman U. S. Stone (Rep.), Oklahoma, suggesting that Democratic Congressmen from Oklahoma should be the ones to vote to put lumber on the free list and pointing out that their votes on the proposed lumber duty would disclose whether log-rolling and trading had caused a change of front.

In the end four "sugar Democrats" and two "oil Senators" stood with the lumber group and the old guard in voting for the duty on lumber, but the total was not enough.

A last-minute concession on the part of the lumber group, to make the duty $2 a thousand feet instead of $3, was not sufficient to win the necessary votes.

Naturally, the defeat of the proposed lumber duty releases the "lumber Senators" from any obligation to vote for the proposed oil and sugar duties.

Discovery of the proposed deal apparently was made simultaneously yesterday by La Follette of Wisconsin, most radical of the progressive Republicans, and Hawes of Missouri, one of the most conservative Democrats. It followed the arrival in Washington, on Feb. 3, of the special train load of oil producers and oil attorneys.

The oil delegation, headed by suggestions was that the oil interests send out letters enclosing $1 bills to pay for telegrams to the Texas Senators, urging them to vote for the oil duty.

Evidently the "home fires" failed to scorch Senator Connally, for Joe Danziger wrote to Jack that he "must have received 5000 telegrams by now, and I can't understand why he refuses to listen to the voice of the people."

At no time during the hearing did Franklin manifest any feeling that improper measures had been taken to obtain a tariff on oil. He said the opposition to such a tariff "comes from the Standard, Royal Dutch Shell and Mellon groups, which import foreign oil, and sell it for less than the independents can afford to sell American oil."

Petroleum Duty. Today, while the Caraway committee pursued its investigation of the oil lobby, Senator Elmer Thomas (Dem.) of Oklahoma, called up his amendment to take petroleum and refined products from the free list and attach a duty of $1 a barrel on crude petroleum and of 50 per cent ad valorem on refined products.

Thomas, in opening his fight for an oil duty, charged that the independent producers had not received a fair hearing before the Senate Finance Subcommittee on Oil, of which Senator Reed (Rep.), Pennsylvania, was chairman, and former Senator Edge (Rep.), New Jersey, and Senator King (Dem.), Utah, were the other members.

"That subcommittee," said Thomas, "might just as well have been composed of John D. Rockefeller, W. C. Clegg of the Standard Oil group and Secretary of the Treasury Andrew W. Mellon. At one time, at least, Senator Reed was a close personal attorney for the Mellon interests, and the newspapers have published that former Senator Edge is a brother-in-law of Mr. Taggart."

The Mellon interests, continued Thomas, own 90 per cent of the Gulf Oil Co. stock. Thomas declared that the large producers could import crude oil into New York at a total cost of 75 cents a barrel and gasoline for 3 cents a gallon. The small operator, he said, could not produce gasoline for less than 4 cents a gallon.

Norris Contributed to Panic of Leaders in Plan. Before the vote last night, Senator Norris, veteran Republican insurgent of Nebraska, contributed to the panic by ironically calling the roll of members of the Finance Committee who originally voted to put lumber on the free list and pointing out that their votes on the proposed lumber duty would disclose whether log-rolling and trading had caused a change of front.

In the end four "sugar Democrats" and two "oil Senators" stood with the lumber group and the old guard in voting for the duty on lumber, but the total was not enough.

A last-minute concession on the part of the lumber group, to make the duty $2 a thousand feet instead of $3, was not sufficient to win the necessary votes.

Naturally, the defeat of the proposed lumber duty releases the "lumber Senators" from any obligation to vote for the proposed oil and sugar duties.

Discovery of the proposed deal apparently was made simultaneously yesterday by La Follette of Wisconsin, most radical of the progressive Republicans, and Hawes of Missouri, one of the most conservative Democrats. It followed the arrival in Washington, on Feb. 3, of the special train load of oil producers and oil attorneys.

The oil delegation, headed by

Franklin, was joined presently by two former Oklahoma Senators, John W. Harrell (Rep.), and Thomas F. Gore (Dem.). By virtue of the privilege enjoyed by former members of Congress, Harrell, and Gore soon made their appearance on the Senate floor.

The information obtained by Hawes and La Follette was communicated at once to Chairman Caraway and Senator Walsh of the Lobby Investigating Committee. After consulting other members they issued a subpoena for Franklin and directed John Holland, special committee counsel, to go to the "home fires" and examine the papers and correspondence found in the "petroleum suite."

"Sons of the Wild Jacks." Attacking the proposed lumber duty on the floor of the Senate last night, Norris said that "there is a general belief throughout the country that tariff bills are the product of log-rolling, and I don't believe there is a Senator who doesn't share that belief to some extent." Recalling that the members of the Senate Finance Committee had voted unanimously to put lumber on the free list, he said:

"Has something happened to change their views? If so, what is it? We have heard a rumor of a deal on oil, sugar and lumber. All day long the chairman of the committee (Senator Smoot of Utah) has listened to attacks on the committee's work, and has uttered one word in its defense. It has fallen to the lot of us 'sons of the wild jack' to defend the committee while its chairman remained silent."

Senators Watson and Smoot. "Next on the committee is eloquent and magnetic leader, Senator Watson of Indiana. An apostle of regularity, he has at all times while the party policy was being debated and criticized. Has something happened to change his mind since he voted in committee to put lumber on the free list?" he asked. "It may lead credence to the rumors of trading and log-rolling that we have been hearing all day."

On the roll call, it is turned out Watson did vote for a duty of lumber. Smoot remained out of the chamber until completion of the roll call had disclosed that the proposed duty was beaten; then he returned and added his vote to the majority against the oil.

Among those voting for "sugar States"—Randall and Broussard of Louisiana, and Fletcher and Trammell of Florida and Senator Thomas (Dem.) and Pine (Rep.) from the "oil State" of Oklahoma together with a number of Senators from the lumber-producing States of the Northwest, including Dill (Dem.) of Washington.

Hawes (Dem.), Missouri, voted against a lumber duty and Patterson (Rep.), for it.

SEARCH FOR MAN WHO TRAINS POLICE DOGS FOR THE POLICE

A man called at the home of Mrs. Hazel Neff, 3841 Fairview avenue, yesterday, and inquired if she wanted her police dog trained. "I don't think so," she said, "but I don't think she's 4 years old and there's not much use training an old dog." Mrs. Neff replied: "I can train him," the man persisted. "It will take a lot of whiping, but I train police dogs in the Police Department and when I bring your dog back he'll be trained well."

Mrs. Neff told the man to return later in the day, but he did not. Police were notified and are seeking the man, who "trains dogs in the Police Department" and who "brings your dog back he'll be trained well."

The dog, which was a black and white terrier, was found by the police. It was a male, about 4 years old, and was very smart. It was found in the back yard of a house on Fairview avenue. The dog was very friendly and seemed to be very well trained. It was found by the police and was taken to the police station. The dog was very smart and seemed to be very well trained. It was found by the police and was taken to the police station.

Two more instruments sent up in weather test returned.

Found in Illinois, Having Been Carried to Earth From Balloons by Parachutes.

Two more of the instruments which were sent aloft attached to balloons by the Government Weather Bureau service on the Louisiana field in December last, have been returned to the airport weather station by finders, who picked them up in Illinois near the Indiana line.

The return of the two instruments leaves only two missing of the eight sent up to test temperature, pressure, and humidity at high altitudes. One instrument was found near Olney, in Richland County, and the other near Ocala, Douglas County. The finders received $5 for returning the instruments.

Four of the instruments, called meteorographs, were sent up from each of 14 weather stations throughout the country on Jan. 6, and a similar number on Jan. 6. The small balloons rise to from 10 to 20 miles above the earth before bursting, and the instruments are then carried to earth by parachutes. The results of the experiment are being worked out at Washington.

SUITOR OF SLAIN WOMAN SAYS HE WAS THREATENED

Salt Lake City Mining Man Testifies at Inquest He Was Warned About Husband of Victim.

HER SISTER TELLS OF LOVE AFFAIR

Says Admirer Persuaded Mrs. Dorothy Mooremeister to Get Divorce and He Would Do Likewise.

By the Associated Press.

SALT LAKE CITY, Utah, Feb. 23.—Testimony of an anonymous witness yesterday told a Salt Lake City inquest that he had threatened to kill Frederick Charles Peter, Salt Lake City mining man, was given by Peter today at the inquest into the murder of Mrs. Dorothy Mooremeister here a week ago.

Peter said the threat was received yesterday forenoon by his secretary, Miss Amelia Hugenbottler, a sister of the murdered woman, testified yesterday that Peter had been friendly with Mrs. Mooremeister, calling on her several times a week and telephoning her daily, and that her sister had declared he had attempted to persuade her to divorce Dr. Mooremeister.

Peter took the witness stand today after the opening had been delayed for an hour because of a request of Peter's counsel that he be not called. County Attorney John D. Rice insisted on his right to take Peter's testimony.

T. Edward Sutton, Justice of the Peace, before whom the inquest is being held, warned Peter that anything he said might be used against him. After his narration of the receipt of the alleged threat, Peter was advised by the County Attorney that the Sheriff would assign a guard for him, but the witness replied that he was not worried about the threat and did not want a guard.

The body of Mrs. Mooremeister was found Saturday morning on a road near here. There was evidence that the slayer had driven the woman's own automobile back and forth over the body.

Miss Hugenbottler testified yesterday that her sister was dazed and complained of a "film" over her eyes for a whole day after she had been out with Peter a week before the murder. She said Mrs. Mooremeister had thought she had been "doped."

Miss Hugenbottler added that Peter had threatened her sister should she tell of their association.

Mrs. Mooremeister, it is thought, adorned herself in her costly jewels and clothes the night of her death and went to meet an attorney. Peter had told her she "could get a divorce and $50,000 alimony."

Mr. Mooremeister, who testified Tuesday that he had discovered through a letter found after his wife's death that she had had an intimate affair with a Persian Prince while the Mooremeisters were visiting in Paris, was questioned yesterday concerning his actions on the night of the murder.

CHURCHES URGED TO SUPPORT
CONSCIENTIOUS OBJECTORS

Group Would Welcome as Citizens Those Averse Otherwise

By the Associated Press, EVANSTON, Ill., Feb. 28.—Maintaining that war is not only contrary to Christian ethics but to the ideas of the United States Government in signing the Pact of Paris, the third national study conference of the National Committee on Churches and Peace last night adopted a resolution calling on the churches to give moral support to individuals who hold conscientious objections against participation in military training or service.

The conference took the position that the United States should welcome as citizens all applicants for citizenship otherwise qualified who have conscientious objections to war.

In the opinion of the conference United States citizens who go abroad or who invest their capital in foreign countries should look to the governments of those countries for protection and should not expect the United States to intervene with force in their behalf.

The conference urged that the churches work for reorganization of the Citizens' Military Training Camps with emphasis on physical development and not on military training, and that they be transferred from the War Department to the Department of the Interior. The churches were further urged to oppose compulsory military training in schools and colleges.

The Rt. Rev. Ashton Oldham, Episcopal Bishop of Albany, N. Y., was re-elected chairman of the conference. Dr. M. Ashby Jones of St. Louis was made vice chairman.

DOG NAMED FOR AWARD FOR VALOR IS STOLEN

Babe, Which Saved Boy From des Peres Sewer, Taken Away in Auto.

Babe, a 4-year-old cross between a police dog and a collie, which was scheduled to receive the first honor medal to be awarded to animals which have performed outstanding acts of valor by the Humane Society of Missouri, was stolen from his owner Sunday, Douglas W. Robert, chairman of the Jury of Awards of the society, was informed yesterday.

Last Feb. 4 Jack de la Casa, 2-year-old son of Mrs. Violet de la Casa, 7321 Commonwealth avenue, fell into an overflow opening on top of the River des Peres sewer, three blocks from his home, and was rescued by Babe and a mongrel puppy. The former, owned by Mrs. Anthony La Duca, 7315 Commonwealth avenue, pulled him to the edge of the sewer opening, where the puppy seized his wrist. Babe then scrambled out, got a new grip and the two dogs pulled Jack out.

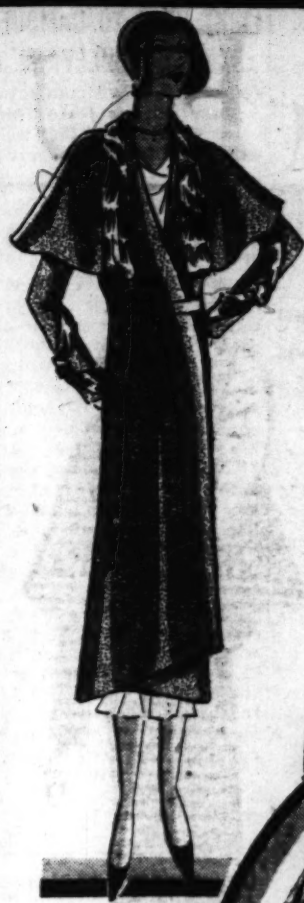

At a meeting of the Humane Society a resolution was adopted to award an honor medal "to animals which have performed outstanding acts of service, endurance, devotion or loyalty." One hundred of these medals have been ordered. They are to be cast in bronze, with the name of the society surrounded by laurel leaves on the face with a suitable inscription. The animal's name, together with the name of the owner, will be inscribed on the back.

The Jury of Awards, consisting of three members of the Humane Society, had invited Babe's owner to appear next Monday and relate the story of the rescue, although the awarding of the medal had virtually been decided upon, according to Robert.

Yesterday Robert received a telephone message from Mrs. La Duca. She told him that last Sunday, while Babe was playing in the front yard of her home, a touring car drove up in front and someone inside coaxed Babe into the rear seat. The car then drove rapidly away.

"POKER ALICE" TUBBS, OF OLD WEST, DIES

Woman Gambler Carried Revolver and Smoked Cigars as She Played.

By the Associated Press.

RAPID CITY, S. D., Feb. 28.—"Poker Alice" Tubbs, picturesque character of the old West, is dead. She was one of the last of a coterie of hard living, straight-shooting men and women who added the color to the old West. "Deadwood Dick," "Wild Bill" Hickok and "Calamity Jane" were others.

Poker Alice carried a pistol, smoked cigars and could swear; but in all of her 77 years of life she dealt from the top of the deck. Old age and complications, following an operation for gall stones, caused her death.

Poker Alice started as a faro dealer. A woman at the bar was a novelty that drew the black beads of the Wild West to the gambling table. So successful was she, that soon she was known, not just as a woman gambler, but as a winning gambler. Colorado, Nevada, Montana, the Dakotas—wherever there was pay dirt and men with nerve enough to lay it against the turn of a card—Poker Alice went. She took $1000 in one night's play at Silver City, N. M.

She was married three times. Her first husband was a mining engineer, Frank Duffield. Then she married W. G. Tubbs, a gambler who never could equal Poker Alice at the card table. Her third husband was George Huckert. When he died Poker Alice resumed the name of her second husband.

She was in the rush to the "free lands" of Oklahoma, and later skipped from place to place as the Federal Government warred on the gamblers.

Poker Alice grew old. Times changed. Railroads brought civilization to the raw West. Poker Alice retired to her little cabin in the Black Hills.

She was convicted of violating the prohibition law, but never served the sentence.

REICHSTAG COMMITTEE APPROVES YOUNG PLAN

Also Accepts American Agreement—Will Go to Reichstag Next Week.

By the Associated Press. BERLIN, Feb. 28.—The joint committee of the Reichstag today approved the Young reparations plan, thereby recommending its acceptance in the Reichstag.

The joint committee also approved the agreement on American reparations and the hotly-contested Polish separate reparations agreement. The Young plan bills will reach the Reichstag for their second reading March 6.

The expected split-up of the coalition parties was averted when joint committees of the Social Democrats, Democrats and People's party with 23 votes recommended the Young plan to the Reichstag. The Nationalist, Communists, Economic party and Christian Nationalists with 21 votes were in opposition.

Those abstaining were the Centrists and the Bavarian People's party, who insisted that the financial bills should be disposed of before the Young plan. As a sign of loyalty to the coalition, however, the Centrists proposed a vote of confidence for the Chancellor.

SCHOOLS SHOULD DEVOTE TIME TO LEADERS, WILBUR DECLARES

Secretary Says Too Much Attention Is Given to Backward Students.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Pushing the most prominent students forward instead of devoting so much time to keeping backward ones in line was advocated today by Secretary of the Interior Wilbur in addressing the first meeting of the Committee on the School Child of the White House conference on child health and protection.

The Interior Secretary asserted he had become an admirer of the goat and thinks educators would do well to follow that animal's example.

"In our thought for children," he said, "we have long adhered to the herd spirit of following the leader. We have been sheep. It is up to us in studying the vital problem of the child to change our tactics and follow the goat. Nobody ever saw a goat with his tail between his legs. He turns his front end to the world and fights. We must establish a new and aggressive policy for the future which above all else looks to the care of the body, mind, character and morals of the best individuals among our youngsters. For it is they who are destined to lead the rest."

CombinationsUNIFIED OPERATION OF PLAYGROUNDS URGEDCo-ordination of Facilities of School Board and City Park Bureau Suggested.The union of the recreational facilities of the Division of Parks and Recreation and those of the Board of Education under the direction of a trained recreation expert is advocated by the Parks and Playground Association, which will present the results of its city-wide recreational survey in a few days to the Recreation Committee of the Council of Civic Needs.

The plan contemplates, besides the creation of the position of superintendent of recreation, a central advisory board consisting of the Park Commissioner, a member of the Board of Education and three citizens to be agreed upon by them.It is pointed out that neither the Board of Education nor the Division of Parks and Recreation would surrender its facilities but would retain ownership and control. The administration, however, would be co-ordinated and there would be a common understanding as to budget and operation policy.The success of the plan would depend, the association thinks,

upon the man chosen as superintendent. His salary is not specified but those of his assistants would be $3000 a year, with increases of $500 annually until the sixth year. Degrees from accredited colleges and four years of special training would be required of applicants.JONES LAW PENALTIES
HELD NOT EXCESSIVEU. S. Circuit Court of Appeals Declares Act Constitutional
in This Respect.The United States Circuit Court of Appeals for the Eighth District, ruling in its first Jones law appeal yesterday, held that the maximum penalty of five years in prison and a $10,000 fine for prohibition violations was not a violation of the eighth amendment of the Constitution which prohibits excessive fines and cruel and unusual punishments.The case was that of William and Neal Brady who had beenfined and sentenced to jail for sale and possession of alcohol in a Des Moines drug store. A prohibition agent had testified that he saw a man buy alcohol in the store and a small quantity of alcohol was seized.The Appellate Court held that the claim of unconstitutionality was without merit, but reversed the District Court's decision on the ground that the alleged sale of alcohol was not proven by testimony of an actual purchaser.The opinion was written by District Judge Andrew Miller of North Dakota and concurred in by Judges Kimbrough Stone and A. K. Gar-

WE illustrate an unusually fine Berkey & Gay Bedroom Suite. These cuts indicate something of the beautiful veneering used on this furniture but they fall far short of doing it full justice. Straight grain walnut veneers are inlaid with satinwood, maple burl, walnut burl, crotch walnut on gumwood. Even the posts are veneered with maple burl. The fronts of the pieces present a striking effect with highly figured rare woods perfectly blended. Genuine mahogany dustproof interiors and other details of precise construction distinguish this Suite. Formerly priced at $422.00.
Now reduced to $225.00.

Also available in other combinations, and with twin beds.

FEBRUARY TRADE REPORTED BETTER IN U. S. REVIEW

Volume of Business Was Less Than in Same Month of Two Previous Years, Federal Reserve Bank Says.

MANY LABORERS PUT BACK TO WORK

Shoe and Boot Sales Were 140 Per Cent Over December's, but 20 Below January's, 1929.

Commerce and industry in the Eighth Federal Reserve District, of which St. Louis is headquarters, have shown a moderate improvement over January, it is declared in the monthly review of the Federal Reserve Bank. However, the bank points out, the volume of business was measurably below that of February, 1929, and February, 1928, this being true of both wholesale and retail distribution and of most manufacturing lines. Although merchandise inventories generally are of moderate proportions, the review goes on, there is a general disposition among merchants to defer replenishment of stocks until they have a better idea of "likely developments during the next few months."

Department of Labor investigations, it is reported, show that the employment situation in the district as a whole underwent moderate improvement in February, in contrast with the closing weeks of 1929 and the first part of January, but the number of idle workers was larger than at the corresponding time a year ago. Factories, which had been closed for inventories and repairs, have again hired many skilled and unskilled laborers, but there is a surplus of workers in a majority of industries.

Freight Traffic Declines. Railroad freight traffic in the district showed a considerable loss of volume as compared with February, 1929 and 1928, in all classes of freight and especially in merchandise, farm products and miscellaneous classifications, although cold weather stimulated coal and coke movement. The Terminal Railroad here interchanged 208,659 loaded cars in January, compared with 187,464 in December and 240,596 in January, 1929. January railroad passenger traffic in the district was about the same as in the corresponding period last year.

There has been much irregularity in commercial collections in the past month, the review says, with the average below that of the same period last year. Settlements on Feb. 1 with wholesalers in the chief cities were generally below expectations and the number of requests for extensions were more numerous than in recent months, the bank reports.

There were 170 commercial failures in the district in January, compared with 113 with $4,925,058 liabilities in December and 171 with $3,052,720 liabilities in January, 1929.

For the fifth successive month, says the review, distribution of automobiles in the district decreased in January, with sales then the smallest for any month in five years, except January and December, 1927, the condition being noticeable among cars of all grades.

Five reporting interests in the boot and shoe business showed January sales as 140 per cent greater than those of December, but 20 per cent smaller than in January, 1929. The demand for overshoes in January, doubtless due to the bad weather, was the best experienced in several seasons.

Another effect of the cold weather, the review relates, was that the sale of seasonal goods in the drug and chemical line, notably remedial drugs, alcohol and anti-freeze preparations for automobiles, was in considerable volume, but this increase was more than offset by decreases in the sale of staple goods and heavy chemicals used by manufacturers.

In the building industry, it was noted that permits for repair of buildings in St. Louis, amounting to $147,000 in January, were greater than for new structures. The figure for the latter being only $141,000 for 130 projects. There were 228 repair permits in January, 1929, there were 430 permits for new buildings and repairs, aggregating $1,918,000, principally for new work.

U. S. NARCOTIC CHIEF REMOVED IN SHAKEUP

L. G. Nutt Transferred to Prohibition Unit — Changes in New York.

By the Associated Press. WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The transfer of L. G. Nutt, in charge of the narcotic bureau of the prohibition unit to the position of a prohibition field supervisor and a general shakeup in the narcotic bureau were announced today by Assistant Secretary Lowman.

Responsibility for padding figures on narcotic arrests by Government squads in New York was laid to Nutt recently in a report by a New York grand jury. The figures were the total arrests made by New York police and Government agents but the deputy commissioner explained that he had sent them to Congress to show the amount of work being done in New York and not with any intention of creating a false impression.

Harry J. Anselinger, Assistant Commissioner of Prohibition, will temporarily take over Nutt's duties, effective tomorrow.

Joseph A. Manning, narcotic agent at Nashville, Tenn., has been sent to New York. Lowman announced, succeeding George W. Cunningham, narcotic agent, who will take Manning's post in Tennessee.

Several narcotic agents in New York have recently been sent to other posts.

In his statement announcing the shakeup, Lowman said that Nutt, who had headed the narcotic unit since 1920, had been an "active and zealous officer" and that he was expected to give "great service" in his new position.

Lowman added that he would direct his work as field supervisor from Washington.

Two Get 5 Years in Prison for Burglary and Holdup Negroes Plead Guilty in Separate Cases; Habitual Criminal Charge Against One Dismissed.

Willie Jones, alias Poley Taylor, 29 years old, a Negro, pleaded guilty to charges of second degree burglary and larceny and was sentenced to five years in the penitentiary by Circuit Judge Hamilton today.

A charge of being a habitual criminal was dismissed.

Ivy Ott, Negro, pleaded guilty to first degree robbery in the holdup of Mrs. Fanny Goldberg in her grocery store at 101 South Sixteenth street, Jan. 17, last, and also was sentenced to five years.

Grocer, Hidden, Kills Robber.

By the Associated Press. KANSAS CITY, Feb. 28.—Firing from a hiding place, R. E. Storms, grocer, fatally shot a robber who held up Mrs. Storms with an empty pistol and took $4.40 from the cash register here last night.

Storms became suspicious of a man who entered the store on the pretext of using a telephone. The grocer hid behind the icebox, expecting the man to return, and fired twice after the robber threatened Mrs. Storms.

The robber, identified by police as Robert E. Adcock, 28, former convict in the Kansas penitentiary, died while attempting to flee in his motor car. Adcock is survived by a widow and four children.

FREED IN KILLING OF INSPECTOR

Philadelphia. Wounded During Fight in Hotel Acquitted.

By the Associated Press. PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 28.—A verdict of acquittal in the case of Maj. W. Griffin Gribbel, charged with the murder of John Blackburn, a police inspector, was returned last night by a jury in Quarter Sessions Court. The jury deliberated six hours and 25 minutes.

After the acquittal, indictments charging Gribbel with voluntary and involuntary manslaughter were quashed on motion of the District Attorney. Blackburn was shot Jan. 17, 1929, when he led a detail of police to a room where Gribbel, a member of a prominent Philadelphia family, had barricaded himself. Another policeman and Gribbel were wounded in the battle to dislodge the Major.

Sends Indorsement of Beer Bill.

An indorsement of Congressman Dyer's bill to permit the manufacture and sale of beer of 1.75 per cent alcoholic content was sent to the Judiciary Committee of the House of Representatives yesterday by the Central Trades and Labor Union. The action followed adoption Sunday of a resolution favoring the measure. The indorsement asked for a hearing on Dyer's proposal at which the labor organization desires to be represented.

JURY DISAGREES IN MRS. BRANDON'S SUIT

Discharged After Three Hours of Deliberation in $574,165 Breach of Promise Case.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Feb. 23.—The jury in the $574,165 breach of promise suit brought by Mrs. Frances Brandon against George J. Gillespie, president of the Board of Water Supply, reported a disagreement after deliberating for three and a half hours, and was discharged late yesterday. Supreme Court Justice Louis A. Valente warned the jurors not to discuss the case.

Counsel for Mrs. Brandon immediately moved for a new trial. The court granted the motion and set April 19 as the date.

The jury retired at 2 p. m. after hearing testimony for more than a week, during which Mrs. Brandon charged the elderly defendant, who is personal counsel to Patrick Cardinal Hayes, with having cast her off after proposing marriage, stealing her lucrative legal practice and causing her Junior League acquaintances to avoid her.

The Scarlet Triangles.
She asserted that each of his visits to her during 1921 and 1922 were marked by scarlet triangles in her diary. Gillespie made denials of all her charges.

Earlier in the week, Justice Valente dismissed the counts of fraud, slander, libel and accounting of a joint law venture from the suit and, in his charge to the jury, said the only question to decide was whether Gillespie had asked Mrs. Brandon on Nov. 15, 1924, to marry him.

Opposing counsel waxed caustic in their summations. Mortimer Hays, attorney for Mrs. Brandon, who is an assistant corporation counsel, ridiculed Gillespie's account of how he had telephoned to the newspapers in December, 1924, to deny the published announcements of their engagement inserted by Mrs. Brandon.

"Can you imagine a man who had these relations with a woman, calling up newspapers and saying it isn't so?" he demanded. "If his relations with her were so formal, why didn't he call her and say: 'What's the big idea?'"

A Tissue of Fiction.
Theodore Klend, Gillespie's attorney, was a bit more rhetorical. He denounced Mrs. Brandon's whole story as "a tissue of fiction" and asserted her case was "the most dastardly, most rotten, most preposterous" ever brought into the Supreme Court.

"The absurdity of this woman's charge," he said, "is proved by her statement that my client poisoned his wife. Mrs. Gillespie died in Florida of natural causes while Mr. Gillespie was here in New York City. On her own statement that trumped-up charge was preposterous, but no more preposterous than all her charges."

TUBERCULOSIS SOCIETY PLANS TO ADVANCE PUPILS' CARE

Many Parents of Open School Children Unable to Do So, Chairman Says.

The St. Louis Tuberculosis and Health Society has arranged to advance car fare to open air school pupils whose parents cannot afford it. The average daily attendance at the three schools decreased to 229 last January from 300, in January, 1929, and the society's executive committee concluded this was due to the increase in children's carfare from three to five cents, effective last Dec. 30.

H. D. McBride, chairman of the committee, said many parents were unable to advance their children's fare. In the past the children have paid their fares and have been reimbursed by the Board of Education every five weeks. The society suggested the Board of Education buy 12-ride tickets for the older children, but the suggestion was not adopted because of the probability that absences from school would nullify the advantage gained in purchasing the tickets.

The Tuberculosis and Health Society, McBride said, is interested in making the open air schools available to all children who need such treatment. The society has spent about $1000 a month in supplying meals to pupils whose parents cannot pay for them.

AIR PICTURES TAKEN OF KERGUELEN ISLAND

Scientists of Mawson Party Also Obtain Large Biological Collections There.

By SIR DOUGLAS MAWSON, Commander of the British, Australian and New Zealand Antarctic Research Expedition.

(Copyright 1930.)

stories from the Mawson party or from special correspondents assigned to it will appear only in the Post-Dispatch in this city.

S. S. DISCOVERY, ANTARCTICA,
Feb. 22 (By Radio via London).
—By flights over the eastern portion of Kerguelen Island, Aviators Campbell and Douglas have been able greatly to assist in delineating
the inland features of the island and certain vaguely defined portions of its coast line.

They have at all times shown great skill in handling our plane and are most helpful in many departments of our work. Photographer Hurley made several flights with them, obtaining several aerial pictures of the mountains and waterways of the island's interesting topography.

In connection with the scientific work, several distant excursions
have been conducted by motorboat, on all of which large additions to our biological samples have been made. So great are these, in fact, that Prof. Johnston and his staff have been working from dawn to dark accumulating a splendid record of the life of this region.

We have visited three land stations of the British Transat of Venus expedition of 1914. But little evidence now remains of their occupation.

We also visited the ruins of the hut erected on Kerguelen Island by the German Gauss Antarctic expedition. The section on this island was then led by Prof. Drygalski.

Their building is now uninhabitable.

Nearly on the site of the former German magnetic observatory, Prof. Simmers redetermined the magnetic elements for comparison with the values ascertained 29 years ago.

The Discovery's engine has been overhauled and our coaling completed. Yesterday we weighed anchor at Jeanne D'Arc and picked up our scientific party at Observatory Bay, where it had been encamped for several days, investigating the little known Karlovyken Fjord.

The ship arrived at its Murray Island anchorage after a busy day trawling and charting dangers to shipping on the way down from Observatory Bay.

The health of the party has been remarkably good throughout the expedition, allowing Dr. Ingram more time for bacteriology and other work. He has been one of the most popular and helpful members of the party.

SEEKS HIGHER USED CAR DUTY ON BRITISH COLUMBIA IMPORTS

Ottawa Dealer Would Prevent Shipments From U. S. by Sales Agencies.

By the Associated Press.
OTTAWA, Feb. 22.—An application asking for an increase in the import duty on used cars on the ground that their importation into British Columbia from the United States had had an adverse effect on the automobile business there has been filed with the Tariff Advisory Board.

The application was filed by J.
R. Dixon of Ottawa, who said he did not wish to bar individuals from going to the states and buying cars for their own use, but merely wanted to check the importation of such cars by dealers for sale within Canada.

It was necessary to the prosperity of Canadian auto dealers, he said, that the difference in prices of used cars in Canada and the United States be equalized by a higher tariff.

SAYS U. S. SOLD SHIPS BELOW REPAIR COST

La Guardia Declares $19,000,000 Was Spent on Vessels Which Brought $16,000,000

WASHINGTON, Feb. 25.—Representative La Guardia (Rep.), New York, asserted in the House today that the United States Shipping Board had sold the Leviathan and 10 other ships for less than the Government had spent in repairing them.

He attacked the sale of ships to the J. W. Chapman Co., purchasers of the United States Lines, and also the sale of the Black Diamond and America-France Lines, saying that the shipping board had sold lines to operators on "shoe strings" so they could obtain mail contracts that would pay for the ships.

The New York said $19,000,000 had been spent in repairing the Leviathan and 10 other ships and that they had been sold for $16,000,000.

Woodruff Interrupts.

Representative Woodruff (Rep.), Michigan, interrupted to say that the sale of the President lines, operated on the West Coast, "smelled to high heaven."

"Well, if you think that contract smelled to high heaven," La Guardia retorted, "you will need a carload of disinfectant and a gas mask

when you come to the sale of the Black Diamond and America-France lines."

He then attacked the award of "juicy mail contracts that do not carry mail," as "not only subsidies but gratuities given to a few impetuous ship operators on the good side of the chairman of the Shipping Board."

"We're paying hundreds of thousands to companies operating old tubs that couldn't carry a first-class letter!" he ejaculated.

Says Board Has Felt.

La Guardia said President Henry Herberman of the American Export Steamship Co. was "one of the pets" of the Shipping Board and paid to the board a small amount and was granted ships already conditioned for less than the Government paid for conditioning them.

The Moor-McCormack Steamship Co., operators of the American Scenic Lines, was said by La Guardia to be operating "slow steamers, less than 10 knots an hour, on an all-parcels post basis."

"They receive $18,000 a year and don't carry a single first-class letter!" he shouted.

The New York said the Panama-Pacific lines were operating in "the juiciest and most profitable trade" on a "private protected basis," and that the Postmaster-General had created a mail route to Balboa in order to give the Panama-Pacific line a $400,000 subsidy.

The United Fruit Co., La Guardia said, was penalized and its lines broken up in order to help the Columbia line.

"The Columbia line, with their old ships and their slow ships get the mail contracts," he added.

SELLERS OF ADULTERATED ORANGE JUICE ARE FINED

George Tombras, who conducts orange juice stands in the Maryland Hotel, at Ninth and Pine streets and at Seventh and St. Charles streets, was fined $10 on each of three counts of possession of an adulterated product today by Judge Butler of the Court of Criminal Correction.

Samuel Zukor, a partner in the St. Charles street business, also was fined $10.

The charges were made following inspections by the State Food and Drug Department Jan. 28.

Analysis showed that the drinks had been diluted. The fines assessed were the minimum, as recommended by the prosecutor.

GETS YEAR IN JAIL, $500 FINE ON STATE LIQUOR CHARGE

Frank Follisley Found Guilty as Clayton; C. E. Gardner Sentenced to Three Months.

A sentence of one year in jail and a fine of $500 were imposed yesterday upon Frank Follisley, a laborer, 409 A St. George street, by a jury in Circuit Judge Mulloy's court at Clayton, after a two-day trial.

Follisley was charged with the manufacture of liquor.

Charles E. Gardner, a carter, tried jointly with Follisley, was sentenced to three months in jail, with a recommendation that he be paroled because of his age. He is 45 years old.

Both men were arrested Dec. 22, last, in a house at 1217 Sutter avenue, where Deputy Sheriffs and University City police found a 300-gallon still and destroyed 450 gallons of mash.

Also on the premises was a Negro, John Wilkins, who testified for the State, having pleaded guilty Monday and, received a three-months' jail sentence.

Follisley testified he had only stopped in to see Gardner when the raid was made and had no connection with the still. Gardner testified that he was merely visiting Follisley.

PENETRATES NEW PART OF CARLSBAD CAVERN

Frank E. Nicholson Explores Underground Rooms Never Visited Before.

By the Associated Press.
CARLSBAD, N. M., Feb. 28.—
Surrounded by fantastic creations of cave marble and flowstone, perhaps unseen by man previously,
during the 1,600,000 or more years
of formation, Frank Ernest Nicholson, explorer, has penetrated an unexplored room of the Carlsbad cavern.
It was the first exploration trip of unknown parts of the underground labyrinth to be done by this New York explorer, who with his party of 11 assistants, hopes to find the end of the cavern.
"It seems that every step brings a new revelation," Nicholson said here today, "and one feels himself to be an infinitesimal being in these gaping underground voids of blackness, surrounded by gigantic rock and limestone creations, magnificent, fantastic and startling,
which are disclosed as shafts of light from your hand lamp pierce
the darkness."

Two Miles Under Ground.
Two previous parties reached the entrance to this new room, but Nicholson was the first to explore its interior. The room is more than two miles under ground from the entrance. A tunnel branches off to the right from the main corridor, shortly before the big room is reached. This tunnel leads to the gorgeously arrayed king's palace, from which branches to the right the green room and to the left the queen's room.
From the queen's room Nicholson made his way through an unpathed tunnel into the immense unexplored room. He has explored most of the 23 miles of known parts of the cavern, which includes the big room, in which a 15-story office building could be built without touching the ceiling, to familiarize himself with the work done by previous exploring parties.
The party as an expedition, however, has not started concentrated work. Air currents are a major consideration with Nicholson in mapping out a program for directing his party. He will enter no tunnels the ends of which are known, but will confine himself to unexplored places with distinct air currents and follow those rooms and tunnels it possible to their ends.

170-Foot Drop.
The first explorers of the present known portion of the cavern had their thrill. There is a 170-foot drop into blackness from the mouth of the cave to the first level.
Jim White an dother early cowboy explorers made this original descent on a rope, wondering when they would reach bottom.
The next method of descent was an iron bucket which held two persons, and which was lowered
and raised by cable and windlass, operated with a gasoline engine.
Visitors' hair stood up when an overlapping of the cable and the windlass gave the bucket a momentary drop, or when the gasoline engine "acted up" and left the bucket suspended in midair for a few moments. The old guides used to call that 170 feet a "drop in the bucket."

Now a flight of 800 stairs reaches from the surface to the first level and the Government has made an appropriation to put in escalators to accommodate the tourists who increased from 1372
in 1924 to 80,000 in 1929.

GIRL STUDENT KILLED, ANOTHER HURT, WHEN PLANE CRASHES
Pilot of Colorado Ship Expresses Beller Craft Was Damaged by Cattle Rustlers' Bullets.
By the Associated Press.

WALSBERG, Colo., Feb. 28.—
The theory of a pilot that his plane was crippled by shots fired at it by cattle rustlers caused an investigation today into an airplane crash that resulted in the death to a high school girl and serious injuries to another on isolated Mosca Pass yesterday.
Miss Elaine Noble, 18 years old, a student at Centennial High School, Pueblo, was killed, and Miss Abra-Tallow, 16, also a student at the school, seriously injured. Harry Miller, pilot of the plane which was owned by the Alamosa Airways, Inc., suffered slight injuries.
Sheriff Harry J. Capps of Huerfano County will lead a posse to the scene of the crash to investigate the theory given by Miller, who told authorities that he felt two shots hit the plane, after which an alleron refused to function. The plane became unmanageable, he said, and crashed. Just before the accident, he said, he looked down to see two horsemen racing into the hills. Authorities said cattle rustlers have been active in the vicinity of the fatal accident, and that the plane might have been fired upon by rustlers who thought it contained men spying on them.

School at Wayne City Ill.) Burns.
Special to the Post-Dispatch.
MOUNT VERNON, Ill., Feb. 28.— Fire early this morning destroyed
the school building at Wayne City, 18 miles east of Mount Vernon.
Wayne City residents were extinguishing a fire at the telephone office when the school building three blocks away was reported burning.
It is thought the fire was caused by electric wires. The loss is estimated at $25,000.
German Witte Killed in Plane.
WITTENBERG, Germany, Feb.
28.—Frederich Koch-Wawara, globe trotter and writer on aviation, died today of injuries suffered in the crash of a plane in which he was making his final test
for a pilot's license yesterday.

MEETING OF NATIONAL FLOOD CONTROL CONGRESS OPPOSED

Mississippi Association Head Declares It Can Start "Only Unreasoning Agitation."

By the Associated Press.
MEMPHIS, Tenn., Feb. 28.—
Sharp objection to the proposed meeting here in May of the National Flood Control and Navigation Congress was voiced yesterday at a meeting of the Mississippi River Flood Control Association. The association, composed of 50 levee districts from Louisiana, Mississippi, Arkansas, Tennessee, Kentucky,
Missouri and Illinois, decided to enlist aid of Chambers of Commerce of New Orleans, Vicksburg, Helena, Dyersburg, Tenn., and Hickman, Ky., to put a "safety valve" on the Congress.
W. H. Dick, president of the association, said he would ask presidents of the chambers to request

the Memphis Chamber of Commerce to give them a statement of the scope and purpose of the Congress and discuss with the Memphis chamber "the advisability of holding such a congress."
Dick opposed the congress in an address on the grounds it would hamper Government stream control rather than promote it. Such a congress, he argued, "can only start unreasoning agitation for Federal control of streams everywhere without preliminary consideration given individual cases."
Dick said such a congress would be composed of men who did not realize that floods, power, irrigation and navigation must be considered in flood control plans and could only arouse agitation that "would put Congressmen in an impossible position."
The association adopted a resolution condemning the Jewish family plug flood control plan as unsound and retarding growth of the South and demanding a new plan.

GOVERNOR PRAISES IRA COOPER

Caulfield Commends Detective Sergeant for Finding Bookmaker Held for Ransom.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 27.—Ira S. Cooper, Negro Detective Sergeant of St. Louis, who discovered the St. Louis County house where Joseph Hoffman, a bookmaker, was held for ransom, and directed his rescue last Friday, was commended by Gov. Caulfield in a letter to Cooper yesterday.

"I have read with a great deal of interest the newspaper accounts of the splendid piece of work you did recently in rescuing a citizen from a band of kidnapers, and I am glad to publicly commend you for your meritorious service," the Governor wrote.

"I am told that your service in this case is in accord with your fine record of many years as a member of the Police Department. I am proud to know that St. Louis has in its Police Department men who are devoted to the public service and so capable as you have demonstrated yourself to be."

NEW METHODIST POLICY ON ELDERS ADVOCATED

St. Louis Group of Southern Division of Church Have Plan to Reduce Number.

Presiding elders of the Fifth Episcopal District, Methodist Episcopal Church, South, will call upon the next general conference to change the constitutional law of the church so as to reduce the number of elders and increase the size of the territory assigned to each elder.

The sentiment of the elders, expressed through a resolution adopted at their mid-year session of the Southern Division, held at the Century Church, Sixteenth and Pine streets, yesterday, will be conveyed to the conference when it meets in Dallas, Tex., next May.

Adoption of the elders reflects a growing sentiment throughout the entire church for a change in the system of elders' territories, the Rev. W. E. Brown, presiding elder at St. Louis, said. The change is designed to reduce the overhead expense of church administration, he said, and pointed out that paved roads and the motor car enable large territories to be covered easily. The resolution calls for a minimum of 50 churches for each elder and no maximum. The present maximum is 40.

Plans were outlined for a State-wide evangelistic program which will open next Dec. 1 and continue until Easter.

Dates of the district conferences in the St. Louis conference were announced as follows: Farmington conference, at De Soto, March 24 and 25; Cape Girardeau conference, at Sikeston, March 26; Poplar Bluff conference, at Holcomb, March 26 and 27; West Plains conference, at St. James, March 27 and 28, and the St. Louis conference, at Kirkwood, on April 28.

Bishop W. F. McMurry, president of Central College, who presided, announced several scholarship awards to the school for rural ministers at Southern Methodist University, Dallas, Tex. The educational work of the church was outlined and reports were tendered of the activities of the various churches in the district.

IMPOSTOR WHO DUPED HARDING BEGINS A TERM IN PRISON

Samuel Weinberg Introduced "Princess Fatima" to President; Had Been Sought for Fraud.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—An international impostor, who once obtained the confidence of a President of the United States, was taken into custody yesterday after being sought for almost a year to begin a prison term for practicing law without a license.

Samuel Weinberg, alias Lieut. Sterling G. Wyman, was arrested as he walked down Broadway, unshaven, a man in a newspaper under his arm and in his pocket two allegedly certified and canceled checks for $1,500,000, which he said he showed to people to indicate the extent of his financial operations.

Taken before the Court of Special Sessions, Weinberg was ordered taken immediately to the penitentiary to begin serving his six months to three years' sentence. He has served several previous sentences.

In 1922, Weinberg, as Lieut. Wyman, convinced President Harding that he was a naval lieutenant and personal representative of "Princess Fatima," a lady who represented herself to be a Turkish Princess, but wasn't. He obtained an audience for her with the President.

EX-PROSECUTOR FOUND GUILTY
IN JULIAN CRASH LOSER APPEAL

Asa Keyes of Los Angeles Must Serve One to 14 Years for Taking Bribe.

By the Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 28.—Asa Keyes, former District Attorney of Los Angeles County, and E. H. Rosenberg yesterday lost their appeal to the State Supreme Court for a new trial on the bribery charges which resulted in their conviction in Los Angeles Superior Court. The District Court of Appeals at Los Angeles last month upheld the conviction and sentence of Keyes and Rosenberg, former Julian Petroleum Corporation officer, and denied Keyes a rehearing. Keyes is in Los Angeles County jail.

Keyes and Rosenberg were sentenced to one to 14 years in San Quentin prison for a bribery conspiracy in connection with the stock over-issue and collapse of the Julian Corporation and the subsequent law prosecution of the principals.

A full description of the expedition, which was under the direction of the Field Museum of Natural History in Chicago, will be published in next Sunday's magazine section of the Post-Dispatch, illustrated with what Williamson describes "as the most beautiful undersea picture ever taken." $148,789 DAMAGES ADDED
FOR AIR BRAKE INFRINGEMENT

U. S. Appellate Court Increases Award to Nels A. Christensen and Associates.

CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—The United States Circuit Court of Appeals has entered a decree adding $148,789 to the damages of $111,961 awarded by the Federal District Court of Eastern Wisconsin to Nels A. Christensen and others in a suit against the National Brake & Electric Co., charging patent infringement.

The finding was based on cross appeals brought by both parties from the decision of the Federal District Court which had made its findings a year ago, last January.

The Circuit Court, in adding nearly $150,000 to the judgment, based its action principally on the fact that interest should have been figured for a 10-year period between 1904 and 1916 during which time the defendant company infringed an air brake patent held by Christensen and the other plaintiffs.

The suit's history dates back to the last century. Christensen after inventing the air brake, organized a company which later failed. Then the National Brake & Electric Co., a subsidiary of the Westinghouse Co., began the manufacture of an air brake designed after Christensen's. The company contended its brake was the product of its own experiments and engineering.

$66,000,000 PUT ON UTILITY FIRM'S BOOKS OVERNIGHT

Properties of American Gas Subsidiaries, Valued at $72,000,000, Transferred to Appalachian at Increase

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—The Federal Trade Commission has heard testimony that in the formation of the Appalachian Electric Power Co. there was an overnight "write up" of $66,000,000 in capital assets.

Properties held by companies controlled by the American Gas & Electric Co. and valued on the books of these subsidiaries at $72,000,000 were transferred on March 31, 1926, A. R. Colbert, commission accountant, testified, to the newly created Appalachian Electric Power Co. and placed on the latter's books at about $119,000,000.

Handled by an intermediary. The transaction, he said, was not handled direct but through L. Boyd Hatch of New York, an intermediary who, Colbert explained, appeared to have had no financial interest in the deal. These properties, the accountant added, cost the American Gas & Electric Co. $62,690,000, but that company received for them from the newly formed subsidiary securities valued at $112,000,000 for a profit of nearly $50,000,000.

The Appalachian company's properties, he said, served 250 communities, including Roanoke, Lynchburg and Pulaski, Va.; Huntington, Charleston, Logan and Blue Field, W. Va.; Ashland, Hazard and Pikeville, Ky., and Kingsport, Tenn.

Book Value of $31,000,000.

The accountant said he concluded from the figures that all the common and a considerable portion of the preferred stock of the Appalachian company were issued against the appreciation of capital resulting from the "write-up." The common stock, he said, had a book value of $31,000,000 in 1926, including accumulated surplus, which by 1928 increased it to $44,000,000. On this, a single dividend of $10,000 was issued in 1928, he testified. However, he said, this stock cost the American Gas, which owned all of it, only $2,588,607 and the 1 per cent dividend resulted in an earning of 13.7 per cent on the holding company's investment.

Colbert gave the opinion, also, that "write-ups" had taken place during the period the predecessor companies were under American Gas control.

As an example, he said, the Kentucky & West Virginia Power Co., one of the concerns in the deal, reported to the Kentucky Tax Commission in March 1928 assets with a book value of $14,500,000, with an explanation that the actual value was only $6,000,000. The company turned over to the Appalachian, at the latter's creation, all but $1,000,000 of its assets, he said, but these were "written up" immediately to $7,000,000, in spite of the report to the Kentucky Commission.

HOOVER'S HAITI COMMISSION REACHES PORT-AU-PRINCE

Greeted by Orderly Crowds, Although Fight and 10 Arrests Precede Arrival.

By the Associated Press.
PORT-AU-PRINCE, Haiti, Feb. 23.—The Hoover commission which will investigate the situation in Haiti, reached Port-Au-Prince today and was greeted by large, orderly crowds.

A fight developed last night in which a number of persons were injured and 15 arrests were made by the Gards.

A crowd estimated at 1500 assembled at 10 o'clock in front of the darkened Council of State Building, stirred by reports that the council was in secret session to re-elect President Borno or select Minister de Jean or Charles Pombrun, whose appointment as a member of the Council of State was revoked yesterday.

Assurances by Gards officers failed to disperse the crowd and a fight developed with knives and clubs. The Gards stabbed one man and another's hand was broken by a club. The crowd then dispersed and the city became quiet.

La Presse appeals to the Commission's sense of justice for the withdrawal of United States Marines.

Loose Courage Twice as Ship's Sail.
By the Associated Press.
JERSEY CITY, N. J., Feb. 23.—After two attempts, Mrs. Kate Soder has decided not to try again to make a trip to Europe. A week ago after family good-bys at the steamship Bremen's pier, she departed, explaining she could not leave her husband and children. There were good-bys again as the steamship Berlin was preparing to sail yesterday. Mrs. Soder hurried down the gangplank as the whistles blew.

Another Roman Church Robbed.
By the Associated Press.

ROME, Feb. 23.—All churches in Rome today held expiatory services because of sacrilege committed during the night at the Church of St. Mary Major. Someone broke open the tabernacle, stole the gold chalice and threw the sacred particles in it into the street. The theft is one of a series of robberies of churches in Rome.

NEGRO MAID SUPPORTS CLAIM OF WOMAN AS BRIGGS' WIDOW

Testifies Cartoonist Asked Her to Witness His Taking Maggie Toohay as His Wife.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Virginia Hammond, Negro maid, who said she had been in the employ of Clare Briggs, cartoonist, seven years, was a witness yesterday at the hearing before Surrogate O'Brien, to establish the status of Mrs. Marie C. Briggs, who says she is the artist's widow. Should Surrogate O'Brien decide that Mrs. Briggs was the common law wife she will be able to contest the will in which Mrs. Ruth Owen Briggs, the divorced wife, is named as beneficiary and claim her share as the widow.

"Servants should not gossip, nor snoop, nor worry about whether the master and madam are married. They are supposed to do the work and that's what I did," said Virginia. "But last August, Mrs. Briggs, whom Mr. Briggs always called Maggie, and I rode to Sun Ridge, his farm in New Jersey, in a hired car.

"Pretty soon Mr. Briggs came in and took Mrs. Briggs in his arms. He turned to me and said, 'Virginia, I want you to be a witness that I am taking Maggie to be my wife.' I answered, 'Yes, sir,' and went downstairs. Later he introduced her to Minnie Schultz, the cook, and her husband."

Several other witnesses, including Theodore J. Lesser, who was the cartoonist's attorney, were called. They all corroborated the statement that Marie C. Briggs, or Maggie Toohay, as the friends called her, had been recognized as Mrs. Briggs.

In rebuttal, counsel for Mrs. Ruth Owen Briggs, called Reuben A. Lewis Jr., a son-in-law of Briggs. He denied that Miss Toohay had been recognized as the artist's wife, but admitted he had only visited his father-in-law twice since August, 1929.

NEW YORK POLICE BREAK UP COMMUNIST DEMONSTRATION Crowd Had Assembled at City Hall to Urge Aid for Unemployed.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Several hundred communists who started a demonstration for the unemployed in front of the city hall were driven out of the park by police yesterday. The square was filled with office workers and others strolling about during their lunch hour when the demonstration started. The communists, carrying banners, started marching along Park Row. Police had been directed to keep them out of the park.

The demonstration had been advertised by circulars calling on the unemployed to assemble at the city hall and demand that the city government, "which can raise the salaries of Mayor Walker and others by tens of thousands of dollars," immediately find work for the jobless, and that free rent, food and clothing be furnished for the unemployed and their children.

Fireproof Gasoline Tank Test.
LANGLEY FIELD, Va., Feb. 28.—Whether or not aeronautical engineers have perfected a fireproof gasoline tank for use in planes is a question that may have been answered this morning. The tank of a giant Keystone bomber, practically filled with gas, was the only portion of the ship saved early today aside from the metal parts, when the plane caught fire in some unexplained manner. This ship was one of 18 selected for a flight to the West Coast and cost between $75,000 and $80,000.

PROCTER & GAMBLE EMPLOYEES GET $800,000 IN STOCK

St. Louis Branch Participates for First Time Tomorrow in Profit-Sharing Plan.
More than 300 employees of the local branch of Procter & Gamble, soap manufacturers, will participate for the first time tomorrow in the annual distribution of $14,000,000 in profit-sharing plan. Approximately $800,000 in stock will be distributed to workers in various plants and offices in the United States and Canada, according to an announcement made today.

The St. Louis plant of Procter & Gamble was purchased from the William Walke Co. in 1915, but the employees were not officially recognized until July, 1929. Since that date employees here have participated in the complete Procter & Gamble program which includes, in addition to the profit-sharing plan, warranted year-round employment, a pension and sick benefit insurance.

The plant and offices here will be closed tomorrow to allow workers and their families to meet at the Grand-Farman Theater for a celebration and entertainment. Under the profit-sharing plan, employees are assisted, proportionately to their salaries, in purchasing stock in the concern.

U. S. WITHDRAWAL
AT NAVAL PARLEY
URGED IN SENATEMcKellar of Tennessee Says
There Is No Opportunity
Even for Limitation of Armaments.'OTHER NATIONS
SEEKING INCREASE'He Terms French Crisis a Fortunate Circumstance, Enabling Experts to Make
'Graceful' Departure.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—The recall of the American delegation from the London naval arms conference was proposed in the Senate
today by Senator McKellar (Dem.), Tennessee, who asserted there was no opportunity for naval reduction.
The Tennessee Senator insisted that "in the present state of mind of the conferees representing the other four Powers, it is clear there is no possibility of disarmament or of a reduction of armaments, or even a limitation of armaments." McKellar's suggestion started the first debate in the Senate on the London conference since it convened early in January.

Senator Vandenberg (Rep.),
Michigan, replied to the Ten-nesseean, saying: "I sympathize with a great many things the Senator
from Tennessee has said, but I believe he has given a premature American pronouncement based upon inadequate and insufficient information. Such contributions of advice to our delegates abroad do far more harm than good."

"Incessant, Not Decrease."
Continuing, McKellar said that
so far as he could judge Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy,
instead of seeking a reduction of all armaments, were each "laboriously and diligently seeking to increase their armaments, or to retain naval superiority over us."

"Great Britain's refusal to consider the Rodney matter, and the high limit that she sets upon
cruiser tonnage and her unwilling-ness to regard other nations' building the kind of cruisers suitable to
other nations' needs indicate her
attitude quite fully," he asserted.

"On the other hand, France apparently hopes to attain superiority
over Great Britain on the submarine issue and manifestly is seeking superiority over Italy in naval armaments."

"Of course, Japan is holding out
for all she can get. In other words, it seems to me that our delegates to the conference are the only ones that are really seeking
a reduction of limitation of arms.
All others are fighting for increases
or superiority."

"French Crisis Fortunate."
"In view of the high limit set
by Great Britain for cruisers, her refusal either to sink the Rodney
or permit the United States to build one of similar kind, her published refusal to consider her limit already suggested as between her
and the United States, unless France lessens her demands; in view of the fact that France is not going to agree to anything unless
the United States agrees to come
to her protection in the Mediterranean; in view of the perfectly apparent desire upon the part of
the other four nations either to maintain their superiority or to increase their naval strength; in view of the enormous increase of our own naval construction provided for in the proposed agreement,
it seems to me that it is very fortunate that there have been no
changes in the French Government
which will give all the nations
concerned a chance to withdraw gracefully from the conference."

"I hope President Hoover will advise our delegates to come home.
If we do not need a great navy,
let us decide that question ourselves. Later on a conference may be held which may bring about a
real reduction of naval armament."

LEIPZIG, Feb. 28.—The Supreme Court yesterday quashed the acquittal of Georg Gross in the
blasphemy case involving a painting of Jesus on the cross wearing
a gas mask and a pair of Wellington boots.

The Court sent the case for
retrial on the ground that pictorial representations may be as offensive as the spoken word and
that "the crucifixion, which is the most holy symbol to millions, must
not be brought into contempt."
"Exceptions as to a scene of considerations of art cannot stand,"
the court said. "Art has its limits
and must pay due regard to the feelings of others."

A lower court held that the
painting was of high artistic quality
and in no way attempted to ridicule
the church.

sian, saying: "I sympathize with
a great many things the Senator
from Tennessee has said, but I believe he has given a premature
American pronouncement, based
upon inadequate and insufficient information. Such contributions of advice to our delegates abroad do no more harm than good."

"Increase, Not Decrease."
Continuing, McKellar said that
so far as he could judge Great Britain, Japan, France and Italy,
instead of seeking a reduction of
all armaments, were each "laboriously and diligently seeking to increase their armaments, or to retain naval superiority over us."

"Great Britain's refusal to consider the Rodney matter, and the
high limit that she sets upon
cruiser tonnage and her unwilling-
ness to regard other nations' build-
other nations' needs indicate her
attitude quite fully," he asserted.

"On the other hand, France apparently hopes to attain superiority
over Great Britain by the subsequent issue and manifestly is seeking superiority over Italy in naval
armaments."

"Of course, Japan is holding out
for all she can get. In other
words, it seems to me that our
delegates to the conference are the
only ones that are really seeking
a reduction of limitation of arms.
All others are fighting for increases
or superiority."

"French Crisis Fortunate."
"In view of the high limit set
by Great Britain for cruisers, her
refusal either to sink the Rodney
or permit the United States to
build one of similar kind, her publicly stated refusal to consider her limit
already suggested as between her
and the United States unless France lessens her demands; in
view of the fact that France is not going to agree to anything unless
the United States agrees to come
to her protection in the Mediterranean; in view of the perfectly
apparent desire upon the part of
the other four nations either to increase their superiority or to maintain their superiority in view of the enormous increase of
our own naval construction provided for in the proposed agreement,
it seems to me that it is very fortunate that there have been two
changes in the French Government
which will give all the nations
concerned a chance to withdraw graciously from the conference."

"I hope President Hoover will
advise our delegates to come home.
If we do not need a great navy,
let us decide that question ourselves. Later on a conference may
be held which may bring about a
real reduction of naval armament."

PAINTER OF CRUCIFIXION SCENE
TO BE RETRIED FOR BLOODY German Supreme Court Holds Cansas May Be as Offensive as Spoken Word.

LEIPZIG, Feb. 28.—The Supreme Court yesterday quashed the
acquittal of Georg Gross in the
blasphemy case involving a painting of Jesus on the cross wearing
a gas mask and a pair of Wellington boots.

The Court sent the case for
retrial on the ground that pictorial representations may be as
offensive as the spoken word and
that "the crucifixion, which is the
most holy symbol to millions, must
not be brought into contempt."

"Exceptions on the score of considerations of art cannot stand,"
the court said. "Art has its limits
and must pay due regard to the
feelings of others."

A lower court held that the
painting was of high artistic quality
and in no way attempted to ridicule
the church.

POLICE QUELL REPUBLICAN DEMONSTRATION IN MADRID

With Sabers Disperse Crowds Shouting
"Death to King!" After Ex-Premier Sanchez Guerra Declares Against Monarch.

By the Associated Press.

MADRID, Feb. 28.—Metropolitan Spain today was swept by a tide of republicanism and anti-monarchical demonstrations after a public pronouncement by Jose Antonio Sanchez Guerra, former Premier and bitter enemy of the late dictatorship, in which he said: "I will never again serve the present King."

Thousands of persons gathered in the streets of Madrid and fought with police who attempted to seize their red banners and silence their shouts of "Down with the King!"
and "Death to the King!" Ten civilians were arrested and one man was injured seriously in a clash outside the theater in which the former Premier's speech was delivered.

Gen. Damaso Berenguer, the new Spanish Premier, announced that henceforth all public political speeches would be prohibited.
Many of the most prominent leaders of all parties had been preparing public pronouncements, but this decision apparently upsets their plans.

Martial Law Possible.
It is thought the Government will proclaim martial law if necessary to maintain order. That was the construction placed upon the following declaration of Gen. Marzo, Minister of the Interior:

"The Government could not have been more tolerant than it has been. I am most pained that that tolerance is being abused by the elements causing disturbances. This obliges the Government to take whatever energetic measures are necessary. Public peace must be preserved."

"The disorders which have taken place," Premier Berenguer told newspaper men, "although lacking in importance, serve to demonstrate that the Government cannot permit, all of a sudden, the spread of political propaganda. We must, on the contrary, put on the brakes, because certain elements which have nothing to do whatever with politics, take advantage of these opportunities to further their own
ends."

Speech Creates Furore.
Sanchez Guerra's speech had been widely advertised.

Republicans expected him to expound their cause. The Zarzuela Theater was packed and 2000 persons stood outside. The statesman was applauded for several minutes
when he ascended the rostrum.

To the stanchest of the republican adherents the speech which followed was a disappointment. The former Premier did not say he hoped for a republic. He did say that the movement for a republic in Spain was stronger than ever and that the country soon might adopt that form of government.

He denied that he had become a Republican personally, and then in his peroration declared: "I shall end with the words of the Duke of Gandia, chief of the palace of the Emperor Charles V, who when the Empress Isabella died, said: 'I shall never more serve those whom the worms can eat.'"

His words brought a storm of acclamation, mingled with cries of disapprobation. Outside the crowd accepted his speech as a pronouncement for a republic and when he left the building he was greeted joyfully.

Police Sabers Scatter Students.
Mounted police with drawn sa-bers scattered a crowd of several hundred students, who, excited by the speech, started to parade toward the royal palace, shouting:
"Down with the monarchy! Long live the republic!"

Some of the stores hurriedly closed their doors and lowered steel shutters when they heard the students approach but the demonstration was short-lived and no rioting developed. Dispersed in an instant the crowd gathered in another. Conflicts between the demonstrators and police followed until far into the night.

Sanchez Guerra in his speech said the present King, Alfonso XIII, instead of using his opportunity to become Spain's great ruler, had acquiesced in the Primo De Rivera dictatorship, to the consequent detriment of Spain. He demanded that Parliament be restored and fix responsibility for Spain's recent dictatorship, and demanded the form of Spain's future government—all within the law and without violence or rebellion.

Sanchez Guerra became conservative Premier in March, 1922. In the latter part of 1928 he led an abortive revolt against the dictatorship of Primo De Rivera for which he was tried for sedition. He was imprisoned on a battleship, but recently was pardoned by the new Premier, Gen. Damaso Berenguer.

Fights in Barcelona When Crowd Seeks Copies of Speech.
By the Associated Press.

BARCELONA, Feb. 28.—Cries of "Down with the Government" were heard in a demonstration here last night. A crowd of 1000 persons stormed a newspaper vendor seeking copies of extra editions in which former Premier Sanchez Guerra's speech at Madrid was published. Fights resulted, the police intervening and arresting two persons. Then the crowd turned on the police and demanded release of those detained. The police arrested three more while the crowd shouted epithets and denunciations of the Government.

most of the women wore large fur
neckpieces.

Only the women whose husbands
had been presented to King George
were invited to be received by the Queen.

Among the other Americans received were Mrs. Dwight W. Morrow and Mrs. Hugh R. Wilson.
Others were Countess Rogers de
Villanova; Italy, Mme. Takarabe;
Japan, Mme. Colban, wife of the League of Nations observer. In the British delegation were Mrs. Arthur Henderson, Mrs. Wedgwood
Benn and Mrs. A. V. Alexander.

QUEEN GREET'S WIVES OF PARLEY DELEGATES

Receives 40 at Buckingham Palace, Including 17
Americans.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Feb. 27.—The wives of 17 American naval delegates and advisers were received yesterday afternoon at the Buckingham Palace by Queen Mary. They found huge, cherry fires blazing in all the rooms and sunshine streaming through the windows against the rich furnishings.

Forty women in all, from the five delegations, were received by the Queen. They were ushered first into the green room, where gentlemen of the court gave instructions on the form of presentation. Contrary to the rule of usual courts, the women were told to leave both gloves off.

The American delegation was first ushered into the Queen's presence, and Mrs. Henry L. Stimson was presented by the Lord Chamberlain. Mrs. Stimson then presented each woman accompanying her, beginning with Mrs.
Charles G. Dawes. Each curtsied and shook hands with the Queen.
The Queen, gowned in rich blue brocade, greeted each cordially.
The visitors waited for the Queen to speak first. She chatted at length with Mrs. Arthur Page about her father-in-law, Walter Hines Page, formerly Ambassador to the Court of St. James's.

After the Americans came the British, headed by Isabel MacDonald. Later the whole party advanced to the white room, where the Queen chatted for half an hour with the visitors.

The women were interested by the Queen's departure through a concealed mirrored door, to which was attached a console table, that swung silently open.

Mrs. Stimson wore a golden brown velvet costume and Mrs.
Dawes royal blue velvet. Velvet appeared a favorite material and

most of the women wore large fur
neckpieces.

Only the women whose husbands
had been presented to King George
were invited to be received by the Queen.

Among the other Americans re-
row and Mrs. Hugh R. Wilson.
Others were Countess Rogers de
Villanova; Italy, Mme. Takarabe;
Japan, Mme. Colban, wife of the League of Nations observer. In the British delegation were Mrs. Ar-
thur Henderson, Mrs. Wedgwood
Benn and Mrs. A. V. Alexander.

LAST HEARING HELD ON BUDGET, BUT WITH NO SUGGESTIONS

The third and final public hearing on the municipal budget for the coming fiscal year was held in the Mayor's office today, in accordance with charter provisions.
Some of the suggestions were heard on the budget regarding the appropriation of funds.

Two men dropped in looking for city jobs and two appeared as spectators. Acting Mayor Neun, Comptroller Nolte and Acting President Neumann of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, waited for 20 minutes and adjusted.

At the previous hearings, the only suggestions were for increased appropriations for the Board of Children's Guardians, the Psychiatric Clinic, the summer park concerts and a street-widening project.
The Board of Estimate will present the budget to the Board of Aldermen early in April.

Heads New York Public Service.
NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Gov.
Koehne today announced the appointment of Milo R. Mattheis as chairman of the State Public Service Commission to succeed William A. Prendergast, Mattheis, a native of Hinkley, Ill., and formerly professor of mathematics and economy
at Mount Morris College, Mount Morris, Ill., is regarded as an expert on public utility regulations.

He was appointed by Gov. Hughes in 1927 as a member of the original Public Service Commission and served for several years. He was a member of the advisory board on railroad valuation of the Interstate Commerce Commission from 1915 to 1918.

JURISTS DISCUSS HARMONIZING LEAGUE AND KELLOGG TREATY

Deliberations Centered Around Proposed Changes in Article
XIII of Covenant.

By the Associated Press.

GENEVA, Feb. 28.—The committee of jurists which is attempting to harmonize the League of Nations covenant with the Kellogg pact today centered its deliberations on an amendment to paragraph 4, article XIII of the covenant. The amendment, proposed by Pierre Cot of France, follows:
"Members of the League agree that they will carry out in good faith any award that may be rendered and that they will not undertake any action against any member of the League which complies therewith."

"If the parties are unable in their individual action to insure carrying out the award, the Council shall, by unanimous vote of the members thereof other than representatives of one or more of the parties, propose what measures of all kinds should be taken to give effect thereto."

After a long discussion this afternoon the French amendment to Article XIII and other proposals were referred to a subcommittee for a compromise. The committee then adopted an amendment to Article XII, drafted by a subcommittee, as follows:
"Members of the league agree that if there should arise between them any dispute likely to lead to rupture they will have recourse for its settlement to pacific means only."

"If the disagreement continues,
the dispute shall be submitted either to arbitration or judicial settlement or to inquiry of the council. Members of the league agree that they will in no case recourse to war for the solution of their dispute."

TARDIEU HOPES TO FORM
NEW CABINET BY MONDAY

Briand Accepts Office of Foreign Minister, Only Post Actually Filled.

By the Associated Press.

PARIS, Feb. 28.—Although difficulties in the way of formation of a strong ministry became slowly
more apparent today, Andre Tardieu, Premier-designate, continued his consultations.

Tardieu said he expected to have a Cabinet at least by Monday and would appoint the members of Deputies with his ministerial declaration on Thursday. He said he hoped to send a delegation to the London naval conference shortly afterward.

Only one place in the Cabinet
actually had been filled. Tardieu Briand last night accepted the post of Foreign Minister.

Tardieu this morning again followed the advice of Raymond Poincare as to how to proceed in formation of a Government. It was thought Poincare told him to proceed with his slow methodical cavass of the various party leaders and their subordinates. The method has proved the resentment of the Socialists, who met this morning and passed a resolution describing Tardieu's delay as a "scandalous comedy." The Socialists charged that by waiting Tar-dieu hoped to bring public opinion to bear on the parties themselves,
as a method of obtaining collaboration. Tardieu visited President Doumergue today and formally assured him he would form a ministry.

MISSOURI U. CURATORS
ASKED TO MAKE INQUIRY
Kansas City Rabbi Threatens Appeal to Governor Unless "Academic Freedom" Is Looked Into.

By the Associated Press.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Feb. 28.—
Consideration of a formal investigation into the faculty of the University of Missouri will be discussed here by the Board of Curators within the next two weeks, it was announced today by James E. Goodrich, president of the board.

The question will be considered in connection with a letter by Rabbi Samuel S. Mayerberg of Kansas City, demanding that the board
"proceed without hesitation to examine the condition of the faculty of the University of Missouri." Dr.
Mayerberg's letter, addressed to the board, was written following the recent resignation of Dr. James Harvey Rogers, professor of economics. In resigning, Dr. Rogers said he thought freedom of research had been curtailed at the university.

Prof. Max Meyer, head of the psychology department, recently returned to his post after a year's suspension, following circulation of a sex questionnaire among the student body.

"I have spoken personally to many members of the faculty, and they have told me that many of the men are in mental terror lest some of their scientific presentations bring them to the academic quillotine," Dr. Mayerberg said in his letter. Continuing, Dr. Mayer-berg said, unless immediate steps were taken "to discover the truth of this whole situation," he would appeal to Gov. Caulfield to appoint a commission of independent citizens to investigate.

CANADA EXPECTED TO STOP SAILING OF LIQUOR SHIPS

Liberal Party Votes to Support Bill Refusing Clearance to Wet Cargoes for U. S.

BIG MAJORITY LIKELY IN PARLIAMENT

Measure Will Cost Dominion $20,000,000 a Year in Excises—Intended as Friendly Gesture.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

OTTAWA, Can., Feb. 28.—The Liberal party in caucus yesterday decided to support legislation to bar ship clearances for liquor cargoes to the United States. It is expected that a bill to this effect will be introduced in the present session of Parliament.

The Prime Minister, Mackenzie
King, it is understood, made a vigorous speech denouncing the liquor running traffic, and even the Quebec members, who have hitherto been lukewarm on all proposals to prohibit clearances, voted for the measure.

When Parliament is asked to pass the necessary legislation,
which it is expected will drastically curb exports of Canadian liquor to the United States, a big majority is expected for the bill. The Liberals will support it almost solidly.
The Liberal-Progressives will also vote solidly and the Farmer group will endorse the proposals.

The Opposition is expected to divide on the question.

It will cost Canada over $20-000,000 in excise taxes alone to prohibit this traffic. The exports of whiskey from Canada to the United States in the calendar year ending December, 1929, were $17-565,165, with $2,786,591 worth of ale and beer. Those were the recorded exports do not include the liquor smuggled over without export record.

At present the Government has no power to refuse clearances so long as the excise duty is paid.

The new legislation is interpreted as a friendly gesture by Canada to the United States. Canada will then be entirely clear of the whole business and the problem will then be entirely one for the United States to deal with. In addition Canada has a standing offer to the United States to co-operate in every possible way to curb illicit traffic.

INSURGENT NAMED AS DOMINICAN PRESIDENT

Rafael Estrella Urena Designated Provisional Chief—
One of Revolt Leaders.

By the Associated Press.

SANTO DOMINGO, Dominican Republic, Feb. 28.—President Ho-racio Vasquez today signed a decretal appointing Rafael Estrella Urena, chief of the insurgent movement, Secretary of State for the interior, to act as Provisional President. The President then issued a request to the National Assembly to permit his leaving the republic for some other country because of ill health.

Under the Constitution, in case of the absence, sickness or resignation of the President, the Secretary of State for the Interior takes up the duties of chief executive.

Charles B. Curtis, American Minister to the Dominican Republic, has informed the insurgents who now control almost all of the republic, that the American Government will not recognize the de facto government.

"The Senate met at the presidential mansion and the Deputies in their own hall but it was impossible to form a national Assembly before which Vasquez could present
a presidential message."

President Vasquez presented a list of citizens with a view to selection of a Minister of the Interior to act in accordance with the Constitution. Both the President and Vice President are without power.

SAILS TOMORROW TO BECOME DIRECTOR OF WORLD BANK

Gates W. McGarrath, New York,
Says Board Will Meet Soon in Basel.

By the Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Gates
W. McGarrath, who has resigned the chairmanship of the board of directors of the New York Federal Reserve Bank to accept an appointment as American director of the bank for international settlements, will sail for Paris tomorrow. Mc-Garrath said the directors of the new bank would probably meet immediately after their arrival at Basel, Switzerland, where the bank is to be situated. For some time it has been understood here that McGarrath is to be chosen head of the international bank. He is 67 years old.

The bank's relations with the Federal Reserve System, said Mc-Garrath, would be about as close as the reserve's relations with the central banks of England and France.

J. Herbert Cass, was chosen yesterday to succeed McGarrath as chairman of the New York bank.
Cass, who is 53, has been deputy governor of the bank since 1917.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM

I know that my retirement will make no difference in the editorial principles; that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight democracy of all parties, never belong to any party, always oppose privileged classes and public plunder, never lack sympathy with the poor, always remain devoted to the public welfare, never be satisfied with merely printing news; always be distinctly independent; never be afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

The Wool Tariff Grab.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WHAT fools these mortals be! said Shakespeare's Puck. A recent illustration of the truth of this saying is the increase in the duties on wool and woolsens voted by the Senate. The present tariff on these articles is already costing the American people over a billion dollars annually. How much is the farmer benefited by the sop given him by the Senate? Let us see.

According to the Department of Agriculture statistics, in the World Almanac, the total value of all farm products is $12,000,000,000. Of this amount, the wool crop is only worth $100,000,000, or less than 1 per cent of the total products of the farm. So even the average farmer is paying a heavy tax for the protection of the comparatively insignificant wool crop.

But the value of the sheep and lambs on American farms is $455,000,000. This means that 78 per cent of their value is meat and 22 per cent wool. Yet the Senate has increased the duty on foreign wool to 34 cents per pound, secured, although the average price now obtainable on American farms is not over 30 cents, unsecured. From the alleged necessity of such a duty it would appear that foreign wool is almost worthless, but the truth is that it is about on a parity with ours.

This tariff sop to the farmer is merely an excuse for boosting the tariff on manufactures to an average of about 100 per cent and charging the American consumer up to the highest limit for anything woolen.

When an Ordinance Is Not One.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

I READ with a great deal of interest in that great St. Louis weekly, the Transit News, that it would appear in the City of St. Louis forbidding the giving away of street car transfers. The Transit News contains nothing but accurate statements, according to one of its early editorials. However, in particular cases the public is not being informed correctly. In June, 1927, the Supreme Court of Missouri, by a unanimous decision, held the ordinance referred to in the Transit News null and void. This happens to be one of those cases when an ordinance is not an ordinance.

A Reply to Mr. Morton.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

EARL S. MORTON, a recent correspondent of yours, criticising your editorial, "The Tribune's Tom Tom," advertised a very poor manner of writing. He stated that you would never permit a writer to say that Mr. Morton has never heard of your splendid Circuit Attorney, of the street car company's franchise fight, the Continental Trading Co., Judge English and a host of similar cases in which the people of this great city and country of ours have been the winners and the Post-Dispatch the resourceful champion of the winners.

FRANK WEISHAUFF.

Natural History on the Radio.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

WELL, they have appeared at last. No matter where we turn the dial the nasal tenor, orthologically inclined has been crooning their praises. Please note: On Tuesday, Feb. 25, the first blue bird made his (masculine gender) appearance in the county. He carefully scrutinized his last year's bungalow to note any depreciation made by the late tenant, Mr. E. Sparrow. After a critical examination lasting some 15 minutes he took his departure to inform the mislaid as to needed repairs or alterations.

Yes, during all the long winter days and particularly nights we have heard his triumphant peacem by Station BUNK. It is only a short step—may we say a hop—from the blue bird to the blue bird ballad. Of course at times we hear the nightingale singing her (feminine) song 'mid the darkness and the dew in the old magnolia tree of my old plantation home. Of course as yet Mrs. N. Gale has not made an American tour and according to the best of our knowledge and belief it is Mr. Gale that is the musician and virtuoso. But what is a trivial difference in gender or geography between friends?

But wait, there is another harbinging of spring—the lady bird, which isn't a bird but a bug. She wears a brilliant red polka dot dress and O, how she eats 'em alive. She has all of the IT and then some.

Beat the beetle, slug the slug; But spare, oh spare the Lady Bug. At early morn climb in my nightie I watch her gobbling apides.

The above extempore is just a suggestion for a new theme song. Give the blue bird, the black bird and the nightingale a well-earned rest and sing the praises via radio of the lady bird (or bug). Of course, the lady bird does not sing—that's not news. But have a song broadcast in which the lady bird does sing—Aye, there is news, indeed.

ONE VOICE ABOVE BABEL.

In the confusion of tongues that has resulted from prohibition there is at least one man in the Hoover Cabinet who has the courage to speak out and set the good example of holding the constitutional guarantees of the people inviolate.

This is Attorney-General William D. Mitchell. Mr. Mitchell aroused this expectation of him by announcing some time ago that the Government would desist from wire tapping to catch bootleggers, notwithstanding the United States Supreme Court has held this practice constitutional. He has now followed with a letter to Chairman Capper of the Senate Committee on District of Columbia Affairs in which he advises against a proposal to subject the homes of the citizens to the national capital to unreasonable search and seizure for the purpose of making prohibition effective. These lines from Mr. Mitchell's letter are reminiscent of Justice Brandeis' famous declaration in the wire tapping case that "if the Government becomes a lawbreaker it breeds contempt for law; it invites every man to become a law unto himself; it invites anarchy."

The Government, by violating the constitutional rights of the citizen, should not be placed in a better position than it otherwise would be in. In the long run nothing will be gained for the cause of law enforcement by such means. Sadly enough, this proposal has been made in a resolution by Senator Howell of Nebraska, ordinarily one of the most liberal men in the Senate. The resolution would permit issuance of search warrants to enter homes in the District of Columbia upon information that liquor was delivered to or that they contained stills. In Washington, as in every other American city, the people drink in their homes. Liquor is delivered to them there, and human invention has contrived to thwart tyranny by the importation of kitchen breweries and basement distilleries. Senator Howell wants to throw the constitutional guarantees of the people into the Potomac so General Coughy, whom Mr. Hoover has commissioned to clean up Washington, can go in after all this stuff, drag the people out of their homes, and cart the whole catch off to jail. He wants to give the people of Washington a touch of the terror which Southern Europe knew in the time of Torquemada, and he wants to turn loose upon 600,000 people a horde of spies, tale-bearers, eavesdroppers, key-hole observers, Paul Pry and Peeping Toms. What a travesty that would be upon the Land of the Free!

Mr. Mitchell is against it. While Mr. Hoover remains silent on the gravest issue the American people have faced since slavery; while his Law Enforcement Commission disapproves the expectation that it would speak out and tell the people the truth; while Congress abjectly dances to the tune of the Anti-Saloon League; and while all the rest of the world laughs at us for our hypocrisy, Mr. Mitchell at least is neither blind nor afraid.

BRIDGE AND INFERIORITY.

We learn from Dr. Alfred Adler, father of the "inferiority complex," that a desire to conquer is a symptom of that ailment. Thus bridge is the resort of timid souls who are forever attempting to satisfy a striving for superiority. "If you see a bridge player who has won," says the doc, "you will notice a nice expression of superiority on his face." Why a desire of conquest is a sign of inferiority is one of those psycho-analytical puzzles that involves much subtlety of thought. In the end, we suppose, Dr. Adler will convict of the inferiority complex Napoleon, Caesar, Leonidas, Catherine of Russia, and Alexander the Great, to say nothing of Jack Dempsey and Art Shires. But if Dr. Adler came all the way from Vienna to tell us that a winning bridge player pockets his profits with a smile of superiority, he is certainly carrying psychological coals to Newcastle.

THE NORTHERN PACIFIC-GREAT NORTHERN MERGER.

A spirited debate, both in and out of the Interstate Commerce Commission, has been aroused by that body's approval of a Northern Pacific-Great Northern merger. Two dissenting opinions were filed by Commissioners McManamy and Eastman. Presidents of both roads have indicated their dissatisfaction with that phase of the report divorcing the new system from its ownership of the Burlington, which furnishes its access to Chicago. And the Milwaukee road, also tapping the Northwest in competition with the merged lines, is of course a strong objector. One of the interesting features of the merger is that it partially reverses the opinion handed down by the Supreme Court 26 years ago in the celebrated Northern Securities case. The Supreme Court refused to sanction a program similar to that authorized by the Commission on the ground that it would be an illegal combination in violation of anti-trust laws. Northern Pacific and Great Northern are almost parallel railroads and, according to evidence offered at the hearings, operate under severe competitive conditions.

It is the destruction of this competition that disturbs Commissioner McManamy, who taxes the majority with "complete disregard of the specific mandate of Congress that competition shall be preserved as fully as possible." Commissioner Eastman agrees with his colleague on this point, and expresses concern over the feasibility of a cash transaction involving $340,000,000 which could only be swung, he thinks, by a holding company of friendly interests. As reasons for its sanction, the majority cites various railroad advantages of the merger, as well as annual economies aggregating more than $10,000,000, the latter being disputed by both dissenting Commissioners.

The incident revives fears of the feasibility and wisdom of the general consolidation plan recently announced by the Commission.

TWO VANISHING SPECIES.

It is disturbing to learn that unless positive action is taken two more animals are likely to join the group of extinct species wiped from the face of the earth by man's thoughtless rapacity. The whale and the musk ox, according to latest reports, may very possibly go the way of the passenger pigeon, the dodo and the great auk. Canada has closed the Thelon game sanctuary in an effort to preserve the scattered remnant of the great herds of musk ox that once roamed the whole Northwest. About 250 have taken shelter in the Thelon sanctuary and in future no person will be allowed to enter this area of 15,000 square miles without written permission.

The whale, while it still exists in far greater numbers, is being hunted today with ships equipped so ingeniously as to make the slaughter of the old whalers seem like child's play. The modern methods compare to the old as the machine gun to the bow and arrow. And though the Norwegian Government has put many restrictions on her whaling companies, naturalists all over the world are concerned over the survival of the Leviathan of the deep. Even with the old methods the whale was harried from sea to sea, and now it has sought a last refuge in Antarctic waters. Surely some means of international control can be found to preserve this most curious and impressive beast.

NO SOUND OBJECTION.

In our opinion no sound objection has been made to letting the railroads use the Free Bridge on an equitable rental basis, nor has any objector ventured to show the city how it can free the vehicle deck of the Eads Bridge at a lesser rent than the Terminal asks for it.

This should bring the bridge ordinance down to very simple terms. A committee appointed by the Chamber of Commerce makes no objection that cannot be worked out in the details of such an agreement. It makes only two major suggestions: (1) that the arrangement with respect to Eads Bridge should include the tunnel and the railroad deck, as well as the vehicle deck; (2) that the wisdom of making the city responsible for new approaches to the Free Bridge be carefully weighed.

The first is a constructive suggestion. Such an arrangement may be worked out in time as the growth of the city alters the relation of Eads Bridge to the downtown business section. It is not, however, a consideration which should delay riding the taxpayers of an approximate $500,000 a year to maintain the Free Bridge. The railroads want to use it, and the Board of Aldermen has full power to fit the rates to the traffic. As to the city paying for new approaches, that would be to keep faith with the people who voted funds for the Free Bridge upon the condition that it should remain forever the free property of the municipality. The city considers that it wants to keep that bargain with the people, and the uses made of the bridge by the railroads should be abundantly able to pay it out.

Debate on the proposed ordinance is not yet closed by the Board of Aldermen, although apparently the objections are about all in. Most of them have arisen from misunderstanding. A few have resulted in needed amendments. No convincing case has been made against what would be a mutual accommodation. Mayor Miller felt that because of objections to the proposed arrangement as to Eads Bridge the ordinance should pertain only to the Free Bridge. We do not think that the objections to the proposal with respect to Eads Bridge have justified leaving it out of the ordinance. Certainly none of them is insurmountable.

Mr. Muench, the City Counselor, is to be congratulated upon the effectiveness with which he has met objections to the ordinance and the fairness with which he welcomes suggestions to better it.

SOMETHING TO GROW BALDHEADED ABOUT.

Let those who think the male of the species isn't tobogganing into decline cogitate a little over such a business-world matter as the transfer of property. According to recent estimates, women in the United States not only pay taxes on more than $5,000,000,000 of individual income each year, but they receive 70 per cent of the estates left by men and 64 per cent of the estates left by women. Our zest for statistical prophecy has led us to spend several nights in mathematical speculation about the future. The findings are simply terrifying! Man's doom as a property holder is barely a century off. There are boy babies born now who will live to see their gender entirely dispossessed. Assuming—optimistically, we admit—that the rate of transfer does not increase, but continues only as at present, come the year of our Lord 2035, the land of the once free and the home of the once brave will be completely in the hands of the once weaker sex.

THE HOLDING COMPANY RACKET.

How holding companies fatten on fees collected from public utility operating companies was explained to the Federal Trade Commission by John H. Bickley, an accountant. It is the custom of holding companies to charge operating companies under their control a certain percentage of their profits for "supervisory services." Mr. Bickley showed that 73 cents out of each dollar so collected from subsidiaries for the last 13 years was clear profit.

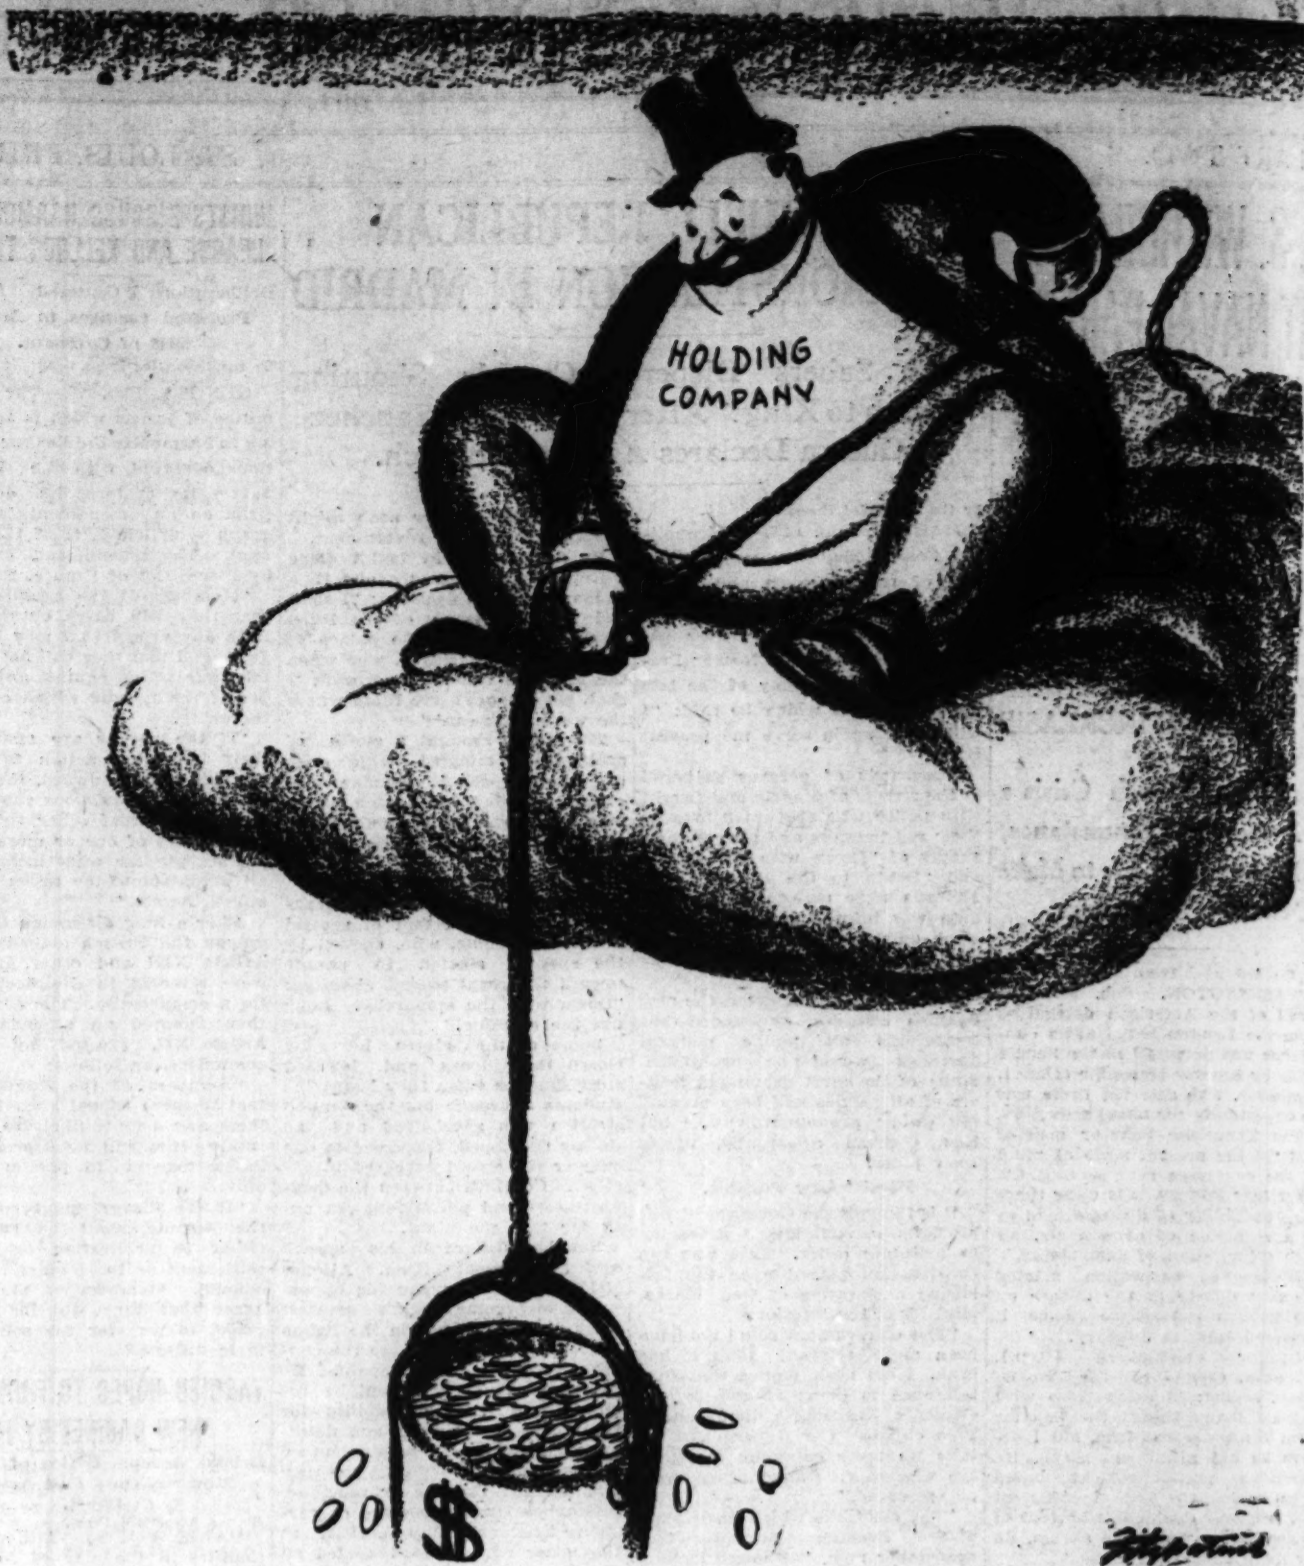

In 1928, the American Gas & Electric Co. collected $2,225,019 for services which cost only $588,759, netting the tremendous profit of $1,641,260. One subsidiary, Appalachian Power Co., paid in 1917 service fees of $971,000, or $362,000 more than the cost of service to all of the holding company's subsidiaries. In 1918, another operating unit, Ohio Power Co., paid $316,392 more than cost of service to all subsidiaries. In addition, subsidiaries were required to pay a percentage of the holding company's operating expense, amounting in 1928 to $576,400, including $131,473 for salaries of five executives.

Under the unit system of public utilities, rates charged to consumers went merely for the operation and profit of the individual plant. Under the holding company system, consumers must not only supply the local company, but they must pay (fitting to a distant organization related only indirectly to the public utility business. We grant that sometimes the "supervisory services" for which the operating companies are taxed are sometimes of real importance. But more often it is merely a phrase to disguise a species of extortion.

Mr. Bickley's expose of the shameless manner in which holding companies have preyed upon consumers shows that the United States is already in the grip of an economic feudalism. The pockets of the people are being picked by a financial colossus which has up to the present escaped governmental regulation. No more important or pressing duty rests upon Congress than to devise ways and means of coping with the problem.

NOTE ON HUMAN NATURE.

A newspaper must each day record incidents illustrating the cruelty, stupidity, arrogance, selfishness and rapacity of the human race. Sometimes, as now, it has the privilege of etching the obverse side of the medal. Mrs. Virginia Lopez, partly deaf, was found frozen to death in the mountains of New Mexico. Beside her, asleep, was a 3-year-old child warmly bundled in his mother's clothes. At the risk of being garroted for sentimentalism, may we make obeisance to this woman of Sparta?

EASY MONEY.

Mencken's View of the Naval Parley

With French showing teeth, Uncle Shylock suddenly is elevated in British esteem from a scoundrel to something noble; English purpose at conference is to get a rich, tough ally; U. S. is logical choice; war between Britain and France predicted, with America inevitably involved; talk of submarines at parley explained.

H. L. Mencken in Baltimore Evening Sun (Reprinted by Special Permission.)

LONDON, in February.

MOST instructive is the rehabilitation of Uncle Shylock. Even so recently as the British a scoundrel unmitigated, with no thought save for his dirty dollars, but now, with the French suddenly showing formidable teeth, he becomes amiable, laudible, and even noble. Why the French were ever believed in by Englishmen is more than I can make out, but believed in they were, and so the discovery that they are anything but what they ought to be has come as a shock. It is not the first shock that has shaken England since the war, but in many ways it is the worst.

Perhaps it would have been painful if Mr. Tardieu himself had been a man of less revolting exterior. But the fact is that he radiates every quality the English dislike—at all events in foreigners. There is an unpleasant uplift to his nose—indeed, to his whole face. He is ruddy, rude, cocksure, snooty. Old Eriand, talking darsity about vast fleets of submarines, might have been borne, but Tardieu is downright intolerable. The English, contemplating him, cannot avoid recalling the appalling manners of Potsdam. He is growing poorer as a most disagreeable sort, and what is worse, he evokes highly inflammatory anticipations.

The day-by-day proceedings of the conference are scarcely worth following. They are concerned mainly with trivial details and are carried on at a level of childish false pretenses. No one, save occasionally the hellish Tardieu, ever speaks out frankly; nine-tenths of the discussion, indeed, is not discussion at all, but only an orgy of hollow oratory, much of it in bad English. But what is going on under the surface is still plain enough. On the one hand, the entente cordiale is pounding to pieces on the rock of French megalomania. On the other hand, an alarmed and indignant Britannia is being thrown willy-nilly into the arms of Uncle Shylock.

When I speak of French megalomania, of course, I use an English word. Latin, though it may be, the French themselves see nothing in their course save the most enlightened sort of self-interest. The British Empire, they believe, is disintegrating before their eyes. It is growing poorer as they themselves are growing richer. Its prestige is fading, not only in Europe but throughout the world. Thus the way opens for them to seize undisputed first place in the European scheme of things, and they naturally make haste to do so. If, in the course of that endeavor, it becomes necessary to give their ancient enemy and recent friend a shove down the cliffs, then let God take the blame.

Hence their high talk about global tonnage—i. e., about their destined right to build precisely what they want to build—and their busy launching of submarines. In theory those submarines are to be used to guard the Mediterranean against Italian infaunies and the Italian help along the shoring by demanding magnificent rights of their own, though they have no money to build a navy and probably could not operate it if they had. But in actuality every French submarine will have its nose pointed toward the English Channel, and if ever the time comes for it to go into action on "human" principles, it is English cargo-boats that will be its targets.

The English know all this very well, and, being a realistic people—at least when it comes to international affairs—they prepare for eventualities. That preparation, as historians will tell you, always takes the form with them of searching for allies—moral allies, of course, but rich and tough ones if possible. Where are they to be found? Germany, at the moment, has no navy that could give much help, though she has made a start. Italy is bankrupt and otherwise unreliable. Japan is half the world away. There remains Uncle Shylock.

The business, to be sure, is not discussed openly—and certainly not at the naval conference. How far Dr. Hoover and Dr. MacDonald go with it last summer is not known—probably not very far. But there are plenty of indications, nevertheless, of the way the current is running. There is the strange English willingness, so soon after Geneva, to meet American notions in the matter of cruiser. There is the patting willingness to take head of Senatorial pruderies in the matter of battleships. There is the open rejoicing over the American conversion in the matter of submarine. And finally there is the eager talk that goes on on unofficial levels—talk that often has a sound authority behind it.

If anything is certain, it is that the United States will be drawn into the next great European war as it was drawn into the last. And if anything else is certain, it is that the chief antagonists in that war will be England and France. The problem before the United States is thus to choose between the two. That its interests will run with those of England rather than with those of France must be manifest. England, as in the last war, will control the entrances to the Baltic, the North Sea and the Mediterranean. And England, as in the last war, will win.

Thus the chances seem to run against the French. They may be able, with their huge army, to perform prodigies on land, but against whom? Every time they strike they will only make a fresh enemy. As for invading England, they will certainly not be able to do what the vastly more competent Germans were unable to do. England will be hurt again, but it will survive again, to serve once more as the moral model and paragon of the world.

And then? Will a struggle with the United States follow? Certain professors of such things, among them Ludwig Denny, think so. I used to think so myself. But I have begun to change my mind. My belief, at the moment, is that the English have definitely renounced their dream, so enchanting in the first years after the late war, of pulling down and disposing of Uncle Shylock. They have discovered suddenly that the business is a sheer physical impossibility. Their aim now is to make terms with him, to keep in his good graces, to get him on their side. That is the main purpose of the naval conference, no matter how it may look on the surface.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.

THE six or more cameramen who accompanied President Hoover on his fishing trip to Florida returned today with a lot of pictures of difficulties involved in "shooting" the Chief Executive. Their tales of experiences they encountered in efforts to get pictures on the President's fishing trip are recitals of everything from sea sickness to sunburn. Failure is the keynote of many of the yarns.

The photographers, always desirous of colorful pictures, were particularly eager to obtain a "shot" of the President in summer gear. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Hoover, in Long Key, they waited long and not too patiently for him to appear, so clad, on the deck of the Sauterster.

Their wait, however, was in vain. Mr. Hoover finally sent word to them that he had more important things to do than pose for pictures.

When he landed his sailfish, the photographers wanted the President to pose beside it. The Chief Executive was not inclined to do so, with the result that the cameramen had to content themselves with a picture of the fish and Lawrence Richey, one of the President's secretaries, standing beside it.

On one occasion they chartered a speedboat in the hope that they might get a picture of the President in the act of fishing. It was necessary to go so far out, however, that most of them, strangers to excursions on the sea, became seasick and lost heart.

Finally it developed that they were forced to confine their efforts to patient waiting on the dock, trusting that some pictures of interest might be taken here. Because the President did not come ashore until he was ready to return to Washington, they profited little from their pains.

The President and Mrs. Hoover do not object to pictures of them when snapped while they are walking. They even will pose for a moment, sometimes a very brief moment—to oblige a photographer, but they are not inclined to pose.

Photographers tell how their hopes were aroused unexpectedly, one time during the Hoover's South American trip. One day they were notified that Mrs. Hoover wanted some pictures taken. Rushing pell-mell to the deck, their expectation high, they found Mrs. Hoover watching a sailer in the harbor. When they arranged their cameras, it developed that what Mrs. Hoover wanted was a picture of the sailer.

HOW DALLAS HANDLES TRUST FUNDS.

From the Dallas News.
ST. LOUIS quandary over the Mullinphy fund illustrates the great advantage of the community trust idea as launched in Dallas. Here a bequest is administered as the public good, and the donor's family has been satisfied and then, automatically, it falls under the direction of the best judgment of the leading public citizens who are in charge of the general fund. No bequest has made ever becomes "dead" as the Mullinphy fund may turn out to be. Instead, it goes on doing good as far as the future as human foresight, collectively exercised, can possibly reach.

THE SACRED FIRE: THE STORY OF SEX IN RELIGION. By B. J. Goldberger. (Horace Liveright). LONG before Freud and Jung were born, the relation between sex and religion was well understood, and a large library must have been written on the subject. Nor is it strange that the relation should exist, since religion is concerned fundamentally with the Creative Principle in the universe as men have conceived it under many names. To view that as derogatory of all religious emotion is quite as foolish as to hold an ultra puritanical attitude toward sex itself, and yet many of our intelligent people who specialize in soon for puritanism seem to hold that inconsistent view.

It would seem that the humanity and beauty and dignity in any man's religion will be in proportion to the degree in which the love force involved has been sublimated. Among other primitives is an ecstatic love impulse, whereas a highly developed human beings it is diffused as a subtle force throughout the personality, and so not only loses its ecstatic character but becomes an active "spiritual" power that is not to be denied by those who have encountered it in saintly types. Such types are rare, no doubt, but they do exist among us for this writer himself has been a devotee of knowing at least two. Some prospective readers of the work here listed might do well to go over this paragraph again.

Incidentally, it might be asked to what extent the above remarks may serve to explain the characteristic attitude of our contemporary intelligentsia toward both love and religion.

No doubt. Knight in his "Worship of Priapus" and Frazer in his "Golden Bough" have said essentially about all that is known or worth knowing on the relation between sex and religions, but there seems to be a lively demand for more or less popular discussions of the subject, and accordingly they are being produced. There is reason to suspect that the demand is not unrelated to that for the writer himself, but there is a good reason for believing that Goldberger wrote his "The Sacred Fire" with an honest purpose. The work appears to be well documented, and the author does not limit his discussion to the lower levels of sexual and religious emotions.

The author, who was raised in an orphan asylum and became a "booster" upon leaving it, tells of his experiences in the slums and one of our social groves. THE SACRED FIRE: THE STORY OF SEX IN RELIGION. By B. J. Goldberg. (Horace Lippincott.)

LONG before Freud and Jung were born, the relation between sex and religion was well understood, and a large library of books has been written on the subject. It is strange that the relation should exist, since religion is concerned fundamentally with the Creative Principle in the universe as men have conceived it under many names. It would seem that the humanity and beauty and dignity in any religion will be in proportion to the degree in which the force involved has been sublimated. Among either primitives or degenerates the love impulse is automatically localized; whereas in highly developed human beings it is diffused as a subtle force throughout the personality, and so not only loses its local aspect, but becomes an active spiritual power that is not to be denied by those who have encountered it in many types. Such types are rare, but they do exist among the writers of this book.

The author, who has had the privilege of knowing at least some of the prospective readers of the work here listed might do well to go over this paragraph again.

Incidentally, it might be asked to what extent the above remarks may serve to explain the characteristic attitude of our contemporary intelligentsia toward both sex and religion.

No doubt Knight in his "Tribute of Priapus" and Frazer in his "Golden Bough" have said essentially about sex that is known to the world, knowing as the relation between sex and religion, but there seems to be a lively demand for more or less popular discussions of the subject, and accordingly they are being produced.

There is reason to suspect that the demand is not unrelated to that for erotica in general; but there is a good reason for believing that the author wrote his "The Sacred Fire" with an honest purpose. The book appears to be well documented, and the author does not limit the discussion to the lower levels of sexual and religious emotions.

BOTTOM DOGS. By Edward Dugger. (Simon and Schuster.) The author, who was raised in orphan asylum and became a "house" upon leaving it, tells of his experiences in the slums and some of our social problems. It is a ghastly and rather disgusting book, which would have been of considerable importance if many other books of the same sort had been published. All of such books would be of greater importance if they were written and published with a view to bettering conditions in our society; but it has become painfully obvious that they are written and published only in response to a popular demand for morbidities and vulgarities. D. H. Lawrence himself has remarked that this book is "objectionable"—and that is a mouthful for B. J. Goldberg, as anyone who has read his book on turtles must grant.

J. M. BARRIE'S PETER PAN IN KENSINGTON GARDENS. Retold by May Byron. Pictures by Arthur Rackham.

This volume, already sufficiently described, should delight almost any young child.

ROMANCE OF THE MACHINES. By Michael Pupin. (Scribner.) A distinguished scientist and inventor here replies to Europeans who allege that America is sordidly materialistic. He suggests that the criticism is merely an inferiority reaction on the part of Europe. The expected things are well said, and those aspects of the question which the author does not consider are the usual ones to be neglected in such books. There is nothing to be said except that this is an optimistic book written for a society in which optimism is not necessarily a virtue, by an orthodox worshiper of Progress and Prosperity.

THE SECRET OF A QUIET MIND. By John S. Bunting. (Revel.)

These studies are the result of several years' instruction of a class in Religion and Health in the Church of the Ascension, St. Louis, of which the author is rector. It can not be doubted that the book, which is now in its second edition, has helped many in the difficult matter of finding some sort of livable adjustment to a perplexing world.

AN HOUR OF AMERICAN DRAMA. By Barrett H. Clark. (Lippincott.)

The author of this latest addition to the excellent "One Hour Series" of booklets has been connected with the theater for many years. He believes that this is only one of our social problems. It is a ghastly and rather disgusting book, which would have been of considerable importance if many other books of the same sort had been published. All of such

URGES EFFORT TO UNDERSTAND ART

That Is More Important Than Liking It, Prof. R. W. Brown Says in Lecture.

The history of art, remarked Rollo Walter Brown of Cambridge, Mass., yesterday at the Art Museum, is largely the history of the pseudo-artists who have been popular at a given moment.

"New Forms of Art—Do They Get Us Anywhere?" Was the question discussed by Brown, writer on topics artistic and literary.

Brown attempted to find a middle ground between women who coo about Whistler, "intending, but absolutely old-fashioned," and Nicholas Murray Butler, "who said and reiterated that we have, living today, not one great poet, one great religious leader, thinker—and so on."

Between the two, the platter is licked pretty clean," the lecturer remarked. And then he quoted a contemporary review of Chopin, his "cutting discords, horrible deformities of melody and rhythm."

The reviewer thought "a master would have torn Chopin's work to pieces, and he sighed after the contrasting excellencies of Field."

Brown asked if any of his listeners had heard of "Field." No body had. Then he asked if anyone knew the ideal of American poetry in Civil War times. There were no guesses. He named Nathaniel Parker Willis, asked if anyone had heard of him, and again drew a complete blank.

"Now," he said, "Nicholas Murray Butler doesn't know whether or not we have those great men in the arts. In the first place, Dr. Butler is temperamentally, rather removed from knowing. Apart from that, it must be evident to you that no one can know about his contemporaries."

"McDowell, certainly the most imaginative of American composers, was in Dr. Butler's own faculty at Columbia University. Fifty years ago Edwin Arlington Robinson was working, almost unknown, right in the shadow of the university."

The speaker traced the history of an idea from its conception by the innovator to its demonstration in an organization to promote the idea, which goes on after its members have forgotten what the idea is. The idea thus becomes encrusted, until an innovator comes along, breaks up the crust and uncovers it again.

"Every great innovator in painting or poetry has been called a fool by somebody," he remarked, pointing to "something static" in education. "We are not dishonest about art, generally, because we know too little, but because we know too much. Too many extraneous things enter into our judgment."

He named three innovators, explicitly choosing them from the dead to avoid controversy—Wagner in music, Emily Dickinson in poetry and Cezanne in art. Quoting an encyclopedia description of Cezanne as a "most influential figure in modern French painting," he said, "I have a heavy volume on 'Modern French Painting,' published in 1908—two years after Cezanne's death—which tells not a word about him, not even in the appendix."

"Why, if he is one of the most influential figures in modern French painting in 1930, was he not so in 1908? He painted nothing in the interval; he was dead both times."

"It would be better for all of us to give the innovator a chance while he lives," he advised. Citing a London controversy over a work of Jacob Epstein, sculptor, he said he was impressed, not with any argument for or against, but in the live interest on both sides.

"Do you like Epstein, or don't you?—that doesn't matter," he said. "A thing infinitely more important is that we try to understand, intelligently, what Epstein is doing."

SOCIAL ACTIVITIES

IN COLLEGE PLAY

A CHARMING two-story English drawing room, with recessed Gothic windows, and a minstrel balcony where the wedding music is to be played by Max Steindel and a string trio of Symphony musicians, will form an attractive background for the marriage of Miss Alice Strauch, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John B. Strauch of Huntleigh Village and John Phillip Meyer, son of A. C. F. Meyer, of the Denny road. The bride party will walk through an aisle of amaranth to an elaborately carved oak mantel banked with Easter lilies, where the Rev. Dr. George R. Dodson of the Church of the Holy Trinity will perform the ceremony. The room will be lighted by candles, augmented by a soft glow achieved by exterior lighting diffused through the windows.

John Andrew Strauch, sister-in-law of the bride, as maid of honor, and her only attendant, will be gowned in peach-tinted French pattern lace, over peach satin, designed in princess with a short train and a cape from the low neck line. She will carry a tallman rose, and will wear her gift from the bride, a diamond and platinum bracelet.

The bride's gown is of ivory faille silk, fashioned in a robe de style with close-fitting bodice and full skirt. A yoke of rose point lace adorns the bodice and there are cape sleeves of the lace. From a peplum at the back falls a fan-shaped train of the silk. Her tulle veil will be arranged from a cap of tulle with inserts of rose point, trimmed with orange blossoms. The bride will carry gardenias and lilies of the valley.

Jerome Donald Meyer will be his brother's best man.

The guests, who will include only members of the families and a few close friends, will remain for an informal reception. The table will have white roses for its centerpiece, continuing the decorations of green and white, and will be candle-lit.

Mr. Meyer and his bride will tour through Southern California, and will sail March 8 on the Maloja from San Francisco for Honolulu on their wedding trip. They will take an apartment in St. Louis on their return.

The bride is a graduate of Mary Institute and attended Washington University before completing her studies in Geneva, Switzerland.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Feb. 28. THOUGHTS while strolling: Whatever became of Turkish Corners? The original Best-Steak Charlie. Not so many window displays of cocktail shakers and flasks. The self-consciousness of a lone passenger on an escalator. So many colored maids named Nettie. Karl E. Harriman and Frank Craven look alike.

Those out yonder ladies who visit New York several times a year. And are known back home as one of the boys. Neysa McMillen, a Quincy, Ill. girl, who made good in the city. Sour, berry smell from speakerboxes. Alay Dwan's double who is a well-known head waiter.

Who remembers when a neighbor came over to borrow a buck-wheat "starter"? Old-time shopkeepers who still sweep their own sidewalk fronts. Soft and sulky ladies who sit in hotel waiting rooms. Percy Crosby is also a window shopper. Dick Berlin and his mother. Hope Williams' swaggers.

Raymond Duncan, Isador's brother, and his long gray locks and sandals. The display of foreign periodicals on the Bryant Park corner. George McManus, the acquitted Rothstein prospect, and all flourishing. Delegates who wear huge badges and eat in automats. Old actors in frayed caps clutching at frozen dreams. Bugs Baer and Damon Runyon. What-ever become of rat terriers?

Those clubs upholstered in stiff leather. Where members tip-pee about. Saving bank sign: "Save your first thousand and you are made." The rakish dip to J. P. McEvoy's hat. And the indefinable chic of salesladies in the dress-making establishments. Allice Ziegfeld's celebrated telephone operator.

The cafe that excludes women and where men may light pipes. A ditch digger bursts forth in an aria from "Faust." Two young girls assist a teetering old gray head into a taxi. Blow him a farewell kiss—and turn quickly to giggle. C'est la vie!

THE largest bathroom in New York is under construction in a new apartment building on upper Park avenue, for a prosperous bachelor. It is 22 feet long and 24 feet wide. The bath itself is a pool, gradually reaching a depth of five feet. There are four different booths for various showers and sprays and a violet ray cabinet. Complete, it cost $36,000. The owner came to New York 13 years ago as a $25-a-week stenographer.

A NEW wrinkle is a window closer that will close your window automatically a half-hour or so before getting up time. On retiring it is set like an alarm clock and at the appointed time releases a coil spring and down glides the window, noiselessly.

THE Woolworth Building, no longer the tallest structure, continues to attract more attention than any skyscraper in town. The Woolworth was erected about 17 years ago, and it has been estimated 500 daily visit the observation tower. The edifice has a sentimental attachment for outsiders. They perhaps feel that if it were not for the five and tens in their town there would be no gigantic monument of this sort in New York.

THOSE who wonder why columnists often begin to roll their eyes and bark like a dog are offered this telegram just received from Detroit:

"A professional toe dancer is trying for world's record walking on toes today. Wire world's record on toes and held by whom, when and where. Must have answer by noon as we start at 2:30."

"YOU spoke some time ago," writes Tippy, "of taking another case of your jaunts to Europe. You are still here. What's the trouble?"

Money trouble—so long as you are so noisy.

WALPOLE SAYS ENDURING NOVEL MUST EMBODY ETERNAL TRUTHS

Although a novelist is influenced by the morals of his time, novels of enduring interest must be based on eternal truths, Hugh Walpole, English author, said last night in an address at Lindenwood College, St. Charles.

Good and bad were defined clearly in Victorian times, Walpole said, and marriage represented the conventional happy ending. Today it may mean the beginning of complications, he added.

Walpole said Theodore Dreiser once criticized his writings as "false, sentimental and dramatic" while he regarded Dreiser's work as "sterile, dry and full of telephones and ambulances."

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.

Six or more cameramen who accompanied President Hoover on his trip to Florida returned to Washington with many stories of difficulties in "shooting" the Chief Executive. Tales of experiences they encountered as they got pictures on the President's trip are recitals of everything from sickness to sunburn. Failure is the fate of many of the yarns.

photographers, always desirous of pictures, were particularly eager in a "shot" of the President in sunbaths. Consequently, after his arrival Long Key, they waited long and patiently for him to appear, so on the deck of the Saunterer.

He wait, however, was in vain. Mr. Hoover finally sent word to them that he more important things to do than pose for pictures.

When he landed his sailfish, the photographers wanted the President to pose for a picture. The Chief Executive was not so keen to do so, with the result that the women had to content themselves with a picture of the fish and Lawrence Richey, the President's secretary, standing by it.

On one occasion they chartered a speedboat in the hope that they might get a picture of the President in the act of fishing. It was necessary to go so far out, however, that most of them, strangers to the sea, became seasick and sick.

It developed that they were not so patient as they might be. On the dock, trusting that some of interest might be taken here, the President did not come ashore. He was ready to return to Washington, profited little from their pains.

The President and Mrs. Hoover do not object to pictures of them snapped as they are walking. They even will for a moment sometimes—a very brief instant—to oblige a photographer, but are not inclined to pose.

Photographers tell how their hopes were dashed unexpectedly, one time during the President's South American trip.

One day they were notified that Mrs. Hoover wanted some pictures taken. Rushing to the dock, their expectation they found Mrs. Hoover watching a kite fly. When they arranged their cameras, it developed that what Mrs. Hoover wanted was a picture of the sailor.

W. E. Hodgins Was One of Dominion's Most Eminent Soldiers.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 28.—Major-General W. E. Hodgins, 79 years old, one of Canada's most eminent soldiers, died last night at his home here after a short illness. His military service extended over more than 50 years. During the World War he was Adjutant-General.

The intimate knowledge of organization, discipline and field service of Gen. Hodgins were of tremendous advantage to Canada when the World War broke out. He had much to do with the rapid mobilization of the first contingent for overseas service, and when appointed Adjutant-General in 1915, he was one of the chief mainstays of the home organization which recruited and made Canada's 500,000 soldiers ready for duty overseas.

RECORD CALLED FOR IN STANDARD OIL CASE

Demand of Attorney-General Preliminary to Filing of Suit Against New Merger.

District Attorney Breuer has been directed by the Attorney-General's office in Washington to furnish the record of the famous Standard Oil Co. dissolution suit, decided in the United States Circuit Court here in 1911.

The message to the District Attorney stated that the Government contemplated instituting suit, charging a violation of the 1911 decree, which was based upon the Sherman anti-trust law.

The Government's move is the result of the announcement, made last Saturday, that the parent Standard Oil Co. of New York planned a merger with the Vacuum Oil Co.

In the announcement of the merger plan, made by the two companies to their stockholders, it was stated that the Government had been informed of the plan, and had indicated its purpose to institute proceedings in equity, as a test case.

The plan is to create a new company to be known as the General Petroleum Corporation, to acquire the assets of Standard Oil of New York and of the Vacuum Oil Co., Inc. The new company would have a market value of $1,100,000,000 on the basis of current stock quotations, and would be second in size only to the Standard Oil Co. of New Jersey, which has a market value of $1,500,000,000. The trade name "Socony" would be retained, and two subsidiary companies, to be known as Standard Oil Co., Inc., and Vacuum Oil Co., Inc., would be formed.

The dissolution suit was instituted in the United States Circuit Court here in 1906, when Theodore Roosevelt was President and William H. Moody was Attorney-General. It named as defendants John D. Rockefeller, William Rockefeller, Henry H. Rogers, Henry M. Flagler, John D. Archbold, Oliver H. Payne, Charles M. Pratt and about 40 oil refining and pipe line companies. The offenses alleged were combination in restraint of trade, and price fixing.

The decree, handed down in 1911 by Circuit Judge Sutherland, Hook and Adams, was sustained in the same year by the United States Supreme Court, in an opinion written by Chief Justice White.

As first prepared by the Circuit Court, the decree ordered dissolution within 30 days, but the Supreme Court extended this period to six months.

Provisions of Decree.

The decree, as revised by the Circuit Court after the Supreme Court's ruling, enjoined and prohibited the officers and directors of Standard Oil from entering, in the future, any like combination, the effect of which would be to restrain commerce in petroleum or its products, or to combine illegally two or more potentially competitive companies.

The directors were forbidden to place the control of any of the corporations in the hands of any trustee or group of trustees, or to cause its stock or property to be held by others than its equitable owners, or to effect any similar device.

MELLON'S PLAN TO AVOID DOUBLE TAXATION BY NATIONS

Appearing Before House Committee, He Advocates Reciprocal Exemption.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 28.—Reciprocal exemption as the best method of avoiding taxation of the same income, profits or property by this and one or more other countries was advocated before the House Ways and Means Committee today by Secretary of the Treasury Mellon.

Appearing at a hearing on Chairman Hawley's bill to reduce international double taxation, in which have been incorporated his recommendations as to the manner in which this Government could participate in a world-wide effort to solve this problem, Mellon said there were two lines of approach. The first, he said, is by treaty with one or more countries, which involves mutual concessions in respect of the taxation of nationals of the treaty-making countries. He gave as objections to this plan that the concessions were more likely to be based on bargaining than on sound principles of taxation, and that this method resulted in the taxation by the United States of the nationals of different countries on dissimilar bases.

The second plan, he explained, was exemplified by the present law covering the taxation of shipping profits and authorizing the exemption of foreign shipping profits providing those of American companies are exempt from taxation in foreign countries.

WOMAN SAVES THREE PERSONS FROM DROWNING IN OCEAN

Plunges Into Sea When Alarm Is Given That Bathers Are in Danger; Two Lose Lives.

STUART, Fla., Feb. 28.—A 22-year-old woman saved three bathers from drowning Wednesday, while two others lost their lives in the undertow. She is Mrs. Elaine Van Smith, whose exploit as a life-saver was prompted by a tragedy at Jensen Beach, several miles north of Stuart, in which Fred Reynolds, 22 years old, of Walton, Fla., and Fred Schwab, 70, of Cleveland, O., drowned.

Mrs. Van Smith was at a club on the beach when the alarm was sounded that several bathers were in danger. She plunged into the waves and shortly afterward emerged with Grille Reynolds, 20, sister of Fred Reynolds. A second time she went into the ocean and returned to shore, this time pulling an aged man whose name was not learned. Again she went to the rescue, passing a floating body which proved to be that of Schwab. About 100 yards from shore she caught the hair of a young man who was sinking. He was Harry Reynolds, 25, brother of Grille and Fred. She towed him to shore. Mrs. Van Smith colloquially as she placed him on the beach.

COMPROMISES ON NAVAL RATIO NOW INDICATED

American-Japanese issue heretofore has been that America offered Japan a 50 per cent cruiser ratio against Japan's demand of a 70 per cent ratio.

Japanese Stand Their Ground. It was pointed out that the Japanese have steadfastly maintained, since the opening of the conference, that undersea craft formed an important part of her fleet and hence, that she might be willing to make concessions in other categories in order to secure a desired strength in submarines.

The Americans and British have made it clear they have no desire for the Japanese delegation to return to Tokyo dissatisfied with the agreement. Hence the recent conversations between Senator David A. Reed and Ambassador Matsudaira of Japan have been along lines exploring the whole field of both American and Japanese proposals in order to secure the most agreeable arrangement to each.

The impression prevails at American headquarters that the Japanese negotiations will take considerable time, especially since the American and British total tonnage will be dependent on France's, and no progress is being made in solving the French problem because of the absence of the French from the conference.

Conferences Continuing. Ambassador Matsudaira visited Senator Reed this morning and they conferred briefly. At the same time Secretary Stimson conferred with Arthur Henderson, British Secretary of State, at the British Foreign Office. Whatever ultimately may come in the way of an agreement, all the delegations have made it clear they are striving for a five-power arrangement. The British spokesman this morning averred that the conversations were proceeding satisfactorily in the direction of a five-power agreement. He did not indicate, however, what sort of five-power agreement he had in mind or whether it would fulfill the original purposes of the conference.

Get it in Black & White

The only "4711" EAU DE COLOGNE, obtainable in the United States manufactured in accordance with the original secret recipe of 1792

The United States District Court has established the fact that the makers, in the United States, of 4711 EAU DE COLOGNE, in the bottle with the Blue and Gold Label, have not, and never have had, the original secret recipe.

It is this secret recipe which has made the original "4711" EAU DE COLOGNE famous throughout the world for over 138 years.

Speaking about the former representative in the United States of the original house of Ferd. Mülhens, Cologne, Germany, now president of Mülhens & Kropff, Inc., manufacturers in the United States of 4711 EAU DE COLOGNE in the bottle with the Blue and Gold Label, the court, referring to his moral obligations, stated:

"... These, in my judgment, he not only failed to observe, but deliberately and deceitfully transgressed in his claim to knowledge of the secret recipe; for I do not credit the statement that, if in fact he did not have such knowledge, he nevertheless believed that he had it."

Therefore, in order to obtain the original "4711" EAU DE COLOGNE in the United States, insist upon the bottle with the BLACK and WHITE LABEL, as shown above which contains the product famous all over the world and known by its Blue and Gold Label—which, except in the United States, is the exclusive property of the original House of Ferd. Mülhens, Cologne, Germany.

MERCHANTS' EXCHANGE RENEWS BRIDGE FIGHT

Sends New Letter of Protest Against City's Paying for Approaches.

On the heels of the Chamber of Commerce report stressing the importance of early settlement of the bridge problem on the basis of facts to be ascertained in further hearings by the special bridge committee of the Board of Aldermen, the Merchants' Exchange has sent to Chairman Neun of the Aldermanic Committee its second protest against the pending bridge bill.

The procedure of the committee in its further hearings was to be decided on at a meeting called for this afternoon by Chairman Neun.

The latest Merchants' Exchange protest is directed particularly against the proposal in the pending bill that the city pay for new approaches that would be built by the Terminal Railroad Association to enable it to make full use of the Municipal Bridge for both passenger and freight traffic.

The bill provides that the Terminal advance the money for the approaches, and that the excess of rental due the city from the Terminal for use of the bridge, above maintenance, operation and carrying cost on the new approaches, be applied to reimburse the Terminal, eventually giving the city full ownership of the approaches.

The Merchants' Exchange thinks the Terminal should build the approaches on its own account, and that all rentals of the Terminal for use of the bridge should be paid to the city in cash. However, the Exchange suggests that, if the Terminal and its proprietary lines would have the Interstate Commerce Commission to abolish the remaining differential charges for trans-river deliveries, the people might be willing to provide the money to build the approaches.

The Exchange estimates that abolition of the remaining differential would cost the railroads only $2,000,000 a year, and that by use of the Municipal Bridge they would save $5,000,000, resulting in a net gain of $3,000,000, but the figures are not given as authoritative.

BOY IN HOUSE; NO GUNMEN

Police Make Raid After Anonymous Call: Whisky Found.

On receiving an anonymous telephone call directing him to 1323 Carr street yesterday afternoon, Police Capt. Nally and eight men surrounded the house in the belief that gunmen were hiding inside.

A 15-year-old boy, who said his father was Dominic Blondo, was the only person there. He said 15 gallons of whisky in the house belonged to his father, who is being sought. Three telephone messages, which police say were inquiring about delivery of liquor, were received while they were in the house.

CONGRESSMAN FREED AT TRIAL FOR FRAUD

Chicagoan and Son Acquitted of Obtaining Money Under False Pretenses.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Feb. 28.—Congressman Stanley H. Kunz, 64-year-old Northwest Side Democratic leader, and his son, Stanley Jr., were freed by a jury late yesterday of charges of operating a confidence game and of obtaining money under false pretenses. The jury was out two hours.

The indictments against Kunz and his son were returned several weeks ago after Walter Truckowski, an applicant for a police position, said he gave them $400 to intercede with the Civil Service Commission in his behalf.

At the time, Kunz said the $400 was a loan and in court he produced a receipt to show repayment.

Both Kunz and his son, who termed the charges "political persecution," demanded a trial. Kunz gave as his reason for this that he wished the case "cleared up" before he began his campaign for renomination in the spring primary.

As soon as he thanked members of the jury, Kunz went to the City Hall to file for Ward Committee-man, getting in his petition just an hour and a half before the lists closed last midnight.

Twelfth Fatality From Wreck.

WALTER E. WILLE

TROLLEY KILLS CHILD; VERDICT OF ACCIDENT

Walter E. Wille, 5, Fatally Hurt When Returning From Kindergarten.

A Coroner's verdict of accident was returned today in the case of Walter E. Wille, 5-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter H. Wille, 4225 Westminster place, killed yesterday afternoon when struck by an east-bound Olive-Delmar street car on Olive street 25 feet west of the Boyle avenue crossing.

Two witnesses testified the boy ran in front of the car from between automobiles parked at the curb.

On advice of counsel, the motorman, Jerry J. Sullivan, 6139A Ridge avenue, and the conductor, Albert Gifford, 5556 Alcott avenue, did not testify.

However, Sullivan had told police the boy ran in front of the car and that he immediately dropped the fender and applied brakes, stopping the car before the wheels reached the body. Wedged beneath the fender, it was necessary to raise the car to extricate the body.

Walter was returning home from Eugene Field School, Olive street and Taylor avenue, where he was a kindergarten pupil.

BANK TELLER QUILTS; 53 YEARS IN SERVICE

I. A. McGirk One of 13 to Be Pensioned by Mercantile-Commerce Co.

Whenever he stops to think about the changes that have taken place in the banking business during his 53 years behind a teller's window, Irvine A. McGirk has to marvel. He can hardly believe some of the things he has seen with his own eyes.

He was reminiscing today about "the big differences between then and now" in view of his retirement on pension March 1 from the post of payroll teller in the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. along with 12 other employees past 65, the retirement age. Seventy-one years old, McGirk is the oldest in point of service of the retiring group. Nearly all are veterans of banking service, their years with "Mercantile" or "Commerce" totaling 250, an average of more than 25 years each.

Back in 1877, "When I came to St. Louis in 1877 to be collector for the old St. Louis National Bank, I made the eighth clerk," McGirk went on. "There were two officers, the president and the cashier, and the janitor. Today in this bank"—his hand swept around indicating the busy main floor—"we have almost 100. Those were the days of sparseness; days when the cars jumped the track every little bit and all the passengers got out to lift them back on. There wasn't anything west of Grand avenue except Vandeventer place and mud. Changes in Methods. "We didn't have telephones then or any of the new time savers in

Whenever he stops to think about the changes that have taken place in the banking business during his 53 years behind a teller's window, Irvine A. McGirk has to marvel. He can hardly believe some of the things he has seen with his own eyes.

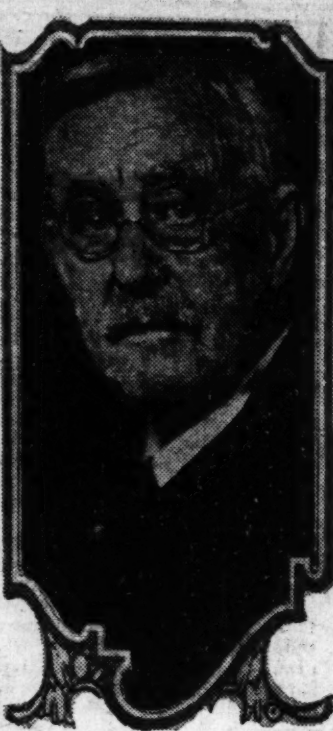

He was reminiscing today about the big differences between then and now in view of his retirement on pension March 1 from the post of payroll teller in the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co. along with 12 other employees past 65, the retirement age.

Seventy-one years old, McGirk is the oldest in point of service of the retiring group. Nearly all are veterans of banking service, their years with "Mercantile" or "Commerce" totaling 330, an average of more than 25 years each.

Back in 1877, McGirk was hired to be collector for the old St. Louis National Bank. I made the eighth clerk," McGirk went on. "There were two officers, the president and the cashier, and the janitor. rapid calculation. The officers wrote their letters by hand instead of pressing a button for a stenographer to take dictation. Bank employees had to know how to figure and write a good, legible hand.

"When I came in a tall, green boy of 18 from a farm near Lexington, Mo.—my uncle, a Columbia banker, got me the job—I began work in a banking house that looked a lot different from the fine institutions everywhere today. There weren't any beautiful fixtures. The teller didn't even have a cage. Business was transacted over a counter. We kept the money under the counter out of sight but handy.

"In the old days bank holdups such as we have now were never heard of. Thieves knew they couldn't escape, and so they couldn't risk it. The automobile has been largely responsible for this change.

"Woman's new place in life is evident, too. You don't have to go back very far to a time when women seldom were in line of bank patrons. Now at least 40 per cent of my customers are women. Many of them are better informed in banking matters than men."

Washington's birthday was the fifty-third anniversary of McGirk's first day in the old St. Louis National Bank. He takes pride in the fact that no person can duplicate his entry into the banking field because Feb. 23 has since been made legal holiday.

In the 21 years he was with the St. Louis National Bank he advanced from collector, note teller and receiving teller to paying teller. Then he left in 1898 to be third paying teller in the National Bank of Commerce, afterward becoming head paying teller, a post he held until the merger with the Mercantile Trust Co. Since then he has been payroll teller.

Half a Day Off Enough.

When he rounded out his half century back of the wicket three years ago he celebrated by taking a half day off. That was plenty, he said. The next morning found him back at work as usual.

Long ago McGirk decided there is no end to the number of schemes which shrewd individuals will work out to defraud a bank.

"When a fellow thinks he has learned about all the tricks that can be invented, then a new one will bob up," he said. "In my work I have always been on the alert to detect forgeries and counterfeits. A teller in time gets to be more or less of an expert on handwriting and learns to suspect a signature that doesn't look just right.

"Such suspicion isn't anything a teller deserves credit for. It just comes to him with the years. What the forger can't get is the tell-tale characteristic which identifies a man's signature—whether he wrote it sitting down or standing up. Signatures differ of course. If you are well you write your name one way. If you are sick, another. The signature of a man who has been drinking differs from that when he is sober."

Many times McGirk has testified as a handwriting expert in St. Louis courts.

He resides at 211 North Taylor avenue, Kirkwood. A married daughter and her family also reside there, and another married daughter in Springfield, Mo.

Others Retired.

Others to be retired in order of service, are: F. W. Leet, note teller, Kirkwood; John M. Papin, bookkeeper, 6688 Cabanne avenue; Arthur Bith, assistant manager of the safe deposit department, 6181 Waterman avenue; Joseph M. Murphy, assistant treasurer, 7154 Northmoor drive; Irving L. Jones, assistant treasurer, 5387 Vernon avenue; George T. L. Rea, bookkeeper, Ferguson; E. H. Lauter, foreign department, 5344 Lansdowne avenue; W. W. Shannon, floorman, 4511 Morganford road; Cyril Williams, solicitor, 5337 Southwest avenue; J. J. Hoffman, night watchman, 1701 O'Fallon street; J. C. Heer, guard, 5535 Gilmore avenue, and Matt Metmer, night janitor, 3357 South Seventh street.

The plan is on a co-operative basis, the bank paying more than one-half of the cost and the employees, who so desire, contributing 4 per cent of their salary each month. Eighty-five per cent of the 733 employees are participating.

While the plan has been developed to fit the needs of the Mercantile-Commerce Bank & Trust Co., it is in many points similar to those used by the New York Stock Exchange, the Union Trust Co. of Detroit, the Eastman Kodak Co. and the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co. The St. Louis bank is the first west of the Mississippi to put such a plan into operation.

BANUET AND NELSON FINALISTS IN A. A. U. HANDBALL TOURNEY

ST. LOUIS TEAMS ELIMINATED IN QUARTERFINALS OF THE DOUBLES

Admission of $5 To Be Charged At Handball Final

An admission charge of $5 for the finals of the National A. A. U. handball championship at the Young Men's Hebrew Association, Union boulevard and Enright avenue, was announced last night by Edwin Lindenbaum, local chairman of the Tournament Committee.

Lindenbaum said the charge was not unusual for the National A. A. U. handball finals, and is made because of the limited accommodations at the Y. M. H. A. court. All games will be played on the exhibition court, that has a gallery that will accommodate about 100 persons.

Both the singles and doubles championships will be decided Saturday night, the first match being at 8 o'clock.

By Harry McKenna.

Alfred Banuet of San Francisco will defend his national A. A. U. singles handball championship against George Nelson of Baltimore, tomorrow night in the final match of the tournament in progress at the Y. M. H. A.

Banuet entered the final after another Westerner, Joe Powers of the Los Angeles A. C., in successive games, 21-7, 21-19. Nelson eliminated another Baltimore player, Albert Hobeimann, 21-10, 21-14, in the first match of the day.

The champion was extended more in his semifinal match than in any other contest of the tourney. Powers lost 19 points in the second game is the highest total scored against Banuet in any game played here.

Nelson, who was champion in 1927, displayed his old title form in winning from Hobeimann. He had lots of "hop" on the ball and his twisting shots tired Hobeimann in their second game.

Doubles semifinal matches, set for the afternoon, include the rest of today's schedule.

St. Louis Players Eliminated.

Both St. Louis teams in the doubles were eliminated in the quarter final last night. Mills Cunningham and John Weller lost to Joe Goodreau and John Endevick, Cleveland, 21-15, 21-4, and Robert Lehr and Simon Wolff were defeated by William Kammann and Lawrence Salomonberg of the Cadillac A. C., Detroit, 21-4, 21-3.

A former St. Louisian, Jack Srenco of the Cadillac A. C., and his partner, Herman Dworman, will meet Endevick and Goodreau in one of the semifinal matches today, and Champion Banuet and his new doubles partner, A. Woodman Paynter, will play Kammann and Rothberg.

Banuet and Paynter are favored to go into the finals with Srenco and Dworman as their probable opponents.

Trailing by 15 points, Srenco and Dworman made the greatest comeback of the tournament last night to defeat F. S. Leaver and L. S. Clausen of the Deere A. C., Salt Lake City, in the deciding game of the match, 21-16. The Salt Lake pair only garnered one point, while the Detroit team were piling up their 21. ## Billy DeFoe, After 200 Fights, Rates Science Above Punch

Managers Who Urge Kids to Slug Instead of Box Are Harmful Influence, Says Man Who Has Fought 'Em All.

By Damon Kerby

Managers of green young fighters are responsible, for the most part, for their fans getting badly beaten and marked up, with consequent partial or total blindness and mental disorders, according to ring-wise Billy De Foe, of the Twin Cities, who fought young Chico Cisneros and as spy as an amateur fight card.

De Foe should know whereof he speaks. Breaking into the game when he was about 20 years old, he has been active in the ring for the past 17 years. More than 200 fights are listed under his name in the record books. Fighters who have long since passed on—Willie Jackson, Johnny Dundee, Gene Delmont, Andy Chaney, Babe Herman, Frankie Britt, and a host of others not so well known—have been met by this rather amazing little veteran, who today, at 37, is as clear-eyed and as spry as an ambitious youngster just breaking into the game.

"Managers are making a great mistake in encouraging the present policy of slug-bang fighting," said De Foe, in discussing the good points and the bad in the business that has been his life work.

"I don't want to harp about the 'good old days,' but it is a fact that the fighters when I was a youngster paid more attention to science than to slugging. Why, the Gibbons boys in their day were copied by all the kids in the North—Gibbons style sticking out in many of the youngsters. They protected themselves, knew how to counter and block, and used good foot-work."

The "Crowd Pleaser."

"But, because the public likes to see a knockout punch, the youngsters have been allowed to get away from science. The manager gets hold of a pretty fair boy, and instead of teaching him the science of boxing, the manager gets the matches and then instructs his charge to 'walk in there! Walk in! Trade punches! It is to the manager's financial advantage to have a boy who is a slugging crowd-pleaser."

The five-and-take policy is relaxed by the spectators but this does not offset the harm and injury it does to the boxers, both mentally and physically. It was pointed out by the veteran. His argument may be verified by looking at the wreckage of fighters who frequent the gymnasiums. Blindness is not uncommon, and not a few of the boys are more or less punchy, all on account of the hard punches of earlier days.

It was pointed out that some of these specimens were old timers, men who fought during De Foe's early days in the ring, when science was given more attention than it is today.

"Well, there are bound to be exceptions," asserted De Foe. "There always have been and always will be some fighters who will take too much punishment for their own good, but I'm talking about the green youngster whose career is still before him. It is he who has to pay the fiddler when his manager instructs him to 'go in and slug it out.'"

As mentioned, it is remarkable how De Foe has held on in the fight game. For more than 15 years he has met the best men that could be found to go against him, but today he is still making a good showing against young opponents.

Knocked Out His First Foe.

But would the veteran go into the game again, with all its bumps and knocks, if he had his life to live over again, and knew what he knows now?

"Yes, I guess I would," was De Foe's answer. "I've always loved to fight. When I was a kid they threw me in one night with another fellow in an Elks smoker at St. Paul. I knocked the boy out. A man connected with professional boxing was among the spectators. He got me a bout on a professional card. I knocked out my man in one round. From that time to this I have been sold on boxing. I was in the business for almost 10 years before I paid any attention to the financial end of it. I just told 'em to get me the best boys they could. I liked to fight the top-notchers just to see if I could whip them."

It was not always easy for the fight-loving De Foe to get matches. He was a natural featherweight, but at one period of his career he was the southpaw, George (K. O.) Chaney of Baltimore, the first man to compile a record of more than 100 knockouts. De Foe has never met Chaney or Bass in the ring. He formed his opinion through observation in a number of each fighter's bouts.

Chaney Rated Over Bass.

Having been in the business so long, De Foe naturally has some definite opinions in regard to the fighters of the past and present. Benny Bass, according to De Foe, is the hardest puncher in the game today. One who was better than Bass, however, the veteran believes was the southpaw, George (K. O.) Chaney of Baltimore, the first man to compile a record of more than 100 knockouts. De Foe has never met Chaney or Bass in the ring. He formed his opinion through observation in a number of each fighter's bouts.

Chaney was stopped at the height of his career by Johnny Kilbane, the featherweight champion. Chaney fought three weeks before the Kilbane fight at 123 pounds. Weight for the Kilbane match was 122 pounds, and having to work out seven pounds, during a hot August, in less than three weeks, was too weakening and Chaney was an easy victim for Kilbane.

De Foe is going to retire after this year, he maintains. He says he has saved some money, and he intends to put his knowledge of boxing to use by gathering under his management a stable of fighters. In this end he should be successful, if contacts count for anything. He knows the country like a book, having fought in probably every fight center of the United States, and he will make his headquarters in the East, according to his present plan.

Although they lost the odd game to the Forty-ninth States, the Agates continue to lead the Newspaper League at Peterson's, holding a one-game margin over the Green Sheets, who won two games from the Intertypes last Monday. In the other matches, the Sport Specials took two from the Orange Sheets and the Sunsets won three from the Dumb Dories. The team leaders were: Weege, 627; Stoddard, 606; Westling, 609; Hinkley, 603; Piesbergen, 597; Elbert, 579; Stockman, 537; Bradley, 520, and Quintal, 497.

Results in the Northwest Industrial league on the Melene alleys were as follows: Atlas 2, Superior No. 2; Hinds 2, Americans 1; Superior No. 2, Brotherhood 1; St. Louis Pals 2, Flahers 1; Rexalls 2, Metacrafts 0; Rays 2, Standands 1. The high scores were: Harris, 617; Beck, 594; Scher, 588; Schuch, 584 and Schotte, 585. The latter won weekly high single with a 246 score.

Matches in the Northwestern Handicap league on the Melene alleys resulted as follows: Bronschweigs 3, Branch Repairs 0; Berge 3, Dundas 0; North Side 2, Keynotes 1; Harris 2, Kingsleys 1; Sados 2, Melenes 1. McAuliffe, with 614, scored weekly high three and Settlage scored high single with 235.

The Eighteenth Street Business Men's League will enter the State industrial handicap tourney, which begins at the Rogers alleys March 22, in a body. The teams are as follows: Model Craft, 1; Wiggins, Edisons, Georges, Excellairs, McQueens and Youngs. A. B. Berns, secretary of the tourney, states that in this year's meet the members on the different teams do not have to be employees or members of the same firm or industry which was one of the requirements in previous years. This change was made necessary owing to recent rulings of the American Bowling Congress.

L. Rademacher led the Woodpeckers to a three-game victory over the Hottentots in the St. Engelbert Sodality Women's League on the Melene alleys, with a 500 total. Hottentots' A. and Freeman as high scorers. In the other matches, the Lucky Strikes won two from the Breezers, the Speed Spooks took three from the Rinky Dink and the Curvers won three from the Skipalongs. The team leaders were: M. Brer 509, C. Brer 440, B. Korner 472, S. Goetemann 460, M. Bueltman 455 and A. Priemeyer 437.

Results in the Highland Dairy League were as follows: Bulks 3, Sweet Creams 1; Certified 2, Double Creams 1; Single Creams 1, Butterfinks 1; Cottage Cheese 1, Cream Cheese 1; Healths 3, Hi-lages 1; Grand A. 3, Salt Butters 0. The high scorers were: J. Seidler 544, W. Esenpreis 427, J. Graff 439, A. Lund 425, P. Burke, 555, W. Weyerman 494, R. Trollet 415, F. Fuchs 478, M. Daly 519, A. Neuman 469, B. Nisbet 495 and J. Ackerman 554.

Schoemer placed the bowlers in the Natural Bridge-Shreve Business Men's League on the Melene alleys with a 612 score. He had games of 237, 211 and 214, but the Pasadena lost the odd game to the Unions. F. Walters led the winners with 592. E. Wolf had high games of 412 and 413 and a 641 total, but the Godfreys dropped the odd game to the Melchers. Bischof's 609 was best for the Melchers. Blankenship shot 614 and Godschalk 613. Schramm won three from the Goringas. In the other matches the Stocks won two from the Knetters, the Altmans won two from the Beckers and the Elgins took three from the Landebams.

FRED CULLEN KAYOES QUINCY FIGHTER ON EAST SIDE PROGRAM

Fred Cullen, the Pacific Coast heavyweight who acted as sparring partner for Primo Carnera when the latter appeared here, put himself in line for a bout against John Schwacke or Dave Kneet on St. Louis heavyweight bout, when he stopped Russell Gross of Quincy, Ill., in the fifth of a scheduled 10-round bout last night, at Almad Temple in East St. Louis.

Ray Alfano of East St. Louis and Tommy Rambrugh of Springfield, Ill., battled 10 rounds to an unpopular draw in the main event. Alfano won the verdict when the pair fought three weeks ago and some of the 500 spectators last night thought last night's bouts should go the same way.

Digger Nelson, East St. Louis, won on a foul from Jackie Coogan of Indianapolis in the third round. Jack Coey, St. Louis, and Ardel Hoffman, Belleville, won from Barry Barker of Jefferson Barracks.

RECIPES FOR DISHES
IN WEEK'S MENUS

Cole Salad and a Group of New Desserts Add Interest to Meals.

For dinner on Sunday the jellied cucumber relish makes a most appealing accompaniment to the meat lamb and at the same time supplies the substances we have been talking about in a form that most people like.

Sauté one tablespoon of plain gelatin in one-quarter cup of cold water for five minutes, then dissolve in one and one-half cups of boiling water.

Cool, add two tablespoons of vinegar, one-half teaspoon salt,
one-half teaspoon sugar and a little green color—enough to tint the mixture a delicate green.

Cool until slightly thickened.
Then stir in one cucumber, peeled and cut in very small dice, one-quarter cup diced celery and one tablespoon of shredded pimiento.

Pour into very small molds and chill before serving. Garnish with a few sprigs of watercress or small lettuce leaf.

Creole Salad.

Mix one and one-half cups of cold boiled rice with one-third cup of well seasoned French dressing.
The rice should be cooked so that the grains are all separate. This is not difficult if it is cooked rapidly in a large amount of boiling water and then rinsed with cold water when tender. Shred two tablespoons of green pepper and cut one canned pimiento into dice.

Break one cup of cooked shrimp into pieces. Peel six large mushrooms, add just enough boiling water to cover them and simmer for five minutes, then drain and chill.
Cut the mushrooms in pieces when cold.

Rub the inside of a salad bowl
with a cut clove of garlic and line
it with lettuce leaves. Mix the rice with the peppers, pimiento, shrimp and mushrooms, using a fork and mixing as lightly as possible. Season with salt and white pepper and pile in a salad bowl. Garnish with spoonful of mayonnaise and a sprinkle of diced celery mixed with French dressing. Serve very cold.

Chocolate Sponge.
Sauté one and one-half tablespoons of gelatin in one-quarter cup of cold water for five minutes.
Then dissolve in one-quarter cup of boiling water and add one-third cup of sugar and two squares of chocolate that have been melted over hot water. If the chocolate does not mix readily, stir the mixture for a moment over a slow fire. Cool until the mixture is very slightly thickened.

Meanwhile, beat the whites of three eggs until stiff and the yolks until creamy. Add two tablespoons of sugar to the yolks and then fold them into the whites. Beat the plain until very frothy, fold in the egg mixture and mix teaspoon of vanilla. Continue folding over and over until the mixture is almost stiff enough to shape. Pour into a quart mold or into six individual molds and chill before serving. Serve plain or with a sprinkle of whipped cream.

dish. Stand this in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven for 40 minutes or until firm. Serve warm with hard sauce.

Whipped Cream Hint.
To one pint of whipped cream blend in thoroughly one tablespoonful of condensed milk just before serving. This increases the amount of cream and makes it more delicious.

NUTRITION NUGGETS FOR FAMILY COOKS

Observance of Diet Rules and Good Eating Habits Insure Good Health.

There are other things to consider besides knowing when and what not to eat. There is the question of what to eat. It is easy to get into a rut with food and the results are likely to be just as disastrous as a rut in any other phase of living.

Good nutrition calls for reasonable amounts of food that will meet the needs of the body. All kinds of wholesome foods should be eaten, and one of the first good food habits a child or grown-up acquires should be a liking for a wide variety of foods. Finicky tastes and fussy appetites are equally to be avoided.

Teach yourself never to eat when tired or excited, or when upset by worry or anger. Never deliberately or consciously overeat or eat foods that do not agree with you, even though you like them. Eat sparingly of a wide variety of foods. Avoid food fads and promiscuous dieting. These are simple rules, but they will do much in establishing good food rules or habits that will be of lasting benefit.

Vegetables, fruit, milk, eggs, cereals, fish and meat are the "pep," as well as body-building foods. They are necessary in the daily diet because they provide the body with fuel for energy, tissue-repairing material and other elements needed for maintenance of body health. There are many foods and dishes which contain lime and iron in the form of food lime and food iron. But our diet is such that very few eat enough of such foods. Nearly everyone, young or old, needs more of these builders of blood and bone. It is for this reason that we are urged to eat spinach and green foods, and to drink quantities of rich milk.

Add a Pound a Week in Weight—and Correct Nervousness with this new-type food-drink from Switzerland—Use coupon below

YOU have probably heard people talk about Ovaltine—the wonderful Swiss Food-Drink for children. But you may never have tried it for your own children. So this week we make a special offer to induce you to try it without further delay. We offer you a genuine Sebring Pottery Uncle Wiggily Mug—decorated with famous Uncle Wiggily characters in four colors

—to induce you to try Ovaltine for your children. (See coupon below.)

Ovaltine was first created in Switzerland. Up to date its use has spread over some 54 different nations of the world. Although new to America, over 20,000 doctors are now advising its use.

What It Is

Ovaltine is a food-drink that is utterly different in formula, taste and effect from any other known. Enticing beyond words to the childish palate, Ovaltine is a scientific food concentrate; not remotely to be confused with powdered chocolate, malt, cocoa or sugar "mixtures" offered as substitutes.

Developed 38 years ago by a famous Swiss scientist, Ovaltine contains, in highly concentrated form, virtually every vital food element necessary to life, including, of course, the Sunshine Vitamin D.

Due to an exclusive process, employed by no other food-drink known, it supplies those vital elements in such easily digested form that a child's system will absorb them even when digestion is impaired.

How It Acts

Some of those elements in Ovaltine build bone and muscle. And thus create new strength. Others build firm flesh. And thus constantly increase weight. Others

Children love Ovaltine mixed with hot milk in winter. Thousands of mothers tell us that the gain in weight and general health is almost unbelievable anemia. All are supplied in scientific ratio to meet the body's needs. That is why results are often astonishing.*

Digests Starches

Then, too, Ovaltine has high diastatic power. It greatly increases the effectiveness of all starch foods your child eats. Such as oatmeal, bread, potatoes, etc., which comprise over half the normal child's daily diet.

Results will surprise you. Note the difference in your child's weight, in nerve poise, in greater strength and energy. Find out, for your child's sake, what this creation means to you and yours. Give at breakfast always. Give at meals and between meals. Just mail the coupon for a 3-day supply and with it we will send you a genuine 50c Uncle Wiggily Mug free.

* (Note) Thousands of nervous people, men and women, are using Ovaltine to restore vitality when fatigued. During the Great War, it was a standard ration prescribed by the Red Cross as a restorative food for invalid soldiers of all nations.

"I wouldn't have believed so great a change possible in a child"

"My girl had always been sickly since she was 5 weeks old. She was pale, nervous and decidedly under weight for her age. We did all we could to make her well but could not get anything to help. At last a doctor advised us to do away with all medicine and use Ovaltine instead. We could see results almost immediately—she seemed like a different child. Color came back to her cheeks, nervousness and restlessness decreased wonderfully and she has added 5 pounds in weight even through the hot summer months. I wouldn't have believed so great a change possible in a child if it hadn't happened to my own. She has changed into another child in this short time."

Special FREE Offer to Ovaltine Users

This week we are making a special offer to regular Ovaltine users. We have supplied dealers in this city with a limited number of genuine 50c Uncle Wiggily Mugs for our customers. Your dealer will give you one free with the purchase of any size can of Ovaltine. The supply of these Mugs, as you can appreciate, is limited. So make your purchase early. We have offered this same mug through the magazines the past year. Thousands of mothers have accepted our offer and have written us letters stating this Mug is a great help in getting their children to drink Ovaltine and to drink milk. Be sure to act promptly before dealer supply is exhausted.

"My little boy was restless at night. He grew tired of warm milk at night and even during the day. I tried Ovaltine with wonderful results. He wouldn't drink his milk unless it had Ovaltine in it and he loves to drink from his new mug. I have used Ovaltine since and find that he does rest more quietly at night."

Mrs. L. WENDEGER
2322 Fleetwood Ave.
Baltimore, Md.

"And how they enjoy using their Uncle Wiggily Mugs! Many of their little guests have also admired them, resulting in their mothers inquiring about the mugs and the 'something good' we had to drink that day. And so another boost for Ovaltine is passed along."

Mrs. LOWELL K. WEAVER
647 E. 1st Ave., S. W.
Canton, Ohio

"I really sent the coupon for the sake of the mug, as I am long acquainted with Ovaltine—our family has used it for several years. I have been giving it to my little girl for some time and she is very fond of it. Now she has the Uncle Wiggily mug to drink it out of, it tastes twice as good."

MEAT MAIN DISHES FOR FAMILY MEALS

Lamb Braised With Lettuce and Deviled Veal New to Most Housewives.

Methods for cooking and serving the cheaper cuts of meats are almost a mystery, and somehow there has grown up in many places an idea that these cheaper cuts cannot make really appetizing or attractive dishes. The recipes in this article attempt to correct this, for they are some of the very best among all the meat recipes and all make use of the less expensive cuts of beef, lamb or veal. Note that in each instance careful attention has been given to the seasonings used. This is the key-note to success in cooking, and together with long rather slow cooking process is absolutely essential in cooking inexpensive foods, especially meats.

The first recipe is for braised lamb shanks cooked with lettuce and a little onion. Carrots and a bit of celery are used for additional flavoring. A little dill is cooked with the lamb and the flavor is deliciously "different" to American tastes. Try it occasionally for variety. Lamb shanks are inexpensive, costing about 25 cents a pound, but the price varies in different sections of the country.

Deviled Veal.
Deviled veal is another equally tasty dish. It is best made from the breast or shoulder cuts and for four people about two pounds will be needed, as allowance must be made for bone. Have the meat cut in pieces for searing and roll each in flour seasoned with salt and pepper. Melt one-fourth cup fat in a frying pan and brown the meat quickly in it. When brown drain off the fat. Mix one teaspoon salt, two teaspoons mustard, one-half teaspoon paprika and a few grains cayenne pepper with one tablespoon flour and two tablespoons vinegar. Pour over the meat with three-fourths cup hot water. Cover closely and cook very slowly for 10 minutes or until the meat is tender. Meanwhile melt two tablespoons butter and stir in one-fourth cup fine dry breadcrumbs. Stir until well browned. Sprinkle over the meat just before serving. Serve with plenty of hot mashed potatoes and a green vegetable.

Stewed Kidney.
Soak in cold salted water for 30 minutes, drain and cut in small pieces. Sprinkle with flour, salt and pepper and brown in three tablespoons butter. Add one small sliced onion, one tablespoon lemon juice, one tablespoon parsley and one teaspoon Worcestershire sauce. Cover closely and simmer for 50 minutes. Thicken the gravy slightly with flour and serve on toast or with boiled noodles or spaghetti.

Mock Stuffed Chicken Legs ARE SOMETHING DIFFERENT
Make an Acceptable Main Dish for Informal Company Gatherings.

This dish which is sometimes termed "City Chicken," will be found very satisfactory both in appearance and taste.

Ingredients needed for the meat portion are one and one-half pounds leg of veal, sliced, one and one-half pounds pork loin, boned, and twelve skewers.

For the stuffing use two cups cooked brown rice, one medium-sized green pepper, one medium-sized red pepper, one medium-sized onion, one-half cup celery cut in pieces, one-third cup water, one teaspoon sage, two tablespoons drippings, one teaspoon salt, one egg, one tablespoon water and one cup stale bread crumbs.

Cut veal in four inch squares; cut pork in thin slices. Cook chopped vegetables in one-third cup water five minutes. Mix thoroughly with remainder of stuffing ingredients.

Spread each layer of veal and pork with one tablespoon stuffing. Place slices of pork on top of veal. Place skewers in corner and roll, tying securely with string.

Roll in egg to which water has been added, and then bread crumbs; place in baking pan, cover and bake one and one-half hours in moderate oven, removing cover last one-half hour of baking and baste with two cups water for gravy.

Use for Table Salt
Pour it quickly on spilled ink, and it will absorb most or all of the liquid before it has time to stain.

HOW TO MAKE MELBA TOAST

Next time there is an extra loaf of bread, slice thin, lay on racks in oven and toast an hour at 325 degrees, which means a slow oven. Store in tin or other airtight container.

Melba toast used for diets has found a permanent place in the kitchen cupboard. Creamed chicken, tuna, chipped beef and other favorite supper dishes are especially good served on this toast that does not soak up.

COMMON VEGETABLES AND THEIR HISTORY

Information Concerning Some of the Vegetables Met With Every Day.

Did you ever stop to wonder who ate the first potato or where it was grown? When spinach and carrots were first thought of as "good health foods," or where beans came from?

A great deal is said about the necessity of eating plenty of vegetables and there is a prevalent idea that this is rather a new development.

Quite the contrary, though, for if we go back into history we find that the ancient Greeks and Romans, the Chinese and other races had a high appreciation of the value of vegetables and that many of these vegetables were the same kinds that we know and use today.

Carrots have been in use for some 2000 years, in olden times being considered especially useful in the treatment of consumption. We value them for their mineral and vitamin content and use them in feeding young children to insure an adequate supply of lime and other minerals. Our great grandmothers regarded them as an excellent skin beautifier and a diet of raw carrots was believed to be one means of having a fine rosy complexion.

Spinach has a shorter history, records telling that it was first cultivated in England about 1560. The health value of spinach lies in its high mineral content, especially iron, and in the fact that it contains enough indigestible matter, or roughage, to aid in preventing constipation.

Potatoes were first grown in Chile, Peru and Mexico and were probably introduced into Europe early in 1500. Spanish explorers brought them to Florida and Virginia and from Virginia they were taken to England about 1565. So this article of food, which we regard as one of our indispensable vegetables, is of comparatively recent origin. The sweet potato is also in all probability a native of tropical America, but it was known in Europe before the white potato.

Cabbage has had many uses and is one of the oldest vegetables, being in common use by the Greeks and Romans in early times and cultivated by the Germans and the Saxons. The Romans believed it possessed great medicinal virtues. Modern science also credits cabbage with high nutritive qualities because of its vitamin content.

The onion belongs to the lily family and because of its flavor has always been a favorite and highly valued. It is of Egyptian origin and was in fact worshiped by that race before the Christian era.

Turnips have been cultivated since the days of the Greeks. They are native to most parts of Europe, though in Russia they are often regarded as a luxury.

Lettuce and other salad plants are also old in history and were much used by the ancients. Lettuce is supposed to have come from India, and was not introduced into England until about 1570. In Germany, France and Italy a greater variety of plants are used for salads than here.

Radishes are thought to be native to China but have been found in Europe since very early days. Roman doctors recommended that they be eaten raw with salt before breakfast.

CHILDREN'S FOOD SUPPLY AN IMPORTANT PROBLEM

Regularity in the Time At Which Their Meals Are Served Is a Requisite.

Seeing that children get the proper food is one of the most important problems of every household.

According to the best dietetic information, the following general plan for children from two years of age up will insure an adequate amount of the foods required for good growth and nutrition.

First of all and the head of the food list is milk—one quart a day for each child. This may be used as a beverage, but it does not have to be if the child dislikes it. There are many varieties of cream soups, desserts and sauces for vegetables that may be made utilizing milk and at the same time somewhat disguising its taste.

Next, see that cereal of some kind is served once a day. Some of the ready-to-serve varieties may be used with fruit in a second meal to give variety. Use fruit or fruit juices at least once a day and twice if possible.

One egg at least three times a week is needed and some similar dessert.

Use one green vegetable every day with frequent repetition of spinach and tomatoes. Cabbage is also valuable and lettuce and other salad greens must not be neglected.

A starchy vegetable should be used each day in addition to the green and some meat may be used, either lean lamb, beef, chicken, fish or liver.

Strawberry Shortcake. Make dough as for biscuit, adding two tablespoons of sugar to the baking powder and flour. If sweet shortcake is desired. Roll dough in two round pieces and spread with butter. Bake in two round cake tins 1 1/2 to 2 1/2 minutes in moderate oven. Brush with melted butter. Put the strawberries and juice between the layers, and on top of asortcake. Whipped cream sweetened and flavored to taste can be added.

remarkable WHOLE BRAN NOW HAS DELICIOUS FLAVOR

We have built our business by selling standard merchandise at a savings to the consumer. We simplify the method of getting standard merchandise from the producer to the consumer by handling it in one organization, thereby cutting unnecessary cost, waste and effort, and expense wherever possible.

No business as large as ours could survive except under fundamental economic methods, and on fair and square dealings with the public.

This business was founded on principles as sound as the Constitution which governs our country, and we pledge the continuance of these principles.

Briefly, we are supplying the consuming public with the highest quality of standard foods obtainable and for these foods we are asking the minimum price for which they can be sold. We firmly believe that this is what the public expects of any institution.

A QUICK MEAL FOR A BUSINESS WOMAN

Use of a Good Grade of Canned Foods Simplifies Housekeeping.

All over the country there is an increasing number of women who keep house and who have as well business positions that take up all or part of their day. Their housekeeping problems are rather different than the average as they are faced with the necessity of planning and preparing meals that require the shortest possible time for cooking, and that at the same time furnish a well-balanced meal. This may sound simple, but in reality it presents many obstacles to the inexperienced, and perhaps the greatest of these is monotony.

The best way of overcoming this is to plan ahead as far as possible; shop on Saturdays for staples that will last most of the week, and to make good use of the wide variety of excellent canned foods that are now available. Keeping on hand a good supply of such canned things as broiled chicken, tuna fish, salmon, fish roe, fish flakes, corned beef, plain as well as hash, spaghetti, baked beans, several varieties of vegetables and fruits, will make possible a number of attractive and appetizing meals, none of which need take more than an hour to prepare and serve.

One meal that will be found most convenient is as follows: Baked chicken loaf with mushroom sauce.

Endive and vegetable salad

A fruit dessert

Tea

The only food that needs cooking is the chicken loaf and the sauce. While this is baking, the rest of the meal can be prepared and the table set.

Canned chicken is used for the loaf which is a very facile and appetizing way of serving either left-over stewed chicken or the canned. For three or four servings, use the following recipe. Any left-over is delicious sliced and used cold either for sandwiches or with a hot vegetable for another meal.

Chicken Loaf.
Chop the meat from a half-pound can of broiled chicken. Scald one and one-half cups of milk and pour over one cup of fine stale bread crumbs. Stir until the crumbs are soft, then add two well-beaten eggs, the chicken, one teaspoon of minced onion, one and one-half teaspoons of salt, one-half teaspoon of paprika and one-half teaspoon of powdered thyme or of mixed poultry seasoning. Mix well and pack into a well-greased, rather shallow baking pan. Bake in a moderate oven for 30 minutes or until firm. Cut in squares and serve hot with mushroom or green pea sauce. This is made by adding one-half cup of canned or fresh mushrooms, or one cup of fresh cooked or canned green peas to one and one-half cups of well-seasoned cream sauce.

Endive and Vegetable Salad.
Lettuce, watercress, romaine or any preferred salad green may be substituted for the endive in this recipe. Whatever green used, see that it is crisp. This is best accomplished by washing it when it comes into the house and keeping it in the icebox in a covered salad bowl or in a paper bag. Arrange for individual service, allowing two or three pieces of endive for each. Cut tomatoes in quarter-inch slices and place on the endive, surrounding them with a border of cooked string beans that have been well seasoned with French dressing. If possible, make a dressing with equal parts of lemon juice and tarragon vinegar. Leftover beans from the night before may well be utilized as a salad, or the canned variety chilled may be used instead.

WHEN CAKE IS DONE

1. It shrinks from the sides of the pan.
2. It feels firm to touch of finger and will spring back into place.
3. It is golden brown.
4. A straw inserted into the cake comes out clean.

If cake is put in "too slow" an oven the texture will be coarse, the cake will be "too hot" an oven, the cake will burn on top before sufficiently risen, and in its attempt to rise may break the crust. If too much flour has been added, the cake will crack. Coarse granulated sugar or too much sugar will make cake coarse and is apt to make it fall.

Frosting.
To crushed pineapple add enough powdered sugar to make frosting that will remain on cake.

FRESH RHUBARB IN MARKET

Fresh rhubarb is just coming in to the market, and there are few that are more appetizing than the tender pink stalks and tart refreshing flavor.

Wash the stalks but do not peel them by trying to peel them. Cut them in inch pieces, put in a sauce pan and add just enough water to cover the bottom of the pan. Cover and cook for five minutes, then add one-fourth cup of sugar for each cup and a half of cooked fruit. Boil for two or three minutes longer just to dissolve the sugar. Chill before serving.

MOUSSE IS POPULAR AS DINNER-DESSERT

Custom Suggests Frozen Sweet for the Last Course at Formal Dinners.

Satisfactory desserts may be frozen without stirring by packing in ice and salt or by placing in the trays of the mechanical refrigerator. A fairly rich mixture must be used in these desserts and the ingredients carefully combined in order to obtain a satisfactory texture.

Heavy cream is the most satisfactory base for desserts frozen without stirring. Such cream is used in the preparation of mousses and in combination with egg whites in parfaits.

Recipe for Plain Mousse.
One cup double cream, one cup rich milk, one tablespoon gelatin, two egg whites, one-half teaspoon salt and one-half teaspoon vanilla. Soak the gelatin until soft in a little of the milk or thin cream. Heat the remainder, and pour over the gelatin. Add the sugar and stir until dissolved, and put the mixture aside to chill. Whip the double cream. When the mixture containing the gelatin has thickened slightly, beat it to incorporate air. Add the vanilla, and fold in the whipped cream and the well-beaten egg whites. The egg whites reduce richness, increase volume, and improve texture. These proportions will make over four cups before freezing; or, if the egg whites are not used, about three cups.

Variations of the Recipe.
Instead of the gelatin as the thickener, any one of the following may be used:

Moisten one tablespoon of flour with a little of the milk or thin cream, add to the remainder, heat to boiling, and combine with the whipped cream and other ingredients.

Or, prepare a custard from the cup of rich milk, three egg yolks, and the sugar. Cool, beat, and add to the other ingredients as described.

Or use one cup of evaporated milk instead of the rich milk or thin cream. Chill, beat until light and frothy, and combine with whipped cream and other ingredients.

Or add one-fourth cup of marshmallows cut in small pieces to the milk or thin cream, and follow the usual method.

Different Flavors.
Coffee: Substitute one-half cup strong coffee for one-half cup of the thin cream.

Peppermint: Use one-fourth pound of peppermint stick candy instead of the sugar.

Peanut brittle: Use one-fourth pound of peanut brittle finely ground instead of the sugar.

Burnt almond: Melt eight teaspoons of sugar carefully and stir in one-half cup of chopped almonds. Heat until the almonds are browned. Crush and add to the cream. Flavor with vanilla and a few drops of almond extract.

Chocolate: Add one or two squares of unsweetened chocolate to the milk or thin cream in place of the other thickening agents suggested. Add 8 to 12 tablespoons of sugar, depending upon the quantity of chocolate used. Cook until smooth. This requires a lower temperature to freeze than the other mixtures, especially when the larger proportion of sugar and chocolate are used, but makes a very rich and palatable dessert.

Grated or shaved sweet chocolate may be used to flavor these desserts without affecting the freezing time. The marshmallow mixture is especially good with one-eighth pound of sweet chocolate added.

HOW TO MIX SPONGE CAKE
Eggs and Butter Must Be Well Beaten to Provide Leavening.

The best sponge cake contains only eggs, sugar, flour and flavoring. If the recipe calls for whole eggs beat yolks until thick and lemon colored; then gradually add sugar, flavoring, stiffly beaten whites, and lastly, fold and cut in the flour which should be sifted at least twice.

If the recipe calls for the whites of eggs only, beat them with an egg whip upon a flat dish until they are stiff. To the beaten eggs add the sugar, a little at a time, beating it in with a flat egg beater. Next add flavoring, then the sifted flour should be folded into the mixture with a wire egg whip or a flat spoon.

Pour into ungreased pan and bake in slow oven. Although there are many true examples of such cakes, there are many variations. For instance, some sponge cakes do not contain baking powder. The recipe usually calls for so many eggs, however, that it is too expensive for general use when eggs are high in price, and a cake can be made that is just as light and delicate, and less costly, if fewer eggs are used and a small amount of baking powder is substituted.

Salted Oriental.
On a nest of shredded lettuce arrange slices of avocado in the form of a fan, rounding side up. Chop preserved ginger and add to a thick French dressing, in which a spoonful of the ginger-syrup has been added to replace one of oil. Serve very cold.

Sauce for Roast Meats.
Boil one small bunch of mint leaves (four or five) in one pint of cider. Add the cinnamon, remove from the fire and allow to stand long enough to flavor the cider with the mint leaves and cinnamon, strain and serve with lamb or with veal.

LAYING THE TABLE FOR FAMILY MEALS

Special Attention Should Be Paid to Comfort and Convenience.

Lay the covers, allowing enough space so that no one is crowded. (A cover consists of the plate, glass, silver and napkin to be used by each person.) At the center of each cover, place a plate, the kind depending on the meal that is to be served. See that the covers on the opposite sides of the table are directly opposite, not out of line.

At the right of each plate place the knife with the sharp edge toward the plate and the end of the handle about one inch from the edge of the table. Next to the knife, and parallel with it, place the spoons with the bowls up and the end of handles even with that of knife.

At the left of the plate, place the fork or forks with the bowl up and the ends of the handles about one inch from the table. If a salad or pie fork is to be used, lay at left and parallel to the most fork.

The napkins neatly folded, are placed at the left of fork, the same distance from the edge of the table as silver with their sides parallel to the silver.

The glass should be placed at the end of the knife, always right side up—at the end of the fork place the bread and butter plate.

Special pains should be taken in laying the table to provide everything necessary, that there may be as little occasion as possible to go to the pantry or kitchen.

Place the dishes from which the foods are to be served, conveniently for those doing the serving. Place the serving spoons at the right of the foods to be served.

Never place the spoons in dishes before beginning the serving. Place the carving knife at the right of the meat platter, the fork at the left.

Cups and saucers, sugar and creamer, should be placed in front of the hostess, with the coffee or tea pot at her right. The table should never look crowded with dishes. When the hostess is serving the meal—a tea cart at her side may be used to hold the dessert dish, bread plate, water pitcher, etc.

Place the chairs so that the edge of the seat just touches the tablecloth, but does not keep it from falling straight.

BAKED WINTER PEARS OFFER A WELCOME NEW DESSERT

This Fruit Dessert Has Become a General Favorite This Season

Cut the pears in half, peel and core them. Cook in a baking dish in the oven, with sugar, until they are tender.

Exact quantities of sugar cannot be given, as the fruit varies so in size and in flavor. The housewife must use her own judgment, and add extra sugar at the last if the fruit is not sweet enough.

Hard pears require from an hour to an hour and a half.

Make a syrup of the liquid and add either sherry or port wine seasoning. Serve hot with cream.

A delicious variation of the poached pears given above consists in cutting them in two after they are cooked, pouring the syrup over them, sprinkling with chopped pistachio nuts, and browning in the oven. They may be served hot or cold with whipped cream.

CAULIFLOWER CAKE

Not a Sweet But a New Way of Treating This Vegetable

There seems to be a fad arising in the culinary line for cakes containing a vegetable as one of its ingredients.

Housewives interested in this type of cookery will find these directions for making cauliflower cake interesting.

Take one cup stale bread crumbs, one cup milk, yolk of two eggs, two cups cooked cauliflower, or two tablespoons butter, stir fry beaten whites of two eggs and pepper and salt to taste.

Stir crumbs and milk over fire until they boil, and add butter and cauliflower, mix well. Remove pan from fire and stir in egg yolks. Season to taste, add egg whites, and pour mixture into a greased, plain mold. Stand in a pan of hot water and bake in a moderate oven until well risen. Turn out and serve hot, garnished with parsley.

BEAN HOLE BEANS

With the "baked outdoors" flavor

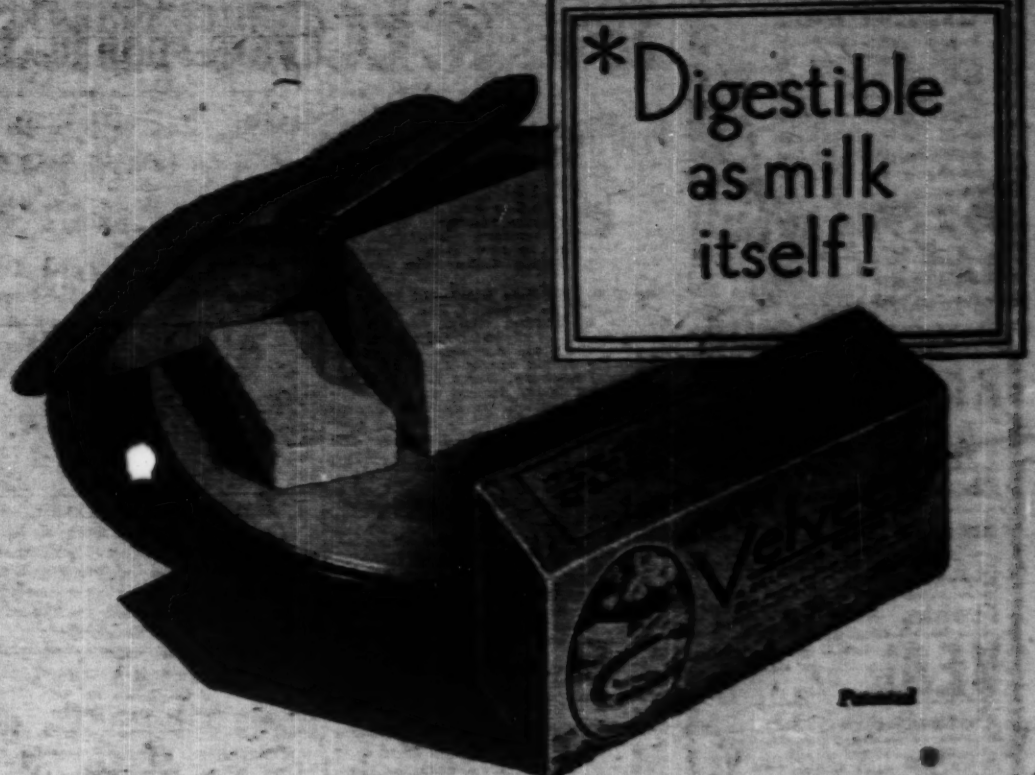

Out of the Maine forests—where famous cooks build body and brown—come Bean Hole Beans. Layers of beans and sugar-cured pork, caps of brown sugar and molasses, sealed in the great, iron bean pot—baked all night long in a bed of smoldering embers deep in the underground "bean hole"—no other beans were ever so good or wholesome.

The choicest beans, highest grade, sugar-cured pork, select brown sugar and molasses—add to the famous, original North Woods recipe the certain knowledge of purity and cleanliness certified by Van Camp food experts in the Nation's Kitchens and you'll know why everyone likes Bean Hole Beans.

Some truthful cooks say they are as good as the best beans they ever baked—some say they are even better. Why not try them and get the family's verdict tonight? After that you will serve them often.

FINANCIAL NOTES

NEW YORK, Feb. 28.—Imports of manufactured copper in January totaled 35,695 tons, compared with 28,483 tons in December and 32,941 tons in November, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics. Exports in January totaled 20,708 tons, against 25,227 in December and 22,962 in November.

Henry A. Scandrick, president of the Chicago, Milwaukee, and St. Paul & Pacific Railroad, estimates that the decline in gross revenues of the company, this month as compared with February, 1929, will be about the same as the January decline. The net operating, however, he believes, probably will show a smaller decline than that reported for the first month of the current year. He says business generally in the Northwest remains quiet, although he expects an improvement some time in April.

The Indian Motorcycle Co. has notified the New York Stock Exchange that it plans to increase its authorized common stock from 200,000 to 500,000 shares.

The average revenue rate for rail money during February was 4.214 per cent, compared with 4.742 per cent in January and 6.91 per cent in February, 1929.

Directors of the Congress Cigar Co. declared an annual dividend of 25 cents, in addition to the regular quarterly dividend of $1.25.

William C. Evans has been elected chairman of the Ward Baking Co. to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Charles A. Ward. Howard D. Ward, a brother of the late Mr. Ward, and a director of the company, has been elected vice president.

George S. Everitt, president of Montgomery-Ward, told stockholders at their annual meeting in Chicago today that he holds the same opinion with reference to the 1930 outlook as that expressed in the 1929 report, namely that with a reasonable volume of business this year profits should show considerable improvements over last year.

"You who are in touch with current business conditions," he said, "know from your own experience that they are less favorable than they should be to see them."

We are attempting to adjust our program in all departments to meet which will meet the reduced consumer requirements."

IRON MAN

A Contract Is Thrown Into the Discard and Coke Finds Himself Without a Manager at a Critical Time in His Career.

By W. R. BURNETT.

CHAPTER XXXV.

"SIT down, you guys," said Coke. "Want a drink?"

"No," said Regan. "Don't bother trying to be friendly. I don't feel friendly. This is just a matter of business, that's all; and the sooner we get it over with the better."

"That goes for me," said McNeil. "I don't feel friendly. This is just a matter of business, that's all; and the sooner we get it over with the better."

"Well," said Coke, "let's have it then. If that's the way you feel about it."

"All right," said Regan. He took a document out of his pocket and showed it to Coke. "There's the contract you signed to fight for me, Coke, and it's got a year to run. According to some of the clauses in it, that you were too dumb to understand, you got to fight who I tell you, when I tell you."

"You dummy," said Rose, "signing a contract like that!"

"Just a minute," said Regan. "Now, Coke, we're through, see? I'm done with you for good. I know just as soon as you found the misus again that we was through. I did the best I could, but let that pass. The point is, we're done. According to this contract, I could tie you up for a year. Of course you could cross me by retiring, like you said. Well, you don't have to. I'm gonna tear this contract up."

"Fair enough," said Lewis. "But I ain't gonna tear this contract up just for fun. That ain't my way and that ain't business. I've spent a lot of time on you, Coke, making a champion out of you, and I figure I got something coming. Well, all you got to do is sign a little paper I got here and you're free."

He took the paper from his pocket and handed it to Lewis. "Let me see that," said Coke. "Let Lewis read it," said Regan. "He'll probably be your next manager and he might just as well get in on the ground floor."

COKE sat staring at the wall, avoiding Regan's eyes. Lewis read the paper, then said: "This sounds O. K. to me, Coke. All you got to do is agree to give O'Keefe a shot at the championship within four months."

"Providing he likes Cahill," McNeil put in.

"That's a mere detail," said Lewis. "Regan'll see to that with a championship go at stake."

"I don't have to fix no fights for O'Keefe," said Regan. "He fixes them with lefts."

"Is it all O. K. Paul?" Rose inquired.

"Yes," said Lewis, "except this 25 per cent. gate. That'll have to be settled later."

"Let it stand," said Coke.

"But good Lord, Champ," said Lewis, "O'Keefe's lucky you're giving him a match at all."

"We won't fight about that," said Regan. "We can settle that later."

"I should think so," said Rose. "Well, scratch that out then," said Lewis.

"Tim Morgan's willing to make you a record guarantee for the match, Coke," said Regan.

"All right with me," said Coke. Lewis scratched out the clause dealing with the gate guarantee and Coke signed the paper. Then Regan took the old contract Coke had signed and tore it up.

"Now," said Regan, "we're all set except I want to see your duplicate torn up."

"I don't even know where it is," said Coke, scratching his head.

"I got it," said Rose.

She unlocked a drawer in the writing desk and took out the contract. Coke took it from her and tore it up.

"Well, that's that," said Regan. He got to his feet and so did McNeil.

"Going with George, are you, Mac?" Coke inquired.

"Yeah," said Mack. "I ain't got no use for people that go back on their friends."

Coke didn't say anything. Regan and McNeil went out.

"Well," said Rose, "I'm sure glad to see the last of George Regan."

"Yeah," said Lewis; "he's a bad one."

"He's bossed Coke around since Coke was a kid," said Rose.

Coke went into the bedroom and shut the door.

LEWIS and Coke came in just as the main-gate was starting. O'Keefe was lumbering around with his left stuck out as far as it would go, and Cahill, with his hands at his sides, was trying to draw him. Coke saw Regan at the ringside, but Regan avoided his eyes.

"O'Keefe'll lick him," said Coke. "Cahill's as thick as 10 in a bed with Regan."

"Certainly," said Lewis. "It's all set."

man behind Coke leaned forward and patted him on the back. "You can lick 'em both, Coke," said the man.

"I have," said Coke. At the beginning of the second round Cahill leapt out of his corner and began to hammer O'Keefe with body punches, some of which looked low. The referee warned him. O'Keefe stalled around, occasionally landing a long-range left, but Cahill was all over him, hitting him with body punches which he ripped up from his knees.

O'Keefe grinned and stalled and shot out his long left. Once he caught Cahill coming in with that left and Cahill went back on his heels. At the end of the round Cahill had a cut over his left eye, and O'Keefe's body looked as if it had been beaten with a paddle.

"Well," said Lewis, "O'Keefe better wake up if he's gonna win this fight."

"Yeah," said Coke; "that was Bat's round all right."

Coke licked to be in the ring.

THE third and fourth rounds were Cahill's. He was landing body blows at will, and O'Keefe, who seemed very much puzzled by his attack, kept missing rights. Once or twice he shot out his left and landed. Once a glancing left sent Cahill into the ropes, but he leapt in immediately and drove O'Keefe across the ring with short jolts to the body. O'Keefe clinched.

"You know, Paul," said Coke, "I think this fight is straight. I know just what O'Keefe's up against. Bat's hell when he's in close."

"Maybe you're right," said Lewis. "But I thought Regan had more sense than to take a chance on this fight. Cahill's no clinch for anybody."

Coke glanced at Regan, who sat chewing on a cold cigar. He seemed calm enough. But in the ring, while Jeff worked over O'Keefe, McNeil was talking to him. From time to time O'Keefe nodded.

At the beginning of the fifth round Cahill used his usual tactics, rushing in immediately to get at O'Keefe's body and offset his long left, but this time, the left, a hard wallop, met him coming in. O'Keefe shot at a slightly different angle and connected. Cahill was thrown off balance, and before he could get back on his stride, O'Keefe hit him with a right, followed by another left, good solid punches. Cahill went down. It was a clean knockdown, but Cahill wasn't groggy, and the count of nine he leapt to his feet and weathered a terrific fusillade of punches.

Then he landed a hard right to the body. O'Keefe hit his body as if it had stung him, but he didn't back up, and continued his attack. Seeing that he had hurt his opponent, Cahill opened up and stood toe to toe slugging with O'Keefe. Toward the end of the round, Cahill, ripping his body punches up from his knees, fouled O'Keefe and O'Keefe fell to the floor, writhing.

"Foul sure enough," said Lewis. Cahill stood in the middle of the ring, shaking his head from side to side. O'Keefe was carried to his corner.

THE fight was awarded to O'Keefe on a foul. The crowd was disgusted. They booed and stamped. Someone started the story that Cahill had fouled O'Keefe on purpose, that he was sore at him. Someone else said that O'Keefe hadn't been fouled at all, that it was just a stall so he would be sure to get his match with the champion. Regan, known as a slicker, was accused of all sorts of things.

Coke and Lewis went back to see Cahill. Cahill was lying on the rubbing-table.

"Too bad, Bat," said Coke. "Yeah," said Bat. "That's the only fight I ever lost on a foul."

"Tough," said Coke. "Yeah," said Bat. "He crowded me just as I was pulling one up. He ran right into it. It was a foul all right."

"Bat's trainer started to work on him."

"He ain't hard to hit, champ," said Bat. "But watch that left. Boy, what a wallop."

"He's a natural lefthander," said Coke.

"Well," said Lewis, "he won't cause you much trouble."

"No," said Coke.

Two-Color Costumes

Always it has seemed the proper color balance to wear a dark jacket with a light colored skirt, yet the interchange of this theme made a very clever costume at Palm Beach, the light jacket belted and buttoned in the dark shade of the skirt, the latter matched by a beret.

The light sports shoes were tipped and heeled in the dark color.

The Paris Mode Again Revels in Infinite Variety

Sportswear no Longer Permeates Every Corner of Fashion in the French Capital.

By MME. CHARLOTTE.

Well Known Paris Dressmaker.

PARIS, Feb. 15.

A PROFOUND revolution is taking place in fashion's domain. These last few months have stirred even women who are but slightly interested in clothes. Almost suddenly their skirts were the wrong length, their waists were in the wrong place and they felt that their wardrobes needed a tremendous amount of readjusting and renewing. Women who are always interested in dress were still more interested, being stimulated by entirely different lines and the many changes in accessories these new lines necessitated.

Sportswear is no longer worn for all times of the day as formerly. It was a comfortable habit, especially for the busy woman, but it became fearfully monotonous. And monotony is the last thing mode or her followers will countenance.

Obviously, to wear sport clothes all the time shows lack of taste and discrimination. Women played with the idea as with a new toy, but as a novelty it has tired them and they are now ready to keep a mode which was becoming too impertinent in its place, and wear it only when time and occasion demand.

THE first sign of the "break away" was when women lengthened their evening dresses. They found such a pleasurable change, stirring up quite different qualities in their feminine psychology, that they extended added length and varied differences to their little dinner dresses, too. At last, they allowed these changes to influence afternoon clothes.

Naturally, the newer modes are much more difficult to cut. They are of more difficult to make and to copy. They are designed purposely for the occasions and times at which they are to be worn. They are made on each woman, so to speak, with the little adjustments, additions or suppressions necessary in each particular case, so that clothes become much more personal and individual than they have been for many years.

Such harmony is insisted upon in the newest fashion that bag, scarf, hat, etc., must "go." Often they are of matching materials, but if not must merge subtly into and become a part of the main effect.

I will give you details of how I am working at present:

SILHOUETTE—My dresses are very long for evening, as you see by the example sketched in the center of the illustration. For afternoon they are half-long—this length is, of course, slightly adjustable. In most cases body lines follow those of the figure. The belts are set in, the hips kept as flat as possible, and fullness breaks from the knee or just above.

For the afternoon, the tea hour and little informal dinners, I am making dresses more "habillees." That is to say, with less exaggerated décolletage, long sleeves, and more "make" generally. For afternoon, dinner, bridge and "Sunday nights," I am making lame dresses treated in a simple sports manner. While unaffected in type, this rich material removes them entirely from the category of sportswear, as we understand it. I am using less lace.

For morning wear, skirts are slightly longer. They can still be called short, however, and keep a supple and easy freedom of cut suitable to actual walking and sporting.

As for details, I am favoring many trims of lingerie—dainty little hand-embroidered, tucked or lace-trimmed collars, cuffs, etc., of exquisite fineness. There is stitching, too—marvelous patterns and designs traced with the machine—a decoration which is extremely modish. Again there are incrustations or insets of self-material, beaded borders along lengthened into the skirt by light panels, etc.

Hats and bags accompanying costumes for sportswear will be made of the same material.

TISSUES—I am employing a great deal of French tweed, silk, "faconnes"—that is to say, marked band's abdication and exile are well known episodes of the last turbulent days of the house of Obrenovich. In pre-Karagevich Serbia, now part of Jugoslavia. Married at 16 to Prince Milan she became the storm center of counter-ploiting in the part of Russia, Austria and Germany from the first days of her husband's coronation.

Her marriage to Milan was annulled in 1888 and until 1893 although hailed and treated as Queen she lived apart, maintaining her own court at Wiesbaden. In 1893 the pair was reconciled and remained together until the King's abdication in favor of his son.

The story of her reign was even more unhappy. He and his wife, a former lady-in-waiting to Natalie, were murdered in their sleep at Sinjak Palace, Belgrade, and their unclad bodies flung into the garden below.

Forming a Good Habit. It is a good thought to keep a supply of clothes hangers with names written on them of each child in the family. It makes a little game out of hanging up their clothes and avoids much pressing by mother.

LICE ROOSEVELT LONGWORTH is one of few women with courage to demand canvas candor.

"Paint me as I am—if there are lines, put them in," she told Ellen and Berthe Helman, Hungarian artists. "If there is a droop under the chin, put that in, too."

The sisters gasped, then seized brushes and flew to their easels. Though they have painted many wealthy and titled women, Mrs. Longworth is the first to ask uncompromising truth. Most of them seek evasive shadows and rosy tints.

She is the first woman in their experience, too, the sisters say, who has not consulted a mirror before each sitting. The wife of the Speaker of the House swings nonchalantly into the studio, gives her hair a careless pat and is ready.

The girls work at the same time, but each paints Mrs. Longworth from her individual conception. Ellens sees her as courageous. Berthe, Berthe has caught her in a softer, more pensive mood.

"While we work she talks about everything from politics to art," says Berthe.

Club Women May Visit Panama Next January

ONE HUNDRED club women, composing the council of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, may go to Panama in January, 1931, in furtherance of their Latin-American program.

Women's club of Panama have extended an invitation to the council to hold its next annual meeting there.

Trips by individual women will be made this year. Mrs. Howard Green of New Jersey, chairman of the division of art for the federation, will be in Panama during February at the invitation of the Panama Chamber of Commerce.

She will take art exhibits with her and address a number of the schools.

THE afternoon dress at the left is a marvel of clever cutting. The cape is cut with and merges into the frock. It follows all the newest lines—fitting about the body to almost the knees, where it breaks into graceful folds. It is of aubergine (eggplant) crepe de chine. Although sketched as a plain material, the beautiful evening gown center is satin faconne, or satin with a little design in the weave. It has a lattice effect across the back décolletage. Very effective is the smart sports costume of French tweed—chestnut brown—and ottur fur, at the right. The jacket is the fashionable three-quarter length.

BARGAINING WITH CHILDREN

By Irma Morris.

"I DON'T want to go to bed," wails Stephen. "I'll give you a candy if you do," says his father. "I want two candies," is the prompt reply. And Stephen gets his two candies! The next night, if he is wise, he'll hold out for three.

"How much will you give me if I go to the store?" asks Dick. "I won't dry the dishes unless you let me go to the movies," is Hilda's ultimatum. Jack's mother gave him 10 cents for his good report card last month. This month he calmly announced that 10 cents wasn't enough compensation for all that hard work, and he demanded a raise.

Who has taught these children to bargain? Isn't it very foolish to start this bribing habit? At first, it seems to solve the situation very easily, but when it becomes a case of "hold up," we don't look upon it quite so kindly.

Is it really necessary? Can't we get the child to go to bed, to run an errand occasionally, to do some of the household tasks, and to do good work in school, without bribes? Children of the same age readily will bring them some form of satisfaction, or pleasure. In what other ways can these acts be made satisfying to them?

Can't we make going to bed an enjoyable period by telling the child one story, singing a song, or having a cozy talk. If, in addition, he has grown accustomed to a regular bedtime hour since babyhood, we shall have little trouble in this respect.

If we show our youngest great appreciation when he runs our errands, won't that usually be sufficient reward. Of course, if we are unreasonable in our requests, expecting the child to drop his absorbing play immediately upon our say so, we shall not receive the desired co-operation.

Very young children love to do "chores." If we allow the youngsters to do these things while they are interesting to them they will usually do them later as a matter of course. In addition, we should constantly show appreciation for effort rather than finding fault with execution.

Industry work in school would usually come naturally if the child was in his right place, in a place where the work was neither too difficult nor too easy for him, and if his tasks were made interesting to him. When a child does poorly in his school work it is far better to endeavor to find out why than to bribe or punish.

Occasionally, when a habit is difficult to establish, we may have to offer a very young child a small reward; but this practice should be discontinued as soon as the habit is formed. Let us always rather use a higher appeal, such as an interest in the thing itself, desire for our approval, or best of all, an inner sense of duty, being because of a job well done.

Firmly Balanced.

It is wise to put a quantity of food in the bottoms of valuable vases when they are kept in places where there is a chance of being knocked over. This small weight will keep them firmly on their feet and there is less chance of accident.

Will Taste Better.

In the winter when we use canned foods it is well to know that fruits and vegetables that have been opened a few hours before used taste lots better than those used immediately upon opening.

Why?

You might think it unnecessary bother to raise tomatoes from special seed—to send experts to the Indian Ocean for spices—to age cider vinegar for months in wood... just to make Ketchup.

But how else could Heinz make a tomato ketchup so flavorful, so irresistible, that it outsells all others year in and year out?

This hint has led to considerable thought on my part. If I had a small helicopter I could reach them quite easily. It would be a simple matter if there were a couple of brothers in the family about the size of Gog and Magog.

In the meantime, with the lifting of the ceiling and revealing everything to my eyes, I have been worried about explanations. It is customary in my home to attribute all household disorder to the cat.

The raggedness of the bitter-armed and the shedding pluck I've given, which makes an odd stippled effect. I have not been able to blame her convincingly for the dust on the ceiling.

I don't know just what I shall do about it all. I've been thinking of taking an interior decorating course from Babylon and having "Mene, mene, tekel, upharin!" put along the wall in neat electric lights. That would at least divert people's attention. In the end, however, I shall probably just put on an eyeshade and try to forget it.

Incidentally the couch cover which I intended to throw away a year ago, but which has been peacefully under the dim lights ever since, now comes out in its true color, and a terrible color it is. There is at least one cigarette burn for each party I've given, which makes an odd stippled effect. It looks as if my spring will be consumed in an anguished study of what the well-dressed couch will wear.

In the meantime I can only advise people who want peace not to let a geranium get its root in the door, and to keep the lights dim if they don't wish to know too much about the ceiling.

The Good Housekeeper

PREVENTIVE housecleaning is the method used in modern homes, and the annual or semi-annual upheaval that meant a period of discomfort to the entire family and onerous work for at least one member of the family is obsolete.

The good housekeeper knows that systematic housework means a saving of labor in the end, and with all the labor-saving equipment to be had she does not find housework a drudgery, as did, perhaps, her mother.

She has her regular daily routine and this is carefully planned with the idea of keeping her home clean rather than making it clean. This means that the rooms in constant use are put in order each day and the special cleaning is distributed through the week.

Keeping the dirt out of the house is her main idea in all her housekeeping plans, and this embraces not only the cleaning, but the type of furnishings, the style of furniture, the arrangement of the home, and these all receive her consideration when she plans her housework.

Crumpled dried bacon is delicious when added to egg omelet. Left-over bacon can be used this way.

COTTON undergarments have a definite place in spring fashions to wear under linen and shantung beach pajamas. These are the correct type for beach wear. Typical beach lingerie includes the two-piece mannish shirt and shorts in combed cotton or cotton balbriggan, and the one-piece garment made with or without the braisiere top. These may be had in colors to harmonize with beach apparel, in pastel, and in plain white.
